Senate Calls On U. N. To Pin Aggressor Tag On Red China And Reject Membership Bid

Demands Of "Stop Stalling" Are Voiced As Upper Chamber Follows House's Lead

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — An aroused U.S. Senate called on the United Nations today, without a dissenting vote, to brand Communist China an aggressor.

Senators likewise asked the U.N., by a 91 to 0 vote, to turn down Red China's determined bid for United Nations membership.

Both actions came on the eve of a scheduled vote in the U.N. Political Committee on an American resolution formally declaring the Chinese Communists aggressors in Korea and opening the way for action against them.

Demands that the U. N. "stop stalling" and "show some backdone" were voiced on the Senate floor.

Follows House's Lead

The House last week adopted a unanimous resolution declaring the U. N. should condemn Red China as an aggressor.

Thus today's Senate vote put Congress solidly behind the stand taken by the U. S. delegation to the United Nations.

But among this country's allies in the anti-communist front, there was no such solid support.

In London, Prime Minister Attlee told a cheering House of Commons his government doesn't favor at this time "taking a new and important decision" embodied in the U. S. resolution to name China an outright aggressor.

He said, however, that the facts warrant "condemning Chinese intervention in support of an aggressor"—that is, North Korea.

Attlee spoke in the face of a warning from Winston Churchill that "grave dangers" will result from "any serious divergency" between U. S. and British policies.

Western Nations Split

The Prime Minister said he puts the greatest importance on Anglo-American unity, but added:

"We should never abandon recklessly or thoughtlessly any hope there may be of a peaceful settlement x x x."

Britain, France and a number of other western nations split with the U. S. yesterday in agreeing to put off for 48 hours a vote on the U. N. aggressor resolution.

The decision followed the Chinese Communists' statement that a limited cease-fire could be arranged in Korea while a seven-power conference explored the whole Far Eastern problem.

U. S. Delegate Warren Austin strongly opposed the postponement and called the Communist statement a transparent attempt to split the free world.

Arab-Asian Bloc Plans New Move

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 23 (AP)—Sir Benegal N. Rau, India's delegate to the United Nations, said tonight a 12-nation Asia-Arab group is trying to frame another Korea cease-fire plan acceptable to Communist China and the U. N.

He declined to say what form the new move—three have failed before—will take until delegates of the bloc talk with other U. N. delegations.

Rau said he did not know yet whether a formal program will be ready by the time the 60-nation U. N. Political Committee meets tomorrow (3 p. m. EST).

The group met tonight at Rau's home in New York. He said afterward that the group's ranks are still unbroken in an attempt to find a Korean-Far East peace formula. Other members are Pakistan, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Afghanistan, Egypt, Yemen, Saudi, Arabia, Burma and Syria.

They oppose the United States move to brand Communist China now as an aggressor in Korea but Rau said it was not decided tonight whether to demand priority for the new peace plan in the committee meeting tomorrow.

U. N. delegates, meanwhile, studied with great interest the speech in the House of Commons today by Prime Minister Attlee of Britain. Attlee advocated a go-slow policy on further action against Red China. The American delegation here was pushing for a fast vote on its resolution branding Red China the aggressor in Korea and leaving up to the U. N. the next steps to take as a means of punishment.

Third Diamond Smuggler Seized

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23 (AP)—A transatlantic traveller carrying diamonds in his shoe heel was nabbed today in another strike by customs agents at what they tabbed $1,500,000-plus smuggling operations.

James R. Offutt, acting supervisor of customs agents, said the man is Eli Stern, 29, Brooklyn, N. Y., and he had $119,346 in industrial diamonds, wholesale value. Stern was seized as he landed on a plane from Havana, Cuba, and was charged with smuggling.

Two other travelers, one a pleasant-appearing young woman, were seized earlier in New York on charges of smuggling in industrial diamonds in the heels of their shoes.

Plump auburn-haired Eta Hoffmann, 26-year-old Belgian emigree, was jailed under high bail on charges of smuggling a million-dollar booty in the hollow heels of her shoes.

A 31-year-old Austrian, Leiser Weitman, was arrested Sunday when he arrived at the airport, also from Belgium. He allegedly had $500,000 worth of industrial diamonds hidden in his shoeheels.

Renegotiation Bill OK'd

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Legislation to recapture any unduly large war profits through contract renegotiation was passed today by the House and sent to the Senate.

Negro Agent Traps Dope Wholesalers

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—A negro federal agent, disguised in a French beret and a trench coat with a fur collar, risked his life to trap a dozen "big shots" accused today of supplying dope to New York's carriage trade.

The overnight roundup of 12 alleged major narcotics wholesalers was described as a "paralyzing body blow" to the illegal drug traffic when the men were arraigned today in federal court. A hearing was set for Friday.

The unidentified agent smoked big cigars and posed as an interstate narcotics distributor, several times risking his life, District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said. Hogan said he wore the unusual apparel to establish himself as a "character" and perhaps lessen any suspicion.

Baltimore Transit Offers 5-Cent Boost

Starting The Long Road Back

Marshall Takes Responsibility For UMST Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall took personal responsibility today for tying together the proposals to draft 18-year-olds now and to make universal military service and training a fixture for the future.

"My thinking is going beyond next June," the General told the House Armed Services Committee, referring to the current goal of 3,462,000 men under arms by that time.

Calls For 18-Year Draft

Marshall renewed the Defense Department contention that the alternative to the 18-year draft is induction of veterans, men with dependents, or both, to meet present needs. Asking that no legal limitation be put on use of 18-year-olds, he repeated his assurance that no draftee taken in at the start of the program will be sent to a combat area before his 19th birthday except in "dire emergency."

And in support of the longer range UMST proposal the World War II Army Chief of Staff and former Secretary of State gravely told the committee:

This country does not now have the kind of time—a year to 22 months—that it took to raise and train a division in the last war.

Situation "Dangerous"

Unless there is a system for raising troops quickly out of a reservoir of trained men, "I feel we are in a very dangerous situation."

If we had UMT in 1947 "we would not be threatened with war today."

Marshall was leadoff witness before the House committee for a bill to (A) lower the draft age to 18 from the present 19 (B) raise the service term from 21 to 27 months (C) hold the men in reserve or National Guard units for a period of years after their terms of active duty and (D) carry that program into permanent UMST as fast as the current world emergency permits.

Air Defense Chiefs Can Call Out Guard

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Commanders of the eastern and western U. S. air defense forces were given authority today to call up Air National Guard units in a national emergency.

Secretary of the Air Force Finletter announced the action and said it is intended to prevent any loss of time "when an enemy air attack is imminent."

Before last July, the President had the sole right to order any National Guard units into active service. Shortly after the Korean war started, this power was delegated to the secretaries of the military services.

San Diego Asks Help

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 23 (AP)—San Diego is bulging at the seams again. The City Council says it needs 20,000 additional homes within 90 days.

World's Largest Helicopter Tested

CULVER CITY, Calif., Jan. 23 (AP)—The world's largest helicopter, a mammoth jet-propelled eggbeater built for the U. S. Air Force by the Hughes Aircraft Co., was given ground tests today.

The helicopter, the XH-17, was damaged during tests last June 22 when it tore loose from its moorings. The Air Force announced that after complete ground tests the craft will be made ready to fly by the addition of a flight control system, tail boom, tail rotor and horizontal stabilizer.

The craft, which has a rotor about 120 feet in length, is designed for short range moving of military equipment such as trucks, tanks and bridge sections.

U. S. Aid Funds Aid Red Bloc

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Sen. Herbert R. O'Conor said today that American aid funds have been used by some Western European nations to send materials useful in war to nations behind the iron curtain.

A couple of hours earlier, an American aluminum manufacturer testified to a House committee that Canada has been shipping aluminum "almost continuously" to Poland, Czechoslovakia and other Soviet-dominated nations.

O'Conor, a Maryland Democrat, heads a Senate subcommittee which repeatedly has expressed concern over the export and train shipment of strategic goods to potential enemies of the western world.

After a meeting of his committee with Assistant Secretary of State Willard L. Thorp, O'Conor said some Western European countries have used U. S. recovery funds to build factories that sent "war potential goods" to areas dominated by Moscow.

Catholic Bishop Dies

BRENTWOOD, Eng., Jan. 23 (AP)—The Most Rev. Dr. Arthur Doubleday, Roman Catholic bishop of Brentwood, died today.

Senate Gives Its O.K. To Johnston As ESA Director

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Senate gave its o.k. to Eric Johnston as economic stabilization administrator and to William H. Harrison as defense production administrator today, opening the way for a series of fast economic actions that will affect the humblest citizen.

Some officials said they hoped the expected nationwide freeze of prices can be issued by Friday, but they added there is no certainty of this.

Rubber Cuts Loom

Meantime, the government moved to conserve an article vital in the defense effort—natural rubber. The National Production Authority announced that rubber manufacturers will meet with officials tomorrow to begin drafting recommendations for saving the natural product.

This indicated further cuts in the natural rubber content of auto tires, and perhaps elimination of its use in some other products. At present 65 per cent of the rubber used in a passenger car tide may be natural rubber.

No Roll Call On Johnston

The Senate acted without a roll call in confirming Johnston and Harrison. They will serve under Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson in the government's revamped setup to mobilize the nation's economic resources in the world emergency.

Johnston, as head of the Economic Stabilization Agency, is expected to issue promptly an order turning over to the price and wage offices of the ESA the power to proceed with the sweeping price-wage controls that members of Congress have been demanding.

Train, Truck Crash; 18 Die

TORTOSA, Spain, Jan. 23 (AP)—A collision of a passenger train and truck killed 18 persons and injured 28 others near here today. The locomotive and six coaches on the Valencia train rolled down a steep embankment.

"Jim Crow" Repealer Tentatively Approved By House Of Delegates

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP) — The latest in a long history of bills to repeal Maryland's "Jim Crow" law slipped unobtrusively to tentative approval in the House today.

The proposed repealer, introduced by the Fourth District delegation from Baltimore, passed without notice through a series of committee reports. It was adopted without dissent.

Some delegates said later they were not aware the measure was up for consideration.

It still faces a final vote in the House. If accepted, it would go to the Senate for a decisive vote.

Senators have called for repeal in the last two sessions of the General Assembly. But delegates have voted to retain the ancient law, which requires segregation of whites and negroes on intrastate railroads and steamboats.

The statute actually is ineffective, except on Chesapeake Bay ferries. Opponents have attacked it as an outworn "Jim Crow" symbol.

Chairman Dempsey of the House Judiciary Committee predicted delegates would pass the repealer when it returns for a final vote.

The House passed and sent to the Senate four measures, including one to permit reckless driving prosecutions of street car motormen.

Senators cleared three bills. One was a recommendation by the Tax Survey Commission to scrap the State Board of Examiners of horseshoers.

U. S. War Hero's Daughters Given Gifts From Scotland

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Two little girls—daughter of a hero who died in Korea—today were given a piece of tartan cloth and a brooch by the wife of a Scottish coal miner.

Rose Marie, 6, and Joan, 3, daughters of the late Pfc. John J. McCormick, Collingdale, Pa., were handed the gifts in a ceremony at the British Embassy.

And thus ended a strange international story.

It started with Mrs. Rita Robertson of Fifeshire, Scotland, who had small means but a large heart. She wanted to do something to show her appreciation of the American boys fighting in Korea.

So she wrote a letter to the U. S. Consul General in Glascow, saying she'd like to give the tartan cloth to some little girl, or, as she put it, to "some wee girl in America whose daddy she has lost in the war in Korea."

It was about this time that Pfc. McCormick was much in the news. He had written a letter to Rose Marie and Joannie which got a lot of publicity.

In the letter he said:

"So I have to help fight these men and keep them from coming where you and mummie live. It might take a long while, and maybe daddy will have to go and help God in heaven, and if I do, I always want you both to be good for mummie, because she is the best mummie in the whole wide world."

Shortly after writing this letter, McCormick was killed.

Gls-To-Europe Skirmish Won By Trumanites

Wherry Resolution Sent To Committees

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The administration won an important skirmish on the troops-for-Europe issue today when the Senate sent the Wherry resolution to committees for study.

The resolution, offered by Republican Floor Leader Wherry of Nebraska, would put the Senate on record as disapproving sending U. S. soldiers to join an international defense force until Congress has laid down a policy on the subject.

By sending it to committees, administration men figured that they were in position to rewrite it or scrap it entirely and substitute language approving the dispatch of troops to help build defenses against Communism.

"Ike's" Report Awaited

Today's action, taken by unanimous consent of the Senate, sidetracked a showdown at least until Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the proposed defense army, reports to Congress next week.

Eisenhower is scheduled to address an informal session of Senate and House members—possibly next Tuesday or Wednesday—on his survey of Europe's readiness to fight together, if necessary, against Soviet aggression.

The Wherry resolution was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee and the Armed Forces Committee. Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex), quarterbacking the opposition to the resolution, suggested blandly that it may die there.

In a sharp exchange, Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told Wherry he could not promise to return the measure to the Senate floor at any time.

Wherry Revised Resolution

Wherry had originally framed his resignation to declare it was "the sense of the Senate" that no American ground forces should be sent to bolster the projected 1,000,000-man international army until Congress has adopted a policy on such action.

President Truman has said he will consult with congressional leaders before sending U. S. troops to Europe, but has insisted that as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces he has full authority, on his own, to dispatch American soldiers anywhere in the world.

Wherry revised his resolution so that it would require the Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees to study his proposal and report back to the Senate by Feb. 2.

French Police Will Block Red Anti-"Ike" Rally

PARIS, Jan. 23 (AP)—France tonight alerted 6,500 police and thousands more bayonet-carrying soldiers to prevent a Communist demonstration scheduled for late tomorrow against Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The French government has outlawed the demonstration. The Communists, however, announced their determination to go ahead. Reliable sources said Moscow had rapped French party members across the knuckles for fizzling of anti-Eisenhower manifestations here when the General flew to Europe two weeks ago and ordered them to try again.

Interior Ministry officials ordered mobilization of all available police and militia in the Paris area.

Units of the tough, riot-seasoned Republican Security Guard were ordered to duty tomorrow night in the area of the Arc De Triomphe, near which stands the General's temporary offices as Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe (SHAPE). The offices are in the Hotel Astoria.

Gen. Eisenhower, who returned to Paris today from Frankfurt, appeared unconcerned about the Communist threats. He held a series of staff conferences, visited Versailles and received British Field Marshal Lord Montgomery.

French authorities, however, were frankly worried about the possibility of a riot. Two streets in the immediate area are under repair, with huge piles of bricks and paving blocks lying about.

"That's their ammunition," an official said.

"Glimmer Of Hope"

New Guinea Volcano Toll Over 3,000

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 23 (AP)—Government authorities said tonight 35 Europeans and more than 3,000 Papuan natives probably died in the volcanic flames and convulsions of New Guinea's "spirit" mountain.

The mountain is Mt. Lamington, 80 miles northeast of Port Moresby. It continued to gush smoke and flame today after six explosions, from Thursday to Sunday, blew off its entire north face and seared the jungle for 10 miles about.

Australian officials gave this summary of possible the greatest natural disaster in this part of the world this century:

The native death toll probably will exceed 3,000, and casualties may reach 4,000.

No hope held for the survival of 35 Europeans.

Nimitz To Head Security Board Truman-Created

Will Study Operation Of Loyalty Program

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — President Truman today set up a big name board to find ways of guarding the nation against Communist treason, espionage and sabotage while safeguarding "our historic liberties."

Chester Nimitz

Among other things, the board will have power to sift Sen. McCarthy's Communists-in-government charges, though Mr. Truman emphasized its scope is far broader than the activities of the federal government. He defined the board's task as finding "the wisest balance that can be struck between security and freedom."

The President named Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz to head the group which he called "a commission on internal security and individual rights." He said eight other "distinguished citizens" will be chosen on "a nonpartisan basis."

While the Chief Executive, in a 1,200-word statement announcing his action, never made reference to the charges by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) which set off a heated controversy in Congress and over the nation, the move has at least the effect of a response to the McCarthy drive.

For instance Mr. Truman specified that in its investigation the new board may go as far as it wishes into individual case files in the government's loyalty and security program. McCarthy has demanded that secret government files be examined. He has charged there was a "whitewash" of his charges of Red infiltration into the administration and especially into the State Department.

A Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee under former Sen. Tydings (D-Md) held, after weeks of hearings filled with fireworks, that McCarthy had failed to prove his case.

McCarthy contended he had proved his charges and urged that if there were any gaps in the proof it was because he and the committee had been denied access to the "raw" files on FBI and other investigations of individals.

The "whitewash" charges were aired in the Maryland election in in which Tydings lost his Senate seat in November to Repblican John Butler.

Enemy Tries To Turn End Of U. N. Line

U. S. Patrol Drives North Of Wonju

TOKYO, Wednesday, Jan. 24 (AP)—The emboldened Communist air force sent 16 to 20 Russian-made jets against 32 U. S. Thunderjets today over North Korea. One enemy jet probably was destroyed and three damaged.

TOKYO, Wednesday, Jan. 24 (AP)—Allied forces fought in the streets of Yongwol Tuesday with Korean Communists who are trying to turn the east end of the United Nations defense line in barren Central Korea.

While ground action along the rest of the front dropped off to its lowest point in several weeks, 33 U. S. Thunderjets tangled with 18 to 28 Russian-made jets in what the Air Force labeled history's greatest jet air battle.

Without being touched by an enemy bullet, the Thunderjets shot down at least four Red MIG-15s in a 30-minute melee over Northwest Korea's Yalu River boundary. One more MIG was probably destroyed and four others were damaged.

Quiet In Wonju Sector

While the fighting raged in Yongwol, the enemy showed no willingness to fight in the Wonju sector, 31 air miles to the northwest.

For the sixth time in seven days an Allied task force paced by tanks Tuesday overran Wonju airfield and secured its frozen rice-paddy runways. They went on and seized battered Wonju itself.

Then a U. S. tank patrol stabbed five miles north of Central Korea's key highway hub without finding a Communist concentration willing to fight.

Last night the Allied forces withdrew to defense positions southeast of Wonju.

Wonju—a battered no-man's-land—has been the scene of vicious see-saw fighting for the last two weeks.

The persistent Allied pokes into Wonju plainly were discouraging a Communist buildup for an offensive through that key gateway to the road-rail network to the south.

Infiltrations Stamped Out

Southeast of Wonju, however, the U. S. Seventh Division and other Allied units were kept busy stamping out groups of Korean Reds filtering southward into the valleys.

The tungsten mining town of Yongwol was the key to this southward flanking movement by the Reds.

Details were lacking on the street fighting there.

Rosie O'Donnell Gets 'Reminder'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Air Force today reminded Maj. Gen. Emmett (Rosie) O'Donnell, whose remarks about the atom bomb and China stirred a furor last week, that he "must use care" in what he says publicly.

Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, wrote O'Donnell he was confident, however, tht O'Donnell did not urge in a news conference the immediate use of a-bombs against Red China.

Vandenberg's letter to the commander of the 15th Air Force, who returned last week from his post as chief of the bomber command in the Far East, apparently was intended to close the incident.

In making it public, the Air Force gave no details as to what investigation Vandenberg had made.

Apparently it involved some very close calculations as to the meaning of the words O'Donnell used; that is whether he had actually urged use of the bomb.

U. N. Anti-Red Bloc May Be Even Weaker Than It Looks

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — There is a growing feeling among responsible officials here that the Whole United Nations coalition against Communist aggression in Korea — and perhaps elsewhere — may be even weaker than it looks.

The immediate cause for this feeling is the readiness with which Britain and France among other western nations snapped up yesterday Red China's latest Korean peace maneuver.

Around the State Department this maneuver was considered simply a ruse to delay and divide the U. N. majority which was about to condemn Red China as an aggressor in Korea. But the diplomats of other western nations claimed to see in it a genuine modification of China's previous rejection of a U. N. cease-fire proposal.

What the Chinese reportedly suggested, using India as an intermediary, was that instead of insisting that any negotiations on the Far East precede a cease-fire they would agree to a truce in the fighting while negotiations were underway.

State Department officials said that to confer under such a condition would be negotiating "with a gun at our heads." In private conversation they accused Britain and France of "clutching at straws" to find an easy way out of the Korean crisis even though in the long run it might prove the most costly way.

World's Largest Helicopter Tested

CULVER CITY, Calif., Jan. 23 (AP)—The world's largest helicopter, a mammoth jet-propelled eggbeater built for the U. S. Air Force by the Hughes Aircraft Co., was given ground tests today.

The helicopter, the XH-17, was damaged during tests last June 22 when it tore loose from its moorings. The Air Force announced that after complete ground tests the craft will be made ready to fly by the addition of a flight control system, tail boom, tail rotor and horizontal stabilizer.

The craft, which has a rotor about 120 feet in length, is designed for short range moving of military equipment such as trucks, tanks and bridge sections.

U. S. Aid Funds Aid Red Bloc

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Sen. Herbert R. O'Conor said today that American aid funds have been used by some Western European nations to send materials useful in war to nations behind the iron curtain.

A couple of hours earlier, an American aluminum manufacturer testified to a House committee that Canada has been shipping aluminum "almost continuously" to Poland, Czechoslovakia and other Soviet-dominated nations.

O'Conor, a Maryland Democrat, heads a Senate subcommittee which repeatedly has expressed concern over the export and train shipment of strategic goods to potential enemies of the western world.

After a meeting of his committee with Assistant Secretary of State Willard L. Thorp, O'Conor said some Western European countries have used U. S. recovery funds to build factories that sent "war potential goods" to areas dominated by Moscow.

BRENTWOOD, Eng., Jan. 23 (AP)—The Most Rev. Dr. Arthur Doubleday, Roman Catholic bishop of Brentwood, died today.

Senate Gives Its O.K. To Johnston As ESA Director

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Senate gave its o.k. to Eric Johnston as economic stabilization administrator and to William H. Harrison as defense production administrator today, opening the way for a series of fast economic actions that will affect the humblest citizen.

Some officials said they hoped the expected nationwide freeze of prices can be issued by Friday, but they added there is no certainty of this.

Rubber Cuts Loom

Meantime, the government moved to conserve an article vital in the defense effort—natural rubber. The National Production Authority announced that rubber manufacturers will meet with officials tomorrow to begin drafting recommendations for saving the natural product.

This indicated further cuts in the natural rubber content of auto tires, and perhaps elimination of its use in some other products. At present 65 per cent of the rubber used in a passenger car tide may be natural rubber.

No Roll Call On Johnston

The Senate acted without a roll call in confirming Johnston and Harrison. They will serve under Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson in the government's revamped setup to mobilize the nation's economic resources in the world emergency.

Johnston, as head of the Economic Stabilization Agency, is expected to issue promptly an order turning over to the price and wage offices of the ESA the power to proceed with the sweeping price-wage controls that members of Congress have been demanding.

Train, Truck Crash; 18 Die

TORTOSA, Spain, Jan. 23 (AP)—A collision of a passenger train and truck killed 18 persons and injured 28 others near here today. The locomotive and six coaches on the Valencia train rolled down a steep embankment.

Air Defense Chiefs Can Call Out Guard

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Commanders of the eastern and western U. S. air defense forces were given authority today to call up Air National Guard units in a national emergency.

Secretary of the Air Force Finletter announced the action and said it is intended to prevent any loss of time "when an enemy air attack is imminent."

Before last July, the President had the sole right to order any National Guard units into active service. Shortly after the Korean war started, this power was delegated to the secretaries of the military services.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 23 (AP)—San Diego is bulging at the seams again. The City Council says it needs 20,000 additional homes within 90 days.

Gls-To-Europe Skirmish Won By Trumanites

Wherry Resolution Sent To Committees

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The administration won an important skirmish on the troops-for-Europe issue today when the Senate sent the Wherry resolution to committees for study.

The resolution, offered by Republican Floor Leader Wherry of Nebraska, would put the Senate on record as disapproving sending U. S. soldiers to join an international defense force until Congress has laid down a policy on the subject.

By sending it to committees, administration men figured that they were in position to rewrite it or scrap it entirely and substitute language approving the dispatch of troops to help build defenses against Communism.

"Ike's" Report Awaited

Today's action, taken by unanimous consent of the Senate, sidetracked a showdown at least until Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the proposed defense army, reports to Congress next week.

Eisenhower is scheduled to address an informal session of Senate and House members—possibly next Tuesday or Wednesday—on his survey of Europe's readiness to fight together, if necessary, against Soviet aggression.

The Wherry resolution was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee and the Armed Forces Committee. Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex), quarterbacking the opposition to the resolution, suggested blandly that it may die there.

In a sharp exchange, Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told Wherry he could not promise to return the measure to the Senate floor at any time.

Wherry Revised Resolution

Wherry had originally framed his resignation to declare it was "the sense of the Senate" that no American ground forces should be sent to bolster the projected 1,000,000-man international army until Congress has adopted a policy on such action.

President Truman has said he will consult with congressional leaders before sending U. S. troops to Europe, but has insisted that as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces he has full authority, on his own, to dispatch American soldiers anywhere in the world.

Wherry revised his resolution so that it would require the Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees to study his proposal and report back to the Senate by Feb. 2.

French Police Will Block Red Anti-"Ike" Rally

PARIS, Jan. 23 (AP)—France tonight alerted 6,500 police and thousands more bayonet-carrying soldiers to prevent a Communist demonstration scheduled for late tomorrow against Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The French government has outlawed the demonstration. The Communists, however, announced their determination to go ahead. Reliable sources said Moscow had rapped French party members across the knuckles for fizzling of anti-Eisenhower manifestations here when the General flew to Europe two weeks ago and ordered them to try again.

Interior Ministry officials ordered mobilization of all available police and militia in the Paris area.

Units of the tough, riot-seasoned Republican Security Guard were ordered to duty tomorrow night in the area of the Arc De Triomphe, near which stands the General's temporary offices as Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe (SHAPE). The offices are in the Hotel Astoria.

Gen. Eisenhower, who returned to Paris today from Frankfurt, appeared unconcerned about the Communist threats. He held a series of staff conferences, visited Versailles and received British Field Marshal Lord Montgomery.

French authorities, however, were frankly worried about the possibility of a riot. Two streets in the immediate area are under repair, with huge piles of bricks and paving blocks lying about.

"That's their ammunition," an official said.

"Glimmer Of Hope"

New Guinea Volcano Toll Over 3,000

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 23 (AP)—Government authorities said tonight 35 Europeans and more than 3,000 Papuan natives probably died in the volcanic flames and convulsions of New Guinea's "spirit" mountain.

The mountain is Mt. Lamington, 80 miles northeast of Port Moresby. It continued to gush smoke and flame today after six explosions, from Thursday to Sunday, blew off its entire north face and seared the jungle for 10 miles about.

Australian officials gave this summary of possible the greatest natural disaster in this part of the world this century:

The native death toll probably will exceed 3,000, and casualties may reach 4,000.

No hope held for the survival of 35 Europeans.

Nimitz To Head Security Board Truman-Created

Will Study Operation Of Loyalty Program

Chester Nimitz

Among other things, the board will have power to sift Sen. McCarthy's Communists-in-government charges, though Mr. Truman emphasized its scope is far broader than the activities of the federal government. He defined the board's task as finding "the wisest balance that can be struck between security and freedom."

The President named Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz to head the group which he called "a commission on internal security and individual rights." He said eight other "distinguished citizens" will be chosen on "a nonpartisan basis."

While the Chief Executive, in a 1,200-word statement announcing his action, never made reference to the charges by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) which set off a heated controversy in Congress and over the nation, the move has at least the effect of a response to the McCarthy drive.

For instance Mr. Truman specified that in its investigation the new board may go as far as it wishes into individual case files in the government's loyalty and security program. McCarthy has demanded that secret government files be examined. He has charged there was a "whitewash" of his charges of Red infiltration into the administration and especially into the State Department.

A Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee under former Sen. Tydings (D-Md) held, after weeks of hearings filled with fireworks, that McCarthy had failed to prove his case.

McCarthy contended he had proved his charges and urged that if there were any gaps in the proof it was because he and the committee had been denied access to the "raw" files on FBI and other investigations of individals.

The "whitewash" charges were aired in the Maryland election in in which Tydings lost his Senate seat in November to Repblican John Butler.

Enemy Tries To Turn End Of U. N. Line

U. S. Patrol Drives North Of Wonju

TOKYO, Wednesday, Jan. 24 (AP)—The emboldened Communist air force sent 16 to 20 Russian-made jets against 32 U. S. Thunderjets today over North Korea. One enemy jet probably was destroyed and three damaged.

TOKYO, Wednesday, Jan. 24 (AP)—Allied forces fought in the streets of Yongwol Tuesday with Korean Communists who are trying to turn the east end of the United Nations defense line in barren Central Korea.

While ground action along the rest of the front dropped off to its lowest point in several weeks, 33 U. S. Thunderjets tangled with 18 to 28 Russian-made jets in what the Air Force labeled history's greatest jet air battle.

Without being touched by an enemy bullet, the Thunderjets shot down at least four Red MIG-15s in a 30-minute melee over Northwest Korea's Yalu River boundary. One more MIG was probably destroyed and four others were damaged.

Quiet In Wonju Sector

While the fighting raged in Yongwol, the enemy showed no willingness to fight in the Wonju sector, 31 air miles to the northwest.

For the sixth time in seven days an Allied task force paced by tanks Tuesday overran Wonju airfield and secured its frozen rice-paddy runways. They went on and seized battered Wonju itself.

Then a U. S. tank patrol stabbed five miles north of Central Korea's key highway hub without finding a Communist concentration willing to fight.

Last night the Allied forces withdrew to defense positions southeast of Wonju.

Wonju—a battered no-man's-land—has been the scene of vicious seesaw fighting for the last two weeks.

The persistent Allied pokes into Wonju plainly were discouraging a Communist buildup for an offensive through that key gateway to the road-rail network to the south.

Infiltrations Stamped Out

Southeast of Wonju, however, the U. S. Seventh Division and other Allied units were kept busy stamping out groups of Korean Reds filtering southward into the valleys.

The tungsten mining town of Yongwol was the key to this southward flanking movement by the Reds.

Details were lacking on the street fighting there.

Rosie O'Donnell Gets 'Reminder'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Air Force today reminded Maj. Gen. Emmett (Rosie) O'Donnell, whose remarks about the atom bomb and China stirred a furor last week, that he "must use care" in what he says publicly.

Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, wrote O'Donnell he was confident, however, tht O'Donnell did not urge in a news conference the immediate use of a-bombs against Red China.

Vandenberg's letter to the commander of the 15th Air Force, who returned last week from his post as chief of the bomber command in the Far East, apparently was intended to close the incident.

In making it public, the Air Force gave no details as to what investigation Vandenberg had made.

Apparently it involved some very close calculations as to the meaning of the words O'Donnell used; that is whether he had actually urged use of the bomb.

U. S. War Hero's Daughters Given Gifts From Scotland

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Two little girls—daughter of a hero who died in Korea—today were given a piece of tartan cloth and a brooch by the wife of a Scottish coal miner.

Rose Marie, 6, and Joan, 3, daughters of the late Pfc. John J. McCormick, Collingdale, Pa., were handed the gifts in a ceremony at the British Embassy.

And thus ended a strange international story.

It started with Mrs. Rita Robertson of Fifeshire, Scotland, who had small means but a large heart. She wanted to do something to show her appreciation of the American boys fighting in Korea.

So she wrote a letter to the U. S. Consul General in Glascow, saying she'd like to give the tartan cloth to some little girl, or, as she put it, to "some wee girl in America whose daddy she has lost in the war in Korea."

It was about this time that Pfc. McCormick was much in the news. He had written a letter to Rose Marie and Joannie which got a lot of publicity.

In the letter he said:

"So I have to help fight these men and keep them from coming where you and mummie live. It might take a long while, and maybe daddy will have to go and help God in heaven, and if I do, I always want you both to be good for mummie, because she is the best mummie in the whole wide world."

Shortly after writing this letter, McCormick was killed.

"Jim Crow" Repealer Tentatively Approved By House Of Delegates

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP) — The latest in a long history of bills to repeal Maryland's "Jim Crow" law slipped unobtrusively to tentative approval in the House today.

The proposed repealer, introduced by the Fourth District delegation from Baltimore, passed without notice through a series of committee reports. It was adopted without dissent.

Some delegates said later they were not aware the measure was up for consideration.

It still faces a final vote in the House. If accepted, it would go to the Senate for a decisive vote.

Senators have called for repeal in the last two sessions of the General Assembly. But delegates have voted to retain the ancient law, which requires segregation of whites and negroes on intrastate railroads and steamboats.

The statute actually is ineffective, except on Chesapeake Bay ferries. Opponents have attacked it as an outworn "Jim Crow" symbol.

Chairman Dempsey of the House Judiciary Committee predicted delegates would pass the repealer when it returns for a final vote.

The House passed and sent to the Senate four measures, including one to permit reckless driving prosecutions of street car motormen.

Senators cleared three bills. One was a recommendation by the Tax Survey Commission to scrap the State Board of Examiners of horseshoers.

U. N. Anti-Red Bloc May Be Even Weaker Than It Looks

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — There is a growing feeling among responsible officials here that the Whole United Nations coalition against Communist aggression in Korea — and perhaps elsewhere — may be even weaker than it looks.

The immediate cause for this feeling is the readiness with which Britain and France among other western nations snapped up yesterday Red China's latest Korean peace maneuver.

Around the State Department this maneuver was considered simply a ruse to delay and divide the U. N. majority which was about to condemn Red China as an aggressor in Korea. But the diplomats of other western nations claimed to see in it a genuine modification of China's previous rejection of a U. N. cease-fire proposal.

What the Chinese reportedly suggested, using India as an intermediary, was that instead of insisting that any negotiations on the Far East precede a cease-fire they would agree to a truce in the fighting while negotiations were underway.

State Department officials said that to confer under such a condition would be negotiating "with a gun at our heads." In private conversation they accused Britain and France of "clutching at straws" to find an easy way out of the Korean crisis even though in the long run it might prove the most costly way.

Church Merger Plan Hits Snags

CINCINNATI, Jan. 23 (AP)—A plan for merging seven Protestant church groups with upwards of 14,000,000 members into a United Church of Christ quickly hit two snags today.

The plan, drafted by a conference on church union, was made public at the opening of a two-day meeting of representatives of the seven affected denominations and "observers" from several other groups.

The first difficulty encounted was a New York Supreme Court decision of a year ago which enjoins the General Council of the Congregational Christian Church from "merging or uniting itself with x x x any body or organization whatsoever."

Also causing trouble at the end of the first day's session of the conference was a sentence in the plan itself which say, "No fundamental changes in the structure or procedure of local churches are required as a condition of entrance into the United Church."

Further consideration of that sentence was deferred until tomorrow."

Alleged Band Robber Vanishes From Cell

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Jan. 23 (AP)—Kenneth Kitts, 33, wanted in at least four states on bank robbery and burglary charges, vanished today from his cell in the Linn County jail here.

No bars had been sawed. No holes dug.

It wasn't even disclosed—if known—exactly when Kitts disappeared. He was first missed noon today, but was last definitely seen about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Kitts, a federal prisoner, had been brought into U. S. District Court here just yesterday in connection with the $38,000 Laurens, Ia., bank robbery last fall. He was to have been tried Feb. 12 for participating in it.

Palmer Bradner III, 2, died. His two sisters, Pamella, 4, and Cherry, 3, are expected to recover.

The Public Information Office at Madigan Army Hospital announced the tragedy today.

Their father, Capt. Palmer Bradner, is attached to the Troop Carrier Command on the airlift at McChord Air Force base. He was overseas when the three children went through the medicine chest, sampling a mixture of notions, shampoos and aspirin.

Mrs. Bradner was washing clothes in the washroom of their trailer camp home.

Air Force Recruiting Will Resume Feb. 1

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Air Force today announced the resumption of volunteer enlistments Feb. 1.

Recruiting was halted last week to ease crowded conditions at Lackland, Tex., Air Force base.

Present schdules call for the admission of 1,200 recruits daily at Lackland, and 300 daily at the recently opened Sampson, N. Y., air training base. The Air Force said more trainees will be channeled to Sampson as soon as more buildings are completed there.

Contractor Says He Had Precedent For Starting Md. College Building

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP)—When he started an agricultural engineering building without written authorization, it wasn't the first time he did so at the Maryland State College for Negroes, a Cambridge contractor said today.

Charles Brohawn told a Senate investigating committee there were "eight jobs down there our records will show all started before we had signed contracts."

He was backed up by Dr. H. C. Byrd, University of Maryland president, in a contention that contractors usually don't wait for signed approval to begin work on state projects.

The stand that there was precedent for starting the agricultural building was emphasized in statements made to the committee by Brohawn and Byrd.

Brohawn claimed he's followed the custom on state projects other than at Princess Anne. He said, for example, his firm now was working on the Eastern Shore state hospital at Salisbury without a signed contract.

But John B. Funk, former state engineer, promptly submitted to the committee a copy of a written directive to start the work on Dec. 18. Funk added reports by field representatives of the State Department of Public Improvements show actual work started nine days later.

Brohawn, Byrd and Funk all were staging repeat appearances before the committee to find out why the contractor started the building which the Board of Public Works rejected on Jan. 8. They submitted statements to the committee at a closed session last night and returned today to answer questions submitted by the committee, press, and delegates.

George Washington knew why we needed a Stock Exchange

Under a buttonwood tree . . . in 1792, the third year of George Washington's first term as President . . . was the beginning of what is now the New York Stock Exchange.

To pay for the Revolutionary War, "stocks" had to be sold by the Government.

But people were naturally unwilling to invest in securities unless they could be easily resold. A market place was needed.

So a few businessmen who traded in securities decided to meet every day under the branches of an old buttonwood tree—only a few blocks from where the New York Stock Exchange now stands.

Today, the New York Stock Exchange is basically the same in purpose as in the days when George Washington knew it. It is a place where the securities of our largest and best-known businesses are bought and sold at auction.

What many people do not know is that the Stock Exchange does not buy or sell securities, or in any way set the prices. The Exchange's function is to provide a national market place. Handling investors' orders for a few shares, or hundreds, is the day-to-day business of its members and member firms.

Information on America's leading businesses, their financial picture, their earnings and dividend records can be had from member firms of the New York Stock Exchange. Their offices are located in 388 cities. Their facts and experience are yours without obligation.

George Washington knew why we needed a Stock Exchange

Under a buttonwood tree . . . in 1792, the third year of George Washington's first term as President . . . was the beginning of what is now the New York Stock Exchange.

To pay for the Revolutionary War, "stocks" had to be sold by the Government.

But people were naturally unwilling to invest in securities unless they could be easily resold. A market place was needed.

So a few businessmen who traded in securities decided to meet every day under the branches of an old buttonwood tree—only a few blocks from where the New York Stock Exchange now stands.

Today, the New York Stock Exchange is basically the same in purpose as in the days when George Washington knew it. It is a place where the securities of our largest and best-known businesses are bought and sold at auction.

What many people do not know is that the Stock Exchange does not buy or sell securities, or in any way set the prices. The Exchange's function is to provide a national market place. Handling investors' orders for a few shares, or hundreds, is the day-to-day business of its members and member firms.

Information on America's leading businesses, their financial picture, their earnings and dividend records can be had from member firms of the New York Stock Exchange. Their offices are located in 388 cities. Their facts and experience are yours without obligation.

Marine Reserves In High School To Leave Next Month

Twenty young Marine Reserves, seniors in two local high schools, are nearing the end of the school year under an accelerated program aimed at completing their courses before induction next month.

Nine of the Reserves are at Fort Hill High School and 11 at Allegany. All have received notices to report.

While completing work toward their high school diplomas, none of the "sheepskins" is to be presented until June. At that time, parents of the youths will probably receive them in their son's names at regular graduation exercises of the two institutions.

At Fort Hill, a brief ceremony is planned during a regular assembly in tribute to the Reserves and home rooms are sponsoring social gatherings in their honor, Victor D. Heisey principal, said. The boys' Hi-Y Club of the school is honoring the nine future Marines at a dance at the Shrine Club next Wednesday. Parents of the boys are invited and Tommy Smithem's Orchestra will play. The dance will be semi-formal.

The Fort Hill group will leave February 4, 5 and 7.

Leaving February 4 will be Edward Harris Malone, son of Mrs. Anna Malone, 15 Oak Street; and James Allan Shaffer, son of Allan J. Shaffer, 6 Elder Street.

Leaving February 5 are Leo L. Reynolds, son of L. L. Reynolds, Route 4; Robert Mullanex, son of Lester Mullanex, Route 4, Oldtown Road; Leonard Franklin Glenn, son of George F. Knisley, 117 Blaul Avenue; Charles Scott Mellon, son of Mrs. Catherine Mellon, 122 Thomas Street; Melvin Lester Durst son of Lester Durst, 322 Crawford Street; and Clyde Eugene Mackereth, son of L. W. Mackereth, Route 4, Oldtown Road.

The ninth Fort Hill Reservist, James Don Ridenbaugh, son of Mrs. Sophia Ridenbaugh, 307 Harrison Street, will leave February 7.

At Allegany High School, Principal Ralph R. Webster said the Reserves have practically taken the farewell party into their own hands.

The youths have asked and received permission to hold an assembly January 31 at which they will present their impressions of a Marine "boot camp." Webster said the boys have written the script themselves.

Dates when they are to report were not available.

Included in the Allegany group are: Sterl Edward Armentrout, son of F. E. Armentrout, 659 Greene Street; Kenneth William (Mike) Birmingham, son of Eugene B. Birmingham, 217 Paca Street; Robert Eugene Anderson, son of W. B. Harshaberger, LaVale; Lloyd Robert Diehl son of L. W. Diehl, 241 Columbia Street; Arthur William Gardner, son of Mrs. J. C. Gardner, 505 Magruder Street; Carl Lawrence Jenkins, son of F. Jenkins, 531 O'Neil Street; Donald Nevin Shrader, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Shrader, Corriganville; Bernard Junior Spencer, son of Mrs. Martha Nazelrod, 111 Lennox Place; Alexander Swede, son of Alex Swede, 33 Henderson Avenue; and John Henry Sweitzer, son of J. H. Sweitzer, 7 Pear Street.

Whetzel Draws 30-Day Sentence

Accused of fleecing several housewives here, Alvie O. Whetzel, about 30, of Keyser, W. Va., drew a 30-day jail sentence yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court after he pleaded guilty to a larceny charge.

Whetzel was taken to the State's Attorney's office and identified as the "fake huckster" by Mrs. Virginia Sweitzer, 101 Pioneer Place.

The prosecuting witness said Whetzel appeared at her home January 6 and offered to sell country sausage, ham and other produce. Mrs. Sweitzer reported she gave him $5 and he left to get change and her purchase.

Detective Thomas J. See, who investigated, said Whetzel "kept on going." Descriptions furnished by at least two victims led to his arrest yesterday afternoon by local police.

Whetzel admitted he fleeced $2.75 from another woman identified by authorities as a "Mrs. Martin." Magistrate Peter J. Carpenti imposed the jail term after the prisoner said he was unable to make restitution.

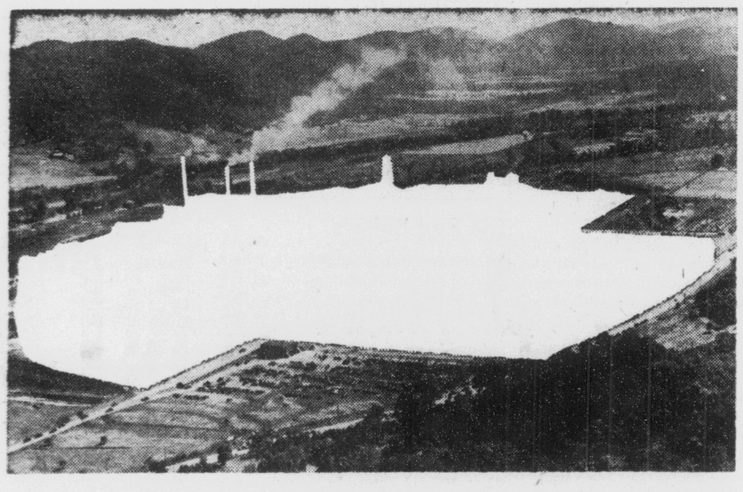
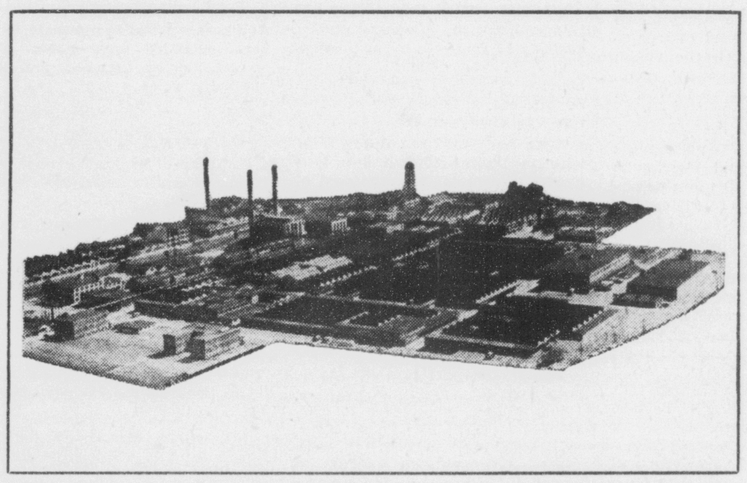
LET'S LOOK AT THE WAY AMCELLE EMPLOYEES USE CAPITAL

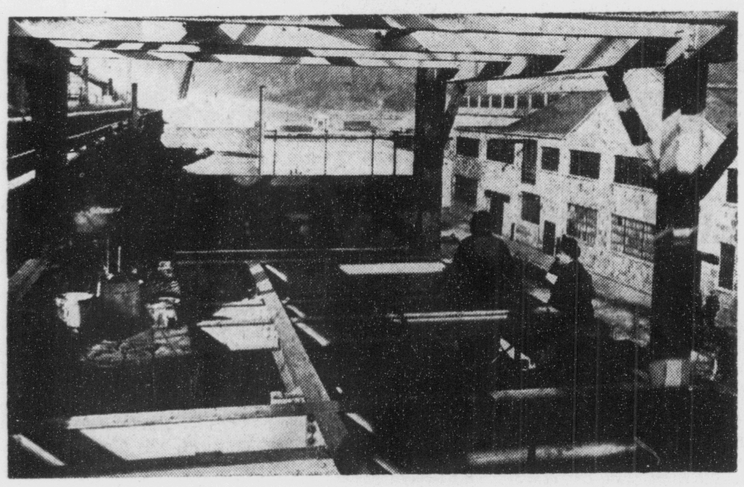
A lot of people have got into the habit of thinking that "Capital" employs "Labor." Actually, this is only half the story. In the United States "Labor" also employs "Capital." To take one example: a big tractor-truck requires the outlay of several thousand dollars of Capital, but it needs an operator to make it worth anything. On the other hand, the operator now using the truck couldn't make much of a living transporting goods on his back. Let's turn the picture of Capital employing Labor around, and see how Labor employs Capital.



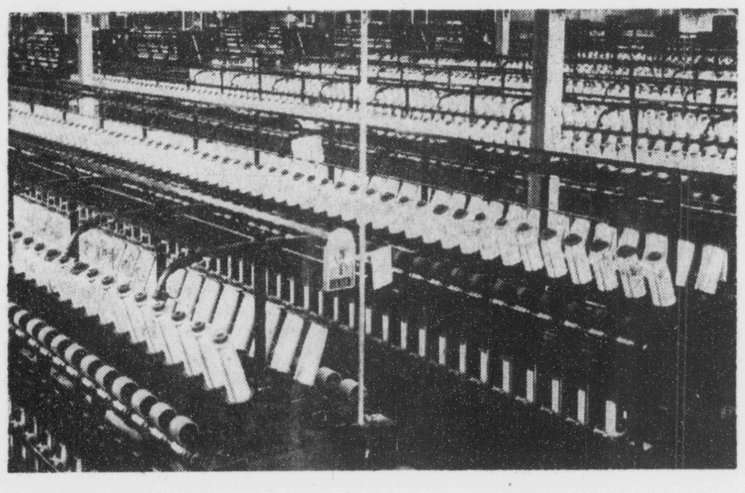
Let's suppose that some day the men and women of Amcelle would come to work and find that the buildings and machines and equipment they were accustomed to use had vanished from the earth. There's one thing, however, that would not have been lost. These Amcelle people would not have forgotten how to make acetate yarn. So let's also suppose they decide to create jobs for themselves by starting the operation up again on their own.



They don't even consider trying to make yarn by hand methods, for yarn made this way would cost far more than the fabled "cloth of gold" of the Middle Ages. You need highly specialized equipment to make cellulose acetate, and to perform all the spinning, twisting, coning and other operations if the price of the yarn is to be kept at a figure customers are able and willing to pay.



Now some tools are simple and a man can furnish his own, but when these Amcelle people estimate the replacement cost of buildings and equipment they find they need about $75,000,000, an average of $14,000 per job. Not everybody has this kind of money, so they go out and find folks from whom they can "hire" or "rent" the necessary capital. They offer these investors a "share" in the business.



Naturally these investors expect a return on their money, otherwise they'd spend it on things for themselves, rather than on "tools" needed to produce acetate yarn. They get their return, however, only after wages, raw materials, maintenance, depreciation, taxes and all other costs have been paid and a sum set aside which can be used for emergencies and to provide for future development.

THE WAY WE AMERICANS GET OUR PRODUCTION EQUIPMENT IS IMPORTANT

Here in America we get equipment and machines necessary to start a business by pooling the savings of a lot of people; then we continue to get better "tools" by plowing back part of the earnings into the business.

Our American system isn't perfect yet, but with it Americans have been able to earn more and have more than any other people in history. More freedom, too. Most Americans think this is pretty important.

Resisting The Flood

"You men have made such a mess of the world that you ought to let the women see what they can do." This cry, heard from men as well as women, has not as yet been translated into action. In the field of economics more and more readers are coming to look for Barbara Ward's latest book, as her advice sounds more practical and more encouraging than what the male economists are offering. Miss Ward, only 36, is assistant editor of The Economist, a noted British weekly, and is read with great attention by the experts in the field. She has lectured in this country and written for our magazines. She is distinctly someone to keep track of.

Her recent book, "Policy for the West," does not discount the seriousness of the Communist menace. She thinks that the way to meet it is the way in which a wise business man meets a dangerous competitor: he improves the quality of his own goods and services. Give the rest of the world something better than what the Communists offer, and the victory can be won.

This will require constant effort. She puts this need in memorable words:

"No Dutchman expects the sea miraculously to abandon its ceaseless attack upon the shores of Holland. He mans the dykes instead. So it is with communism. Like a force of nature it will continue, for some time at least, to pour through the world, lapping at the free world's defenses and seeking by every tactic of infiltration to trickle through the barriers, to crumble the earth that is soft and suck down the wood that has grown rotten. But where the dykes are strong and the banks well built, the pressure will be made in vain. The floods can be controlled and deflected, the menace contained."

Here are both strength and wisdom.

75 Years Of Baseball

Connie Mack is just an infant after all. The 86-year-old retired former manager of the Philadelphia Athletics was not scheduled to be the oldest guest present at the National League's celebration of its 75th birthday. All living player members of the Baseball Hall of Fame were on the invitation list, and many old-time players. The dean of the former players is the 91-year-old Arlie Latham, a star third baseman for Cincinnati and St. Louis in the nineties, famous also for his antics.

The next oldest former player is younger than Mack. He is the 81-year-old Kid Nichols, the unquestioned king of all pitchers when he worked for Boston in the nineties.

Baseball, like taxes, seems to have been with us always. It is odd to think that the first professional organization dates back only to 1876. There were teams for at least thirty years earlier, notably the Cincinnati Reds of 1869, who did not lose a game until some time in 1870. These teams were soon disbanded, however, and scheduled games at irregular intervals. The formation of a regular league ensured that every member team would meet every other team an equal number of times and provided disciplinary machinery for expelling crooked players. Three such were thrown out only a year or two after the game started, and the example proved salutary.

Nowadays a major league believes it necessary to have its members located in the nation's largest cities. The National League did not always feel that way, or perhaps could not arrange it. At any rate its membership at times has included such smaller cities as Albany and Troy, New York, Worcester, Massachusetts, Providence, Rhode Island, and Hartford, Connecticut.

Too Close For Comfort

The final figures of the the 1950 election, jut now made public, show that 91 members of the House of Representatives won their seats by a margin of less than five per cent of the total vote. In eight cases the winners did not even receive an actual majority of the ballots cast but owe their success to the fact that there were more than two candidates in the contest.

This report of results not only indicates the closeness of the last election but points to the principal battle ground of 1952 Both parties will now proceed to do the spadework for special campaign efforts in the districts of the 54 Republicans and 37 Democrats who barely made the grade last November. The representatives, if they contemplate running for re-election, will watch their steps and keep their political fences in good repair.

An awareness of 91 representatives that they were not overwhelming favorites in the last election is not conducive to a statesmanlike attitude toward public questions. The temptation to play at least a certain amount of personal politics is always present.

That is the unfortunate but inevitable aftermath of a close election. But the same could be said, with equal truth, of an election that isn't close.

Safeguarding Museums

Museums in the large cities of the country are studying the question of protecting their collections from a possible enemy attack. The New York Museum of Art has begun crating valuable objects in preparation for hiding them.

The committee of trustees of the Chicago Art Institute has been working on a defense project for some months but the institute's collection remains intact. A committee of the American Association of Museums is working on the problem of safeguarding art and other treasures.

Since the destruction of the museum in Hamburg, Germany, in the late war, the Natural History Museum of Chicago has No. 1 collections in a number of fields, according to Col. Clifford C. Gregg, director. Plans are being made to protect many irreplaceable objects in an emergency.

Bouncing Boxes

Parachute troops of the recent war gave the world the spectacle of men tumbling out of the doors of planes to float earthward beneath a sea of billowing white parachutes. Now there is something new. The Air Force is testing a big container which can be dumped from an airplane and lowered to the ground by parachutes without damage, and which will land so easily and safely that it can be used to carry both men and their equipment. It is supposed to drop a complete squad, with guns and ammunition, in a single package, more quickly and safely than with individual parachutes.

This development really sounds like something, and should be useful to the commercial world as well as to the military.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Keep The Blood Moving In Frostbite

IN THE FUTURE it may be possible to prevent frostbite by taking a pill. This capsule would contain an anti-clotting drug to keep the blood from congealing in the frozen capillaries, thereby averting gangrene. This is even simpler than the old and discarded remedy of rubbing the icy parts with snow.

The idea of using anti-coagulants is not as far fetched as it may seem. For several years heparin, for example, has been administered hypodermically to discourage clotting of the blood in conditions in which the formation of clots in the blood vessels proved troublesome. If the drug is successful in these disorders, why wouldn't it have the same effect in frostbite? Well, it does, and in some instances the results have been amazing. One victim was saved by injections of heparin even tho he had been lying in the street at least 14 hours. His legs were extremely vulnerable because he wore low shoes and thin socks.

To be effective, heparin must be injected. It acts fast but dissipates within a few hours. Dicumarol, another anti-clotting drug, can be employed orally but two days pass before it starts to work. Once in the system, it may last for days. These are the chief differences between the two products. It has been predicted that a satisfactory preparation is on its way which can be taken by mouth and will act within an hour.

In simple frostbite the fingers, toes, nose, or ears generally are affected. The parts that are nipped become painful, blanched, and numb but the damage is slight and the end result is comparable to a first degree burn. Recovery is the rule and the less done to the affected tissues, the better. Blood returns to the frozen parts when the victim enters a comfortably warm room. Gentle massage and warm drinks (not necessarily alcoholic) are of value.

Most serious frostbite needs more expert care. Too rapid thawing is not preferred altho this is a debatable point in view of recent experimental work. At any rate, the benumbed parts are on the spot. Cold has left the muscles, tendons, nerves, and other structures bloodless and unless nourishment is forthcoming, they are likely to starve to death. This means gangrene. As a result, the exposed areas must be handled gingerly to avoid further injury or any changes that might alter the delecate balance between life and death.

• — • — •

The best plan is to lie down and elevate the overexposed parts on a pillow; careful cleansing with soap and water forestalls the possibility of infection at a later date. Then the involved areas are wrapped in several layers of soft wool or bandage to protect them from further injury. Warm coffee, tea, cocoa, or even alcohol may be used to stimulate and dilate the chilled blood vessels. The physician should be called because it may be essential to administer drugs that improve the circulation, particularly since we now know that the anti-clotting drug, heparin, will work. There are more don'ts than do's in the treatment of frostbite. Don't rub the parts with snow or place them in hot water. Don't take a hot shower or use a hot water bottle or heating pad. Don't apply ointments or salves because the damage is inside and not outside.

TOMORROW: Hidden amebic infection.

ABDOMINAL ENLARGEMENT

Mrs. J. writes: Why do so many women develop an enlarged abdomen after an operation in which several organs were removed? I should think a flat tummy would result from taking out these structures.

REPLY

Enlargement may occur if the operation has left the abdominal wall weakened or a hernia has developed. These are the exceptions, however, because in most instances there is no bulging subsequent to surgery. It is not the abdominal contents that cause a bay window; this is caused by layers of blubber in the abdominal wall. Even if one kidney, one-half the stomach and intestine, the gall bladder, the appendix, and the pelvic organs were removed, this would not make a fat woman thin.

DIABETIC COMA

M. R. writes: Why do diabetics go into coma? My nephew does it all the time.

REPLY

Comas occur because the diabetic does not take care of himself. Either he does not adhere to a diet or does not take enough insulin. The amount of sugar in the blood increases to such an extent that acidosis and finally coma ensue. This is a serious condition and in the days before insulin, 50 per cent of all victims died from this complication. Today, it is rare, indicating that your nephew is the exception to the rule.

BI-PARTISANSHIP STARTS LOOKING UP

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Congress Wants To Protect "Seed" Of Nation; Bender Meets New Variety Of Lobbyist; White House To Blame For Cost-Of-Living Zoom.

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—One of the big things bothering Congress about drafting 18-year-olds is the problem which Winston Churchill pounded home on President Roosevelt when he opposed a second front across the English Channel.

"I do not," said the Prime Minister in typical Churchillian language, "propose to lose the seed of the British Empire."

What he had in mind was the fact that in 1914, the cream of Britain's young men had been shipped across the English Channel and mowed down in Flanders. Those first waves of troops that went to Belgium included the best-trained men in the nation.

Today it is a recognized fact in both England and France that national leadership is more difficult because of those 1914-15 casualties. Men who were 18 and 19 during the Battle of Flanders would be 54 and 55 today, and in their prime for leadership. But their ranks were seriously decimated.

In the United States today the question of drafting 18-year-olds is serious for another reason. They are what are known as depression babies—born during the nadir of the depression in 1932.

In those depression years babies were fewer. People couldn't afford them. And many congressmen now feel we cannot afford to lose too much of the "seed" of the nation.

This also applies to 19-year-olds, and will apply to the youngsters who become 18 next year and the year after. All are depression babies. That's why more thought is being given to some system whereby education can be continued along with military training.

Prayer—Not Pressure

A group of lobbyists who specialize in prayer—instead of pressure—called on GOP Congressman George Bender of Ohio the other day.

The delegation included Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Mennonites and members of other faiths from Wooster, Ohio. After talking over domestic and world problems with Bender, one of the visitors suggested:

"Let us kneel and pray that Congress will get the Divine guidance it needs in the days ahead."

Bender knelt with his callers.

"Those kind of lobbyists don't have to register with the clerk in the House," remarked the hefty Ohioan, who won back his congressional seat in November. "They are registered up yonder."

27-Cent Dollar

The housewives probably won't be surprised at this, though the figures look pretty bad on paper. However, the inescapable fact is that the 1939 dollar is now worth only 27 cents, when it comes to buying such everyday items as butter, coffee, cocoa, sugar, silk and print cloth.

This is shown in the price increases of 28 commodities, compiled daily by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

In other words, what a dollar would buy in 1939 now costs approximately $3.65. This is a measure of how the dollar's purchasing power has dwindled for the following commodities: Barley, burlap, butter, cocoa bean, coffee, copper, corn, cotton, cottonseed oil, flaxseed, hides, hogs, lard, lead, print cloth, rosin, rubber, shellac, silk, steel scrap, steers, sugar, tallow, tin, wheat, wool tops and zinc.

Who Killed Price Control

Members of the Administration will admit in their off-moments that blame for the present zooming cost of living goes straight up to the White House itself.

In the first place, the Republicans were smart enough to give the President all the power to control prices he wanted—and then some. And he has failed to use them. Congress extended these powers late last summer but they have lain dormant ever since.

Second, the President has failed to pick experienced men to handle price-wage control, though he had a handful of experts around the corner whom he could have called in overngiht.

However, Harry Truman has a strange quirk—psychiatrists might call it an inferiority complex — about using Roosevelt personnel. He wants to stand on his own feet. Probably this was the reason why he did not call in the men who grew up with price control and on the whole did an amazingly good job—Leon Henderson, Chester Bowles and Paul Porter.

Leon Henderson, who set up OPA offices all over the country in record time, is still in Washington as a consultant for private business. Chester Bowles has just finished a term as Governor of Connecticut. Paul Porter is practicing law. None are looking for trouble, much prefer to stick to their own knitting, but they would have helped out nonetheless—if asked. But they weren't even asked to help as consultants.

Instead, complete greenhorns were selected for the toughest job in the entire U. S. A.—controlling prices and wages and making people like it.

NOTE—Another wise counselor on the domestic economic front is Bernard M. Baruch, who also was left on the sidelines. The reason: Mr. Truman's yearning for letter-writing. He wrote Bernie one of his hottest.

Acheson and Seward

North Dakota's big, homespun Congressman Usher L. Burdick, a Republican, compares the current attacks on Secretary of State Dean Acheson with the Civil War attacks on William Henry Seward, also secretary of state.

"Let us turn over the musty pages of the War between the States," says Burdick. "We got licked twice at Bull Run and our army beat it back across the Potomac in a panic. Lincoln and his secretary of state, Seward, found themselves in a sea of criticism. Newspapers demanded the ouster of Seward and said Lincoln was not to be trusted. Lincoln stood firm, cool and collected. He kept his secretary of state and went about the job of winning the war."

The congressman, a writer of many historical books, cautions: "Remember what happened in this country before. Remember that cool heads lead the way to victory."

Deference To Farm Crops Reflects On Price Control

By MARK SULLIVAN

WE HAVE SEEN during the past seven months the evolution of the country's economy thrown out of gear by the emergency of war. In fact the process has been far from an orderly evolution, it has been an awkward pulling and hauling by forces and men.

Landmark dates are easy to identify. On June 26 came Korea. Some three weeks later President Truman sent Congress a message calling for controls over the country's economy. Congress enacted the controls Sept. 27. During ensuing weeks President Truman appointed administrators to exercise the controls, and tentative steps were taken toward controls over a few individual industries. By the third week in January the control administrators, hard-pressed by mounting inflation, were under necessity of embarking upon comprehensive controls. This is little more than to say they are ready to begin. The work of fully organizing the Economic Stabilization Agency will take some 18 months.

To recite all this is not to carp unnecessarily about delay, the job is enormous and complex. Yet it is a fact that while control and mobilization have been slow, inflation and rising prices have been fast. Between Dec. 15 and Jan. 2, retail prices of food reached a record high. Cost of living and inflation were out-pacing controls.

Given Special Deference

Some things that took place during the several months of motion toward stabilization were significant and disturbing. One was an immunity conferred on agriculture. In the writing of the Defense Production Act embracing controls over all industries and of aspects of the country's economy, the control agencies were given authority to put ceilings over prices. But the ceiling that could be put over prices of farm crops was strictly limited and defined. The definition was, like all aspects of government support of crop prices, extremely intricate.

Speaking loosely and subject to many variations the new Economic Stabilization Agency cannot put a ceiling over the price of a farm crop unless the ceiling is at least as high as either of two standards. One standard is the price in the open market during a period of last May and June. The other standard is parity price as determined by the Department of Agriculture.

In sum the new Economic Stabilization Agency cannot "freeze" the prices of farm crops unless Congress changes the law it passed last September. The immunity given agriculture is clearly a special deference paid to a single industry, and it is tenable to suppose that the deference given agriculture had a political motive in part at least. Because of the large part played by government support of crop prices in the spiral of rising cost of living, the picking out of agriculture for discriminatory favor is not promising for really effective check of rising prices generally.

Policy Contributed To Inflation

During the seven months between Korea in June and the inauguration of economic controls in January, there went on wage raises in industry after industry. In most cases they were followed by increases in prices of goods, and the sum of these was a large contribution to rising cost of living and increasing inflation. The defense Production Act gives the new control agencies power to "freeze" wages. It goes without saying that this will be done, otherwise inflation would go on into a higher and more dangerous stage.

The inflation that has been under way during seven months has been, of course, a war inflation. Yet to call it by that name would be misleading. What the country has been experiencing is a new stage of inflation piled on top of one that had been under way before Korea.

The earlier inflation was caused in large part by a policy of the Truman administration.

After the ending of the second world war and of the immense government borrowing to finance it, the country entered a condition which made it possible not only to cease borrowing but to begin reducing the government debt. For a brief period this was done. But in early 1949 Mr. Truman sent to Congress proposals calling for new and enlarged appropriations, the government debt began to rise again. Above that increase must now be piled an unforeseen increase due to war. The management of the government's fiscal operations calls for the utmost wisdom.

Moral Force Still Can Be Used In Behalf Of Peace

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2..—Senator Brien McMahon's proposal of a resolution to be adopted by the Senate expressing friendship for the Russian people is the first sign of common sense that has come in a long while from officialdom here on the subject of moral force as a preventive of war.

The assumption that, because armament has to be increased substantially to meet outbreaks of aggression, all other forms of peaceful effort to prevent war need not be pressed is erroneous. Yet whenever military measures take the limelight these other methods of avoiding war seem to be sidetracked.

With two world wars to remind mankind that military conquest does not really bring peace, there have been equally erroneous assumptions current that military strength has become futile or unnecessary. The truth is that defense armament is indispensable, and so is an armament of reason and genuine friendship expressed by one set of peoples to the other.

People Don't Want War

The Russian people are not bellicose by nature. They do not want war any more than do the people of the allied countries. Inasmuch as all people would prefer the ways of peace to armed hostilities, the real question always is why there should be any wars. Generally they result from the acts of a dictator or of a small group of men—"oligarchies," they used to call them in ancient days — who exploit whole nations and force the young to go to war by inflaming public opinion against other countries.

There is no reason to believe that, if the minds of 200,000,000 people of Soviet Russia could to reached with genuine evidence of friendship, the rulers of the Communist regime would have the power to take the steps of aggression which have now brought the world to the brink of war.

Like all other moves of this kind —and they are by no means novel— the question of methods and means arises. The United States has brought forth what is known as the "Voice of America" program. This project was for a long time in need of funds, but now has the money from Congress. What is lacking is the ideas that must go into such an undertaking to make it successful. Those ideas cannot begin and end on the bureaucratic level. They must come from the very top level of our policy makers. They must be part of national and international policy.

Today the "Voice of America" is just one of a number of bureaus in the Department of State. It ought to be an important agency independent of any department and reporting directly to the President. It should have enough prestige to command the sympathetic support of members of both houses of Congress. It should be the "public relations" instrument of the government itself in international relations. Few men who have been at the head of the Department of State have ever been qualified to do this type of planning even if they had the time to devote to it.

Will Penetrate Curtain

But to occupy so important a role, the project must have Cabinet-level ranking and must be composed of advisers who are able to suggest major policies that will appeal to other nations, especially those behind the "iron curtain." Strange, indeed, that nobody has put any official momentum behind the idea of a formal expression of friendship by the Congress addressed to the people of Soviet Russia or that other moves which can appeal to peoples behind the "iron curtain" should not have come before now from authoritative quarters.

The "Voice of America" can relay messages and broadcast interesting scripts and carry on a polemic technique to counteract Communist propaganda, but that's not enough. There must be ways to capture the imagination of the Russian people. That's why the suggestion by Senator McMahon is likely to prove more penetrating than all the high-sounding speeches of diplomatic phraseology that come forth so regularly as the only expression of American idealism.

But will such policies of friendship and other proposals get through to the people behind the "iron curtain"? The answer is that any event of sensational importance percolates through any man-made barrier. The persons who go and come across the border from the satellite states to the free world are constantly discussing these same issues. Word-of-mouth distribution of ideas still remains the most effective single instrument of communication the world has ever known.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Red-Baiters

I saw an advertisement in which a magazine pats itself on the back for its anti-Communist record since 1949. It is pleasing to know that the times have so changed that many who once loved Stalin now wish to be known as Stalin-haters. Others who went along with the Communists now insist that we forget their past performances on the ground that they have now changed their minds. They do not, however, express any regrets for their former conduct. That is all to the good, but does arouse the query as to why it took them from 1917 to 1949 to discover the truth.

Pondering a bit on this subject, I tried to compile spontaneously and from memory a list of active fighters against communism, before 1940. Perhaps it means nothing to anybody nor can such a list be complete. But what interested me was to discover how many Americans I could remember who were willing to risk being known as Red-baiters, among whom I include myself since 1917, whose work attracted attention.

After I had compiled my list, I submitted it to two of the most balanced authorities on the subject, Dr. J. B. Matthews and Benjamin Stolberg, for their consideration and this is the result, which I think will stand any test. To be on this list, the following qualifications were stipulated:

1. The person must be an avowed anti-Stalinist;

2. He must have devoted his talents to battling communism and influence of Soviet Russia in the United States;

3. He must not have sought a compromise with Stalinism in any form;

4. He must not have been influenced by temporary situations such as the Stalin-Hitler alliance.

Harry A. Jung, Joseph P. Kamp, Father James Keller, Margaret Kerr, H. R. Knickerbocker, Alfred Kohnberg, Joseph Kornfeder (Zack), Irene Kuhn, Suzanne Lafollette, Isaac Don Levins, Fulton Lewis, Jr., Charles A. Lindbergh, Clayton R. Lusk, Eugene Lyons, Benjamin Mandel, J. B. Matthews, Robert R. McCormick, James McGuinness, Adolphe Menjou, Robert Montgomery, Robert Morris, John F. Neylan, Fred Niblo, Jr., Fred Niendorff.

Norman Vincent Peale, Westbrook Pegler, Roscoe Pound, Burton Rascoe, Victor Riesel, Howard Emmet Rogers, Lela Rogers, James Rorty, Howard Rushmore, Morrie Ryskind, Glenn Saxon, Frederick J. Schlink, George Schuyler, James P. Selvage, George E. Sokolsky, Jacob Spolansky, Joe Starnes, Walter E. Steele, Archibald E. Stevenson, Benjamin Stolberg, Wesley Stout, Robert E. Stripling, Jack B. Tenney, J. Parnell Thomas, Norman Thomas, Elon F. Tompkins, John B. Trevor, Walter Trohan, Louis Waldman, Frank Waldrop, Father Edmund A. Walsh, Matthew Woll, Frederick Woltman, General Robert E. Wood.

If I had taken 1945 as my date, I should have had another list which would have included several ex-Russian spies, many anti-Communists who had confessed and established their contrition. Also, such a list would include some who hated Hitler so bitterly that for a time they took Stalin as the less offensive of the two. It might also include some to whom Roosevelt could do no wrong and who therefore played the Communist front game up to the death of the principal author of Teheran and Yalta.

But I preferred to play with 1940 as a more suitable date, because many of these men and women made sacrifices in career and peace of mind to continue this battle against the enemies of our country. They stood by their principles without regard to the atmosphere of the moment.

Some of the names on this list are unpopular for reasons other than their anti-Stalinism, and some are antagnostic to each other, but each did his or her share to alert our people. Had they been taken seriously, we should today not be in our present troubles.

Resisting The Flood

"You men have made such a mess of the world that you ought to let the women see what they can do." This cry, heard from men as well as women, has not as yet been translated into action. In the field of economics more and more readers are coming to look for Barbara Ward's latest book, as her advice sounds more practical and more encouraging than what the male economists are offering. Miss Ward, only 36, is assistant editor of The Economist, a noted British weekly, and is read with great attention by the experts in the field. She has lectured in this country and written for our magazines. She is distinctly someone to keep track of.

Her recent book, "Policy for the West," does not discount the seriousness of the Communist menace. She thinks that the way to meet it is the way in which a wise business man meets a dangerous competitor: he improves the quality of his own goods and services. Give the rest of the world something better than what the Communists offer, and the victory can be won.

This will require constant effort. She puts this need in memorable words:

"No Dutchman expects the sea miraculously to abandon its ceaseless attack upon the shores of Holland. He mans the dykes instead. So it is with communism. Like a force of nature it will continue, for some time at least, to pour through the world, lapping at the free world's defenses and seeking by every tactic of infiltration to trickle through the barriers, to crumble the earth that is soft and suck down the wood that has grown rotten. But where the dykes are strong and the banks well built, the pressure will be made in vain. The floods can be controlled and deflected, the menace contained."

Here are both strength and wisdom.

75 Years Of Baseball

Connie Mack is just an infant after all. The 86-year-old retired former manager of the Philadelphia Athletics was not scheduled to be the oldest guest present at the National League's celebration of its 75th birthday. All living player members of the Baseball Hall of Fame were on the invitation list, and many old-time players. The dean of the former players is the 91-year-old Arlie Latham, a star third baseman for Cincinnati and St. Louis in the nineties, famous also for his antics.

The next oldest former player is younger than Mack. He is the 81-year-old Kid Nichols, the unquestioned king of all pitchers when he worked for Boston in the nineties.

Baseball, like taxes, seems to have been with us always. It is odd to think that the first professional organization dates back only to 1876. There were teams for at least thirty years earlier, notably the Cincinnati Reds of 1869, who did not lose a game until some time in 1870. These teams were soon disbanded, however, and scheduled games at irregular intervals. The formation of a regular league ensured that every member team would meet every other team an equal number of times and provided disciplinary machinery for expelling crooked players. Three such were thrown out only a year or two after the game started, and the example proved salutary.

Nowadays a major league believes it necessary to have its members located in the nation's largest cities. The National League did not always feel that way, or perhaps could not arrange it. At any rate its membership at times has included such smaller cities as Albany and Troy, New York. Worcester, Massachusetts, Providence, Rhode Island, and Hartford, Connecticut.

Too Close For Comfort

The final figures of the the 1950 election, jut now made public, show that 91 members of the House of Representatives won their seats by a margin of less than five per cent of the total vote. In eight cases the winners did not even receive an actual majority of the ballots cast but owe their success to the fact that there were more than two candidates in the contest.

This report of results not only indicates the closeness of the last election but points to the principal battle ground of 1952. Both parties will now proceed to do the spadework for special campaign efforts in the districts of the 54 Republicans and 37 Democrats who barely made the grade last November. The representatives, if they contemplate running for re-election, will watch their steps and keep their political fences in good repair.

A awareness of 91 representatives that they were not overwhelming favorites in the last election is not conducive to a statesmanlike attitude toward public questions. The temptation to play at least a certain amount of personal politics is always present.

That is the unfortunate but inevitable aftermath of a close election. But the same could be said, with equal truth, of an election that isn't close.

Safeguarding Museums

Museums in the large cities of the country are studying the question of protecting their collections from a possible enemy attack. The New York Museum of Art has begun crating valuable objects in preparation for hiding them.

The committee of trustees of the Chicago Art Institute has been working on a defense project for some months but the institute's collection remains intact. A committee of the American Association of Museums is working on the problem of safeguarding art and other treasures.

Since the destruction of the museum in Hamburg, Germany, in the late war, the Natural History Museum of Chicago has No. 1 collections in a number of fields, according to Col. Clifford C. Gregg, director. Plans are being made to protect many irreplaceable objects in an emergency.

Bouncing Boxes

Parachute troops of the recent war gave the world the spectacle of men tumbling out of the doors of planes to float earthward beneath a sea of billowing white parachutes. Now there is something new. The Air Force is testing a big container which can be dumped from an airplane and lowered to the ground by parachutes without damage, and which will land so easily and safely that it can be used to carry both men and their equipment. It is supposed to drop a complete squad, with guns and ammunition, in a single package, more quickly and safely than with individual parachutes.

This development really sounds like something, and should be useful to the commercial world as well as to the military.

These are the exceptions, however, because in most instances there is no bulging subsequent to surgery. It is not the abdominal contents that cause a bay window; this is caused by layers of blubber in the abdominal wall. Even if one kidney, one-half the stomach and intestine, the gall bladder, the appendix, and the pelvic organs were removed, this would not make a fat woman thin.

DIABETIC COMA

M. R. writes: Why do diabetics go into coma? My nephew does it all the time.

REPLY

Comas occur because the diabetic does not take care of himself. Either he does not adhere to a diet or does not take enough insulin. The amount of sugar in the blood increases to such an extent that acidosis and finally coma ensue. This is a serious condition and in the days before insulin, 50 per cent of all victims died from this complication. Today, it is rare, indicating that your nephew is the exception to the rule.

BI-PARTISANSHIP STARTS LOOKING UP

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—One of the big things bothering Congress about drafting 18-year-olds is the problem which Winston Churchill pounded home on President Roosevelt when he opposed a second front across the English Channel.

"I do not," said the Prime Minister in typical Churchillian language, "propose to lose the seed of the British Empire."

What he had in mind was the fact that in 1914, the cream of Britain's young men had been shipped across the English Channel and mowed down in Flanders. Those first waves of troops that went to Belgium included the best-trained men in the nation.

Today it is a recognized fact in both England and France that national leadership is more difficult because of those 1914-15 casualties. Men who were 18 and 19 during the Battle of Flanders would be 54 and 55 today, and in their prime for leadership. But their ranks were seriously decimated.

In the United States today the question of drafting 18-year-olds is serious for another reason. They are what are known as depression babies—born during the nadir of the depression in 1932.

In those depression years babies were fewer. People couldn't afford them. And many congressmen now feel we cannot afford to lose too much of the "seed" of the nation.

This also applies to 19-year-olds, and will apply to the youngsters who become 18 next year and the year after. All are depression babies. That's why more thought is being given to some system whereby education can be continued along with military training.

Prayer—Not Pressure

A group of lobbyists who specialize in prayer—instead of pressure—called on GOP Congressman George Bender of Ohio the other day.

The delegation included Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Mennonites and members of other faiths from Wooster, Ohio. After talking over domestic and world problems with Bender, one of the visitors suggested:

"Let us kneel and pray that Congress will get the Divine guidance it needs in the days ahead."

Bender knelt with his callers.

"Those kind of lobbyists don't have to register with the clerk in the House," remarked the hefty Ohioan, who won back his congressional seat in November. "They are registered up yonder."

27-Cent Dollar

The housewives probably won't be surprised at this, though the figures look pretty bad on paper. However, the inescapable fact is that the 1939 dollar is now worth only 27 cents, when it comes to buying such everyday items as butter, coffee, cocoa, sugar, silk and print cloth.

This is shown in the price increases of 28 commodities, compiled daily by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

In other words, what a dollar would buy in 1939 now costs approximately $3.65. This is a measure of how the dollar's purchasing power has dwindled for the following commodities: Barley, burlap, butter, cocoa bean, coffee, copper, corn, cotton, cottonseed oil, flaxseed, hides, hogs, lard, lead, print cloth, rosin, rubber, shellac, silk, steel scrap, steers, sugar, tallow, tin, wheat, wool tops and zinc.

Who Killed Price Control

Members of the Administration will admit in their off-moments that blame for the present zooming cost of living goes straight up to the White House itself.

In the first place, the Republicans were smart enough to give the President all the power to control prices he wanted—and then some. And he has failed to use them. Congress extended these powers late last summer but they have lain dormant ever since.

Second, the President has failed to pick experienced men to handle price-wage control, though he had a handful of experts around the corner whom he could have called in overnight.

However, Harry Truman has a strange quirk—psychiatrists might call it an inferiority complex — about using Roosevelt personnel. He wants to stand on his own feet. Probably this was the reason why he did not call in the men who grew up with price control and on the whole did an amazingly good job—Leon Henderson, Chester Bowles and Paul Porter.

Leon Henderson, who set up OPA offices all over the country in record time, is still in Washington as a consultant for private business. Chester Bowles has just finished a term as Governor of Connecticut. Paul Porter is practicing law. None are looking for trouble, much prefer to stick to their own knitting, but they would have helped out nonetheless—if asked. But they weren't even asked to help as consultants.

Instead, complete greenhorns were selected for the toughest job in the entire U. S. A.—controlling prices and wages and making people like it.

NOTE—Another wise counselor on the domestic economic front is Bernard M. Baruch, who also was left on the sidelines. The reason: Mr. Truman's yearning for letter-writing. He wrote Bernie one of his hottest.

Acheson and Seward

North Dakota's big, homespun Congressman Usher L. Burdick, a Republican, compares the current attacks on Secretary of State Dean Acheson with the Civil War attacks on William Henry Seward, also secretary of state.

"Let us turn over the musty pages of the War between the States," says Burdick. "We got licked twice at Bull Run and our army beat it back across the Potomac in a panic. Lincoln and his secretary of state, Seward, found themselves in a sea of criticism. Newspapers demanded the ouster of Seward and said Lincoln was not to be trusted. Lincoln stood firm, cool and collected. He kept his secretary of state and went about the job of winning the war."

The congressman, a writer of many historical books, cautions: "Remember what happened in this country before. Remember that cool heads lead the way to victory."

Deference To Farm Crops Reflects On Price Control

By MARK SULLIVAN

WE HAVE SEEN during the past seven months the evolution of the country's economy thrown out of gear by the emergency of war. In fact the process has been far from an orderly evolution, it has been an awkward pulling and hauling by forces and men.

Landmark dates are easy to identify. On June 26 came Korea. Some three weeks later President Truman sent Congress a message calling for controls over the country's economy. Congress enacted the controls Sept. 27. During ensuing weeks President Truman appointed administrators to exercise the controls, and tentative steps were taken toward controls over a few individual industries. By the third week in January the control administrators, hard-pressed by mounting inflation, were under necessity of embarking upon comprehensive controls. This is little more than to say they are ready to begin. The work of fully organizing the Economic Stabilization Agency will take some 18 months.

To recite all this is not to carp unnecessarily about delay, the job is enormous and complex. Yet it is a fact that while control and mobilization have been slow, inflation and rising prices have been fast. Between Dec. 15 and Jan. 2, retail prices of food reached a record high. Cost of living and inflation were out-pacing controls.

Given Special Deference

Some things that took place during the several months of motion toward stabilization were significant and disturbing. One was an immunity conferred on agriculture. In the writing of the Defense Production Act embracing controls over all industries and of aspects of the country's economy, the control agencies were given authority to put ceilings over prices. But the ceiling that could be put over prices of farm crops was strictly limited and defined. The definition was, like all aspects of government support of crop prices, extremely intricate.

Speaking loosely and subject to many variations the new Economic Stabilization Agency cannot put a ceiling over the price of a farm crop unless the ceiling is at least as high as either of two standards. One standard is the price in the open market during a period of last May and June. The other standard is parity price as determined by the Department of Agriculture.

In sum the new Economic Stabilization Agency cannot "freeze" the prices of farm crops unless Congress changes the law it passed last September. The immunity given agriculture is clearly a special deference paid to a single industry, and it is tenable to suppose that the deference given agriculture had a political motive in part at least. Because of the large part played by government support of crop prices in the spiral of rising cost of living, the picking out of agriculture for discriminatory favor is not promising for really effective check of rising prices generally.

Policy Contributed To Inflation

During the seven months between Korea in June and the inauguration of economic controls in January, there went on wage raises in industry after industry. In most cases they were followed by increases in prices of goods, and the sum of these was a large contribution to rising cost of living and increasing inflation. The defense Production Act gives the new control agencies power to "freeze" wages. It goes without saying that this will be done, otherwise inflation would go on into a higher and more dangerous stage.

The inflation that has been under way during seven months has been, of course, a war inflation. Yet to call it by that name would be misleading. What the country has been experiencing is a new stage of inflation piled on top of one that had been under way before Korea. The earlier inflation was caused in large part by a policy of the Truman administration.

After the ending of the second world war and of the immense government borrowing to finance it, the country entered a condition which made it possible not only to cease borrowing but to begin reducing the government debt. For a brief period this was done. But in early 1949 Mr. Truman sent to Congress proposals calling for new and enlarged appropriations, the government debt began to rise again. Above that increase must now be piled an unforeseen increase due to war. The management of the government's fiscal operations calls for the utmost wisdom.

Moral Force Still Can Be Used In Behalf Of Peace

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Senator Brien McMahon's proposal of a resolution to be adopted by the Senate expressing friendship for the Russian people is the first sign of common sense that has come in a long while from officialdom here on the subject of moral force as a preventive of war.

The assumption that, because armament has to be increased substantially to meet outbreaks of aggression, all other forms of peaceful effort to prevent war need not be pressed is erroneous. Yet whenever military measures take the limelight these other methods of avoiding war seem to be sidetracked.

With two world wars to remind mankind that military conquest does not really bring peace, there have been equally erroneous assumptions current that military strength has become futile or unnecessary. The truth is that defense armament is indispensable, and so is an armament of reason and genuine friendship expressed by one set of peoples to the other.

People Don't Want War

The Russian people are not bellicose by nature. They do not want war any more than do the people of the allied countries. Inasmuch as all people would prefer the ways of peace to armed hostilities, the real question always is why there should be any wars. Generally they result from the acts of a dictator or of a small group of men—"oligarchies," they used to call them in ancient days — who exploit whole nations and force the young to go to war by inflaming public opinion against other countries.

There is no reason to believe that, if the minds of 200,000,000 people of Soviet Russia could to reached with genuine evidence of friendship, the rulers of the Communist regime would have the power to take the steps of aggression which have now brought the world to the brink of war.

Like all other moves of this kind —and they are by no means novel— the question of methods and means arises. The United States has brought forth what is known as the "Voice of America" program. This project was for a long time in need of funds, but now has the money from Congress. What is lacking is the ideas that must go into such an undertaking to make it successful. Those ideas cannot begin and end on the bureaucratic level. They must come from the very top level of our policy makers. They must be part of national and international policy.

Today the "Voice of America" is just one of a number of bureaus in the Department of State. It ought to be an important agency independent of any department and reporting directly to the President. It should have enough prestige to command the sympathetic support of members of both houses of Congress. It should be the "public relations" instrument of the government itself in international relations. Few men who have been at the head of the Department of State have ever been qualified to do this type of planning even if they had the time to devote to it.

Will Penetrate Curtain

But to occupy so important a role, the project must have Cabinet-level ranking and must be composed of advisers who are able to suggest major policies that will appeal to other nations, especially those behind the "iron curtain." Strange, indeed, that nobody has put any official momentum behind the idea of a formal expression of friendship by the Congress addressed to the people of Soviet Russia or that other moves which can appeal to peoples behind the "iron curtain" should not have come before now from authoritative quarters.

The "Voice of America" can relay messages and broadcast interesting scripts and carry on a polemic technique to counteract Communist propaganda, but that's not enough. There must be ways to capture the imagination of the Russian people. That's why the suggestion by Senator McMahon is likely to prove more penetrating than all the high-sounding speeches of diplomatic phraseology that come forth so regularly as the only expression of American idealism.

But will such policies of friendship and other proposals get through to the people behind the "iron curtain"? The answer is that any event of sensational importance percolates through any man-made barrier. The persons who go and come across the border from the satellite states to the free world are constantly discussing these same issues. Word-of-mouth distribution of ideas still remains the most effective single instrument of communication the world has ever known.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Red-Baiters

I saw an advertisement in which a magazine pats itself on the back for its anti-Communist record since 1949. It is pleasing to know that the times have so changed that many who once loved Stalin now wish to be known as Stalin-haters. Others who went along with the Communists now insist that we forget their past performances on the ground that they have now changed their minds. They do not, however, express any regrets for their former conduct. That is all to the good, but does arouse the query as to why it took them from 1917 to 1949 to discover the truth.

Pondering a bit on this subject, I tried to compile spontaneously and from memory a list of active fighters against communism before 1940. Perhaps it means nothing to anybody nor can such a list be complete. But what interested me was to discover how many Americans I could remember who were willing to risk being known as Red-baiters, among whom I include myself since 1917, whose work attracted attention.

After I had compiled my list, I submitted it to two of the most balanced authorities on the subject, Dr. J. B. Matthews and Benjamin Stolberg, for their consideration and this is the result, which I think will stand any test. To be on this list, the following qualifications were stipulated:

1. The person must be an avowed anti-Stalinist;

2. He must have devoted his talents to battling communism and influence of Soviet Russia in the United States;

3. He must not have sought a compromise with Stalinism in any form;

4. He must not have been influenced by temporary situations such as the Stalin-Hitler alliance.

Harry A. Jung, Joseph P. Kamp, Father James Keller, Margaret Kerr, H. R. Knickerbocker, Alfred Kohnberg, Joseph Kornfeder (Zack), Irene Kuhn, Suzanne Lafollette, Isaac Don Levins, Fulton Lewis, Jr., Charles A. Lindbergh, Clayton R. Lusk, Eugene Lyons, Benjamin Mandel, J. B. Matthews, Robert R. McCormick, James McGuinness, Adolphe Menjou, Robert Montgomery, Robert Morris, John F. Neylan, Fred Niblo, Jr., Fred Niendorff.

Norman Vincent Peale, Westbrook Pegler, Roscoe Pound, Burton Rascoe, Victor Riesel, Howard Emmet Rogers, Lela Rogers, James Rorty, Howard Rushmore, Morrie Ryskind, Glenn Saxon, Frederick J. Schlink, George Schuyler, James P. Selvage, George E. Sokolsky, Jacob Spolansky, Joe Starnes, Walter E. Steele, Archibald E. Stevenson, Benjamin Stolberg, Wesley Stout, Robert E. Stripling, Jack B. Tenney, J. Parnell Thomas, Norman Thomas, Elon F. Tompkins, John B. Trevor, Walter Trohan, Louis Waldman, Frank Waldrop, Father Edmund A. Walsh, Matthew Woll, Frederick Woltman, General Robert E. Wood.

If I had taken 1945 as my date, I should have had another list which would have included several ex-Russian spies, many anti-Communists who had confessed and established their contrition. Also, such a list would include some who hated Hitler so bitterly that for a time they took Stalin as the less offensive of the two. It might also include some to whom Roosevelt could do no wrong and who therefore played the Communist front game up to the death of the principal author of Teheran and Yalta.

But I preferred to play with 1940 as a more suitable date, because many of these men and women made sacrifices in career and peace of mind to continue this battle against the enemies of our country. They stood by their principles without regard to the atmosphere of the moment.

Some of the names on this list are unpopular for reasons other than their anti-Stalinism, and some are antagnostic to each other, but each did his or her share to alert our people. Had they been taken seriously, we should today not be in our present troubles.

NEW YORK (INS)—DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, the youngest elderly man in the world, will be 71 this Friday. But it will be just another day in the life of a vigorous and brilliant American whose services to his country for more than half a century have no parallel.

If he goes to Korea that day, he will rise about 4 a. m., after perhaps five or six hours sleep at the end of another 18-hour day, and arrive on the grim field of battle some time later that morning. He'll go up as close to the several fronts as the restraining arms of his friends permit, hold countless conferences, attend briefings, and get back home about 20 hours after leaving Japan.

If he spends the day in Tokyo, he'll rise at 7 o'clock, study the overnight reports and news while he strides his bedroom in his tattered old West Point robe, down a light breakfast, dress and go to the Dai Ichi building to work until just before 2 o'clock.

Then there will be lunch back at home (he usually lunches alone with Mrs. MacArthur, now that Arthur is in school), then a brief period of reading, and back to the office to work until eight or nine. Then dinner, after which, perhaps, there may be a movie for him to show in the living room of the old U. S. embassy which is his quarters.

• — • — •

MacArthur is a first rate movie fan, but the pressure of his endless work keeps him from seeing as many as he'd like. He likes all types of films, with an understandable exception or two. The Russians, for instance, once had the audacity to send to Japan a film called "Defeat Of Japan," which attributed that nation's downfall to the Red army. There was no sight or mention of the American, Australian and New Zealand forces, no A-bomb, and MacArthur, Adms. Nimitz and Halsey, Gen. Wainwright and others at the surrender scene on the deck of the Missouri had been blacked out of the film and replaced by a dubbed-in Russian general.

MacArthur's birthday, if spent in Tokyo, will see him involved not only in the complexities of the undeclared war in Korea but the tremendous and heartening burden of administering Japan's 84,000,000 humans.

It will be a day in which he may see a few high-ranking Japanese government officials; Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, chief of the government section of SCAP; Adm. Charles Turner Joy, Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, and other assistants, advisers and friends.

He will be in contact with representatives of such United Nations as have sent aid to Korea, and with his own Defense Department in Washington. There will be a blizzard of reports to digest, orders to sign, mail to answer. (MacArthur attempts to answer each personal letter sent to him.)

• — • — •

At some period during the day he will want to see at least a digest of editorial, radio and columnar comment from the United States, Britain, Australia, Russia, China and several European countries.

His headquarters people no longer attempt to keep from him even the bitterest comments of his attackers in this country and abroad. He wants to see it all, and one is saddened at the picture of this utterly devoted man reading personal blasts on such an occasion.

At dinner, Mrs. MacArthur will have a cake for him or maybe an extra ration of his favorite candy. That will be the only concession to the date. Eventually, after more work at home and a study of the last-minute reports, he'll have to sleep — for tomorrow is another day, and the next and the next. He has not had a day off since 1937.

Why not drop him a birthday wire or card? The legend has grown that he's stiff and aloof, but the reverse is true and he'd probably like to know that a lot of people believe there's just nobody like him. His address is:

The shepherd represents one of oldest occupations known to man, notes the National Geographic Society. Archeologists have unearthed evidence that domesticated sheep shared the huts of Swiss Lake Dwellers, a race that lived about 8,250 B. C. Even then the shepherd's trade was an ancient one—the Old Testament identifies Abel, one of Adam's two sons, as a "keeper of sheep."

PIN-WORMS MAY BE A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for over 100 years.

NEW SWISS COTTONS TAKE ON LOOK OF BEING ANYTHING BUT COTTON--THEY REALLY ARE GLAMORIZED NOW

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

New cottons from Switzerland are so glamorized this season that they don't look like cottons at all.

Some have a satiny surface like rich silk, others are printed in gold or silver so they shine like the Milky Way. There are crisp new finishes for some of the gauzy sheer fabrics, iridescent weaves which give a satiny shimmer and brocade designs printed in gold or silver on sheer organdie.

A double-woven cotton satin in checks and small jacquard designs is another novelty of the season, as is another new fabric with the tucks woven right into it. The tucks come in any color, or in multicolor on white, or in white on a colored ground. Typical of this group is a pink organdie with tiny white woven tucks, used in the current collection of Christian Dior.

The first official American flag was the Continental or Grand Union Flag in 1776.

With just a few pencil strokes, you can teach yourself how to sit beautifully!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

ARE you a designing woman—not of the ulterior-motive variety (she is her own worst enemy, but of the type who makes a beautiful design of her figure every time she seats herself? That's the type of designing woman I'd like to teach you how to be today.

Together, let's design a seated picture of you that any artist would be proud to exhibit. We will actually use some art principles to gain our graceful ends, the same ones Powers Girls use.

Self-Portrait

You'll need a chair drawn up to a good-sized mirror, a fair-sized pad, and a pencil. With this equipment, sit down in front of your mirror. Draw an outline of the mirror, approximating its shape. (Don't worry about your drawing ability. The art in this picture will depend on your grace in sitting!)

Now, following the general style of the stick figures illustrated, sketch in your present pose. Done? Would you say the result has artistic value, that it is pleasing to the eye? If not, why not?

Maybe your line portrait of yourself looks like a school kid on good behavior, stiff as a rod and all angles. Hardly a picture of your most gracious self!

How would the professional artist change the awkward composition? Just the way you are going to do it. First, consider the line of the seat of your chair. Because that line is horizontal, it cuts sharply across your body. When seated at right angles to the horizontal, you will always appear as static as any geometric figure in the book.

You, the Artist

What you must do is get some curves into the pose, of course. Turn your hips sidewise to the chair. Swing your legs back, square your shoulders, tilt your head, and let your arms curve diagonally across your body. Hmmm! What a difference.

Now try all the other poses you can think of that avoid sharp angles. Sketch each arrangement to impress it on your memory. Pretty soon you'll get an idea that you won't soon forget—that you make a picture, good or bad, every time you sit down!

P. S. from J. R. P.

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

MANY a successful politician has at some time in his life taken a "Memory Course" so he would not forget which name goes with which face . . . And when ruddy Russell Mack from Washington State met portly Harold Patten from Arizona for the first time (though each is starting his second term in the House of Representatives they'd never been introduced) they chewed the fat for a while and then Patten said to Mack, "Good-bye, Mr. White. I'm glad to have met you."

"My name is Mack, not White," Mack corrected. . .Patten apologized and explained that he had once taken a memory-by-association course . . . Learned to associate names with objects . . . Got mixed up because he used to drive a white Mack truck.

AUSTINE

Overhearing this whacky dialogue, tall, rough-and-ready Representative Mendel Rivers couldn't help chiming in . . . He too, had once subscribed to one of those cursed courses . . . Until one day a fellow named Goldstein came into his office and upon leaving, said "Good-by Mr. Brooks."

Then Mr. Goldstein apologized for calling him Mr. Brooks by mistake, and Mr. Rivers said, "Oh, think nothing of it, Mr. Goldfish."

Christian Dior, Bess Truman and Elizabeth Fairall can all work together on one project . . . Each contributed something yesterday to help the children of the Capital . . . For that day Mr. Dior sent clothes to Miss Fairall of Garfinkel's, and Mrs. Truman went in person to see them at the Fashion Show Luncheon that helped the Nursery Fund of Washington's oldest hospital . . . For 90 years, since 1861, the Sisters of Charity have served D. C. without receiveing a penny of pay for their work! . . . Now the good sisters, through this luncheon, hope to raise money for nursing care at Providence Hospital.

While the first Battle of Bull Run raged and the wounded were carted back, the War Department frantically appealed to the Sisters of Charity to rush aid, help nurse the wounded . . . A group of sisters, some of whom went out to the battlefields themselves, set up a hospital in an old frame structure that was one of the outbuildings on an estate . . . Remember in those days there was no Red Cross, no corps of trained nurses . . . Around that frame building a city of tents arose and the tent city stayed until the war closed . . . The old building was abandoned but the sisters stayed on and built for themselves, in the shadow of the Capitol, what was for its day a fine hospital . . . Among the many "firsts" to its credit:

It opened the first collegiate School of Nursing in the United States. . . One of the first Day Nurseries for children of working mothers. . . One of the first Psychiatric Clinics.

"You'll be back in the old humancage," says Sylvester the White House Squirrel, "if we go back to rationing and controls. Why not just erect a fancy marble government building and make it the headquarters for the black market. Fly a flag on it, get some big names to run it. Make the whole thing easier for everybody."

Charleston—Bye-Bye Blackbird!—Black Bottom—Shades of F. Scott Fitzgerald.

When some limber Senate ladies kick up the dust on the stage Thursday night in a sizzling Charleston they'll get plenty of applause. . . The gals who'll shake a foot back to the Roaring Twenties aren't professional dancers and are otherwise decorous. . . Such distinguished ladies as Mrs. Estes Kefauver, red-haired wife of Tennessee's crime-buster senator. . . Nevada's Mrs. George Malone, Florida's Mrs. Claude Pepper, Missouri's Mrs. James Ken and Arkansas' Mrs. John McClennan, one of the Capital's best dressed women.

These "Dancing Daughters of D. C." will only be part of the glittering extravaganza staged by the Women's National Press Club at Constitution Hall.

Such a cast of famous amateurs has never before been assembled! . . The audience will hear Generals and Admirals harmonizing! See the Vice President and Mrs. Barkley, Secretaries of Treasury, Labor, Interior and Agriculture and other Cabinet, Senate and House members, all singing, dancing, playing, yodelling and yelling. . . Grandmothers and grand dames like Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and Mrs. Joe Davies prancing through a square dance . . . In fact, 150 or more international figures, all strutting their stuff and parading their talents, great or meager, to raise funds to contribute to recreation for U. S. service men everywhere.

The forests of the United States include more than 800 different kinds of trees.

NEW SWISS COTTONS TAKE ON LOOK OF BEING ANYTHING BUT COTTON--THEY REALLY ARE GLAMORIZED NOW

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

New cottons from Switzerland are so glamorized this season that they don't look like cottons at all.

Some have a satiny surface like rich silk, others are printed in gold or silver so they shine like the Milky Way. There are crisp new finishes for some of the gauzy sheer fabrics, iridescent weaves which give a satiny shimmer and brocade designs printed in gold or silver on sheer organdie.

A double-woven cotton satin in checks and small jacquard designs is another novelty of the season, as is another new fabric with the tucks woven right into it. The tucks come in any color, or in multicolor on white, or in white on a colored ground. Typical of this group is a pink organdie with tiny white woven tucks, used in the current collection of Christian Dior.

The first official American flag was the Continental or Grand Union Flag in 1776.

With just a few pencil strokes, you can teach yourself how to sit beautifully!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

ARE you a designing woman—not of the ulterior-motive variety (she is her own worst enemy, but of the type who makes a beautiful design of her figure every time she seats herself? That's the type of designing woman I'd like to teach you how to be today.

Together, let's design a seated picture of you that any artist would be proud to exhibit. We will actually use some art principles to gain our graceful ends, the same ones Powers Girls use.

Self-Portrait

You'll need a chair drawn up to a good-sized mirror, a fair-sized pad, and a pencil. With this equipment, sit down in front of your mirror. Draw an outline of the mirror, approximating its shape. (Don't worry about your drawing ability. The art in this picture will depend on your grace in sitting!)

Now, following the general style of the stick figures illustrated, sketch in your present pose. Done? Would you say the result has artistic value, that it is pleasing to the eye? If not, why not?

Maybe your line portrait of yourself looks like a school kid on good behavior, stiff as a rod and all angles. Hardly a picture of your most gracious self!

How would the professional artist change the awkward composition? Just the way you are going to do it. First, consider the line of the seat of your chair. Because that line is horizontal, it cuts sharply across your body. When seated at right angles to the horizontal, you will always appear as static as any geometric figure in the book.

You, the Artist

What you must do is get some curves into the pose, of course. Turn your hips sidewise to the chair. Swing your legs back, square your shoulders, tilt your head, and let your arms curve diagonally across your body. Hmmm! What a difference.

Now try all the other poses you can think of that avoid sharp angles. Sketch each arrangement to impress it on your memory. Pretty soon you'll get an idea that you won't soon forget—that you make a picture, good or bad, every time you sit down!

Second National Bank Re-elects Entire Board

Directors were re-elected at the annual meeting of shareholders of The Second National Bank yesterday with 13,138 shares or 82.1 per cent present either in person or by proxy.

Re-elected directors were Tasker G. Lowndes, John Schwarzenbach, Fulcher P. Smith, J. Glenn Beall, Joseph M. Naughton, Charles Z. Heskett, Harry J. Barton, Henry W. Miller, Jr., G. William Bibby, Hitchens and John H. Mosner.

Officers will be elected at the organizational meeting of the directors today.

Reports on operations for 1950 were submitted and accepted.

Reporting to the stockholders, President J. M. Naughton said at the end of 1950, total deposits were $162,000 greater than a year earlier. were $58,205 or $3.64 per share of outstanding stock. In 1949, the comparable figures were $44,269 and $4.02 per share then outstanding. In December, 1950, a stock dividend of five new shares for every 11 held was paid, raising the bank's capital stock to 16,000 shares and $400,000. Dividends of $2 a share annually are being continued, Naughton said.

The bank's statement continues to reflect growth and greater usefulness, the president said, adding, that during 1950 there was a total of 811 new deposit accounts opened for $614,069; the bank made 4,188 new loans aggregating $2,854.22; and total lonas showed an increase of $272,640 or 9.3 per cent over the close of 1949.

The bank's liquidity or ability to meet instantly depositor's claims remains high, Naughton said, adding that 82.6 per cent of the total assets are cash or readily marketable securities.

It is estimated that the Soviet Union had 22,000,000 men under arms in World War II.

Allegany County Infirmary Workers Ask Pay Increase

A request for salary increases was made to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday by 35 employes of the County Infirmary here.

The request was in the form of a petition signed by the workers.

According to the petition the workers, including practical nurses and orderlies, want an increase to meet the rising cost of living. They also said they wish to be placed on a par with salaries paid those with similar work.

Also included in the petition was the reference to the lack of public transportation to and from the infirmary. The workers said they must either use their private cars or taxicabs to get to work.

The petition also stated that they are required to have their uniforms laundered at their own expense, although they allege that their laundry work was promised.

Members of the board said they would give the matter careful consideration prior to making a decision.

It was pointed out that when the new infirmary was opened during the summer of 1948 the workers were paid at a higher scale than similar workers at local hospitals. They also received a five per cent wage increase about a month or so afterwards.

Meanwhile, the wages of workers at local hospitals have been increased, but members of the board said they do not know how they compare with the infirmary rates at present.

Chester Dietrick Heads Bricklayers

Chester Dietrick, of Ridgeley, was elected president of Local No. 6, Bricklayers Union, AFL, at a recent meeting in the Allegany Trades Council Hall.

Other officers are George Griffith, Frostburg, financial secretary; Melvin R. Ward, Frostburg, recording secretary; Vernon Loy, Cumberland, business agent; John Dennison, Frostburg, deputy; Edward Dressman, LaVale, alternate deputy, and Frank Boor, Cumberland, sergeant-at-arms

Second National Bank Re-elects Entire Board

Directors were re-elected at the annual meeting of shareholders of The Second National Bank yesterday with 13,138 shares or 82.1 per cent present either in person or by proxy.

Re-elected directors were Tasker G. Lowndes, John Schwarzenbach, Fulcher P. Smith, J. Glenn Beall, Joseph M. Naughton, Charles Z. Heskett, Harry J. Barton, Henry W. Miller, Jr., G. William Bibby, Hitchens and John H. Mosner.

Officers will be elected at the organizational meeting of the directors today.

Reports on operations for 1950 were submitted and accepted.

Reporting to the stockholders, President J. M. Naughton said at the end of 1950, total deposits were $162,000 greater than a year earlier. were $58,205 or $3.64 per share of outstanding stock. In 1949, the comparable figures were $44,269 and $4.02 per share then outstanding. In December, 1950, a stock dividend of five new shares for every 11 held was paid, raising the bank's capital stock to 16,000 shares and $400,000. Dividends of $2 a share annually are being continued, Naughton said.

The bank's statement continues to reflect growth and greater usefulness, the president said, adding, that during 1950 there was a total of 811 new deposit accounts opened for $614,069; the bank made 4,188 new loans aggregating $2,854.22; and total lonas showed an increase of $272,640 or 9.3 per cent over the close of 1949.

The bank's liquidity or ability to meet instantly depositor's claims remains high, Naughton said, adding that 82.6 per cent of the total assets are cash or readily marketable securities.

It is estimated that the Soviet Union had 22,000,000 men under arms in World War II.

Allegany County Infirmary Workers Ask Pay Increase

A request for salary increases was made to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday by 35 employes of the County Infirmary here.

The request was in the form of a petition signed by the workers.

According to the petition the workers, including practical nurses and orderlies, want an increase to meet the rising cost of living. They also said they wish to be placed on a par with salaries paid those with similar work.

Also included in the petition was the reference to the lack of public transportation to and from the infirmary. The workers said they must either use their private cars or taxicabs to get to work.

The petition also stated that they are required to have their uniforms laundered at their own expense, although they allege that their laundry work was promised.

Members of the board said they would give the matter careful consideration prior to making a decision.

It was pointed out that when the new infirmary was opened during the summer of 1948 the workers were paid at a higher scale than similar workers at local hospitals. They also received a five per cent wage increase about a month or so afterwards.

Meanwhile, the wages of workers at local hospitals have been increased, but members of the board said they do not know how they compare with the infirmary rates at present.

Chester Dietrick Heads Bricklayers

Chester Dietrick, of Ridgeley, was elected president of Local No. 6, Bricklayers Union, AFL, at a recent meeting in the Allegany Trades Council Hall.

Other officers are George Griffith, Frostburg, financial secretary; Melvin R. Ward, Frostburg, recording secretary; Vernon Loy, Cumberland, business agent; John Dennison, Frostburg, deputy; Edward Dressman, LaVale, alternate deputy, and Frank Boor, Cumberland, sergeant-at-arms

County Board To Attend Meet

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners will be represented at a joint meeting of the Eastern and Western Shore County Commissioners Associations in Annapolis tomorrow. A bill providing for changes in the state assessment law will be discussed.

U. Grant Hooper, president of the Western Shore group, called the meeting for 11 a. m. tomorrow at Carvel Hall in order to obtain the reaction to county boards of all 23 counties on the proposed changes which are embodied in Senate Bill No. 28.

Representing Allegany county will be Commissioners William H. Lemmert and James Orr and Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board. Commissioner James Holmes will be unable to attend as he only recently recovered from an illness and hospitalization.

Lemmert and Holmes said that at the last joint meeting of the two county commissioners' groups in the fall retention of the present five-year rotating plan of assessments was favored by 20 of the 23 county boards.

Farmers Dairy Plant Included In Contract

The new contract between Local No. 924, Dairy Workers Union, AFL, and Cumberland dairies includes the Farmers Dairy, 219 Walnut Street, it was announced.

Earlier newspaper stories, covering the 15 cents per hour wage increase for 110 employes of six dairies, through an error omitted the name of the Farmers Dairy.

After 15 years of being, Alcoholics Anonymous has almost 100,000 members.

Ten Area Men To Take Tests

Ten registrants of Draft Board No. 27 will report February 5 at Martinsburg, W. Va., for pre-induction physical examinations.

P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator, said orders for the men were received yesterday. The contingent will leave Queen City Station at 5:55 a.m. and return to Cumberland the same day.

Accompanying the group will be 15 other Board 27 registrants scheduled for final "screening" and induction into the Armed Forces.

Monday, Frostburg Board No. 30 sent 10 men for immediate Army duty. They are Thomas Chalbot, Eckhart; John Engle, Floyd Winebrenner and Harold G. Lloyd, Route 1, Frostburg; Harold Rizer, Route 2, Frostburg; William Eisentrout, Midland; Lawrence James, Lonaconing, and William Pifalo, Earl K. Miller and Frederick Kemp, Frostburg.

Thirty-three men from Boards Nos. 27 and 28 will report January 29 in Martinsburg for physicals.

Go See It . . For an Inspiration!

You ought to go see the new Cadillac. You ought to walk all around it and look at it from every angle—and you ought to open the door and get in and sit down.

You ought to slide over behind the wheel and look out over that jewel-like dash into the exciting beyond.

And you ought to do this, whatever the car you own today—and whatever the car you expect to own.

For it will lift up your spirits and add to your faith in America's industrial enterprise and productive ingenuity.

You look at those beautiful, flowing lines—and you can't escape the conviction that America's industrial artistry in metals is unsurpassed in all the world.

You look at the fabrics that tailor the seats and cushions—and you realize that America's manufacturing genius is unapproached for bringing luxury into everyday life.

You look at the flawless execution of every structural detail—and you have the comforting feeling that America's industrial craftsmanship is in a class by itself.

But your greatest inspiration is yet to come.

You ask the price of the lowest-priced Cadillac model—and you find that it's easily within the means of hundreds of thousands of American families.

Where else, in all the world—you ask yourself—could there be such a blending of luxury and practicality?

And the answer, of course, is—"nowhere." It's strictly an American "monopoly."

Yes, here is the new standard for the automotive world. It is new in beauty, in comfort, in luxury and in performance.

So come see it soon—and come with your hopes high.

Feature for feature—dollar for dollar—you simply can't beat a new automatic GAS range. That's why we say, "Make the rounds—see all the others"—because an automatic GAS range invites comparison. It has features—basic features—you won't find in any other range!

WIDE VARIETY OF TOP BURNER HEATS

Imagine how much easier it is cooking with GAS "pin-point" control—than with only 5 or 7 different heats! On an automatic GAS range, you choose the heat—any heat—that suits the food.

If you've ever used a pressure cooker, you'll know what we're talking about. You know how the pressure goes up or down when the heat varies even a tiny bit. That shows how important just the exact degree of heat is, with any kind of cooking!

WHEN YOU START TO COOK —COOK!

You needn't remember to turn on the gas beforehand. You set your pan on a top burner, turn on the gas, and it starts to cook right then. Even slow cooking takes less time on your gas range, because it starts to cook sooner.

YOURS— FOR LIFE!

The burners on your automatic GAS range are yours for life. No periodical replacement. They can't burn out. They're non-clog. Good for as long as your range is.

Cakes golden-brown all over, baked anywhere in the oven, on any rack! Constant, even heat that never varies. That's what you get with an air-circulated oven—exclusive with an automatic GAS range!

JUICY, SIZZLING BROILED MEATS— WITHOUT SMOKE!

Smokeless broiling—with the door closed! Gas flame consumes fatty vapors before they can turn into smoke. Flameless broiling can't do that. So in the range you're considering, make sure you can broil meats smokelessly with the door closed.

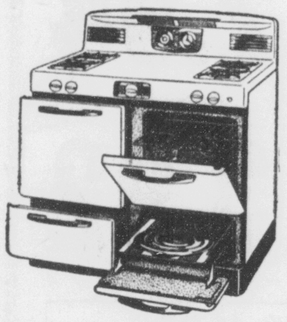
These are only a few of the important features. Naturally, automatic GAS ranges have all the other modern features too, such as automatic oven cooking, clean cooking, beautiful modern styling, burner arrangement, other conveniences.



AND WHAT DOES THIS WONDERFUL KIND OF RANGE COST?

Why, you'll SAVE MONEY!—up to $100 on a modern, automatic type GAS range. You'll save on installation costs. You'll save forever after, too. Gas is so economical . . . and you'll have practically no maintenance compared with other types.

Fort Hill High School took the measure of Barton High School's Braves here, 48-36, to register its fourth straight victory in the W.M.I. League. Beall High practically eliminated Central of Lonaconing from the running by handing the Tigers their third loss, 51-47, and Allegany High dealt Bruce of Westernport its fourth successive league defeat, 55-23, in contests staged last night.

Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Sentinels stretched their winning streak to 10 games in defeating a scrappy Barton team which blew 18 shots in 30 tries at the foul line.

Fort Hill's "big gun" was Glenn "Creeper" Wilson who fired 19 points in seven field goals and 5-7 fouls. Garland Tichnell was Barton's best bet with 19 points, including seven fielders, but he missed eight of 12 free throws.

Lynn Beightol of Fort Hill and Clark and Bean of Barton made their exit via five personal fouls.

The quarter scores were 12-8, 21-19 and 33-26 with the Sentinels on top.

Beall SPills Central

Field goals by Don Blank and Richard McClintock after Bill Hawkins' two foul goals had given Beall the lead in the final quarter, featured the Frostburg team's victory over the Orange and Black of Central in the Mountain City.

Beall lost Arnone and Workman on personal fouls.

Blank with 15 points and Hawkins and McClintock with 12 each were the chief point geters for Coach Ed Finzel's team. Don McKenzie and Kenny Burt with 16 and 12 led Coney's scoring. Central led at intermission, 25-22, and at the end of the third period, 39-38.

AHS Gets 25 Baskets

Allegany High's Campers poured in 25 field goals in crushing Bruce High at Campobello. Coach Walter Bowers used nine players and each contributed two points or more. AHS held the long end of a 22-6 score at the halfway mark.

Phares and ESisk with 14 and 12 tallies topped Allegany's attack. Bruce was limited to eight field goals.

Bruce's Jayvees handed AHS its first defeat of the season, 34-26 in the opener of the twin bill.

Sandy Saddler Defeats Shade

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 23 (AP)—Sandy Saddler of New York City, the world's featherweight champ, took a unanimous 10-round decision tonight from Sunny Dave Shade of Detroit before about 4,000 fight fans, but he had a fight on his hands most of the way.

Saddler escaped with little worse than a lump over his left eye. He spent a large part of the evening working on a bleeding nose that he handed Shade in the first round. There were no knock-downs.

The champ weighed in for the non-title go at 130. Shade, who also fights under his own name, Jesse Underwood, weighed 133¾.

Clippers Are Through
"Bob" Fulton, 55, Dies
"Snowbird" Is Puzzler
TDs Worth $1,000 Each

By C. V. BURNS

Johnstown is definitely out of the All-American Professional Basketball League, according to a telegram received by William V. Keegan, coach of the Cumberland Spas.

Harry E. Finley, business manager of Century Enterprises, promoters of the team, wired:

"Regret to advise Johnstown team discontinued balance of season. Decision necessary. Conditions beyond control."

Following the death of its star player, George "Chuck" Karmarkovich, in an automobile mishap while the team was en route home from a game in Wheeling, Johnstown announced its withdrawal from the circuit. The team was in a rut financially at the time.

There was some talk the Clippers would reconsider their decision. The final verdict, however, is contained in the telegram received by Keegan.

Speaking of Western Union messages reminds us that one of the company's most faithful employes—a man who had sent and received thousands of messages here for 30 years—was taken by death at his home late Tuesday night.

We refer to Robert "Bob" Fulton, 55, whom we've known for almost a quarter of a century.

"Bob" has occupied the booth under the grandstand at the Cumberland Fair Grounds for many years and wired messages and stories direct from the track during race meetings. On Getaway Day last June he sent the last item for us from the Fairgo track.

Fulton was a friendly fellow who got a thrill out of horse racing and we'll certainly miss those little chats with him at race meets in the future.

There are many slang expressions in sport. For instance, in baseball we have the Two O'clock Hitter Dick Smith, can of corn, horse collar, cripple, base on stones and Hogan's brickyard.

In boxing there is the Fancy Dan, the tanker, canvas kisser, etc. Football fans are familiar with the coffin corner, Monday Morning Quarterback and so on.

Now, Tony Constantine, Morgantown, W. Va., sports columnist, comes to bat with the question:

"How did the name "snowbird" originate for the scoring chance on which a basketball player finds himself free under the hoop for an easy field goal?

He's asked players, veteran coaches and consulated books but can't find the answer.

Kentucky Grabs Lead In Weekly Basketball Poll

Long Island Is 2nd, Oklahoma A. & M. 3rd

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—After a three-week absence, Coach Adolph Rupp has guided his Kentucky Wildcats back to the top of the national basketball rankings — but the blue grass lads got a stiff argument from Long Island University.

In a tight battle of the ballots, Kentucky drew 64 first-place votes for 1,786 points to replace Oklahoma A & M as the leader in the weekly Associated Press poll.

LIU, sporting the best record in the land, 15-0, attracted 62 first-place votes and 1,643 points to finish only 143 points behind Kentucky. Ten points are given for a first-place vote, nine for a second and so on.

Aggies Slip To Third

Oklahoma A & M, after its upset loss to Oklahoma last Saturday slipped to third place. The Aggies received 20 first-place votes and 1,434 points from the 222 sports writers and sportscasters who participated in the voting.

Bradley, which led for two weeks, also dropped, from third to fourth place. The Braves, who one week received 152 first-place votes, got only four this time. Bradley's point-total was 1,124.

Indiana's Big Ten leaders moved into the No. 5 slot, replacing St. John's of Brooklyn, which dropped to sixth. Indiana pulled in 1,026 points and 14 first-place votes.

The other members of the top ten are, in order, Columbia, North Carolina State, Kansas State and St. Louis.

But this week's outstanding game will take place in Peoria, Ill., Friday night, when Bradley's bruised Braves take on Oklahoma A & M in a Missouri Valley tilt.

Seventh-ranked Columbia, one of the two unbeaten teams in the country, is idle this week but the rest of the top ten will see action Saturday. Indiana meets Ohio State, St. John's plays St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, NC State tangles with North Carolina, Kansas State gets Colorado and St. Louis plays Drake.

Sandy Saddler Defeats Shade

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 23 (AP)—Sandy Saddler of New York City, the world's featherweight champ, took a unanimous 10-round decision tonight from Sunny Dave Shade of Detroit before about 4,000 fight fans, but he had a fight on his hands most of the way.

Saddler escaped with little worse than a lump over his left eye. He spent a large part of the evening working on a bleeding nose that he handed Shade in the first round. There were no knock-downs.

The champ weighed in for the non-title go at 130. Shade, who also fights under his own name, Jesse Underwood, weighed 133¾.

Clippers Are Through
"Bob" Fulton, 55, Dies
"Snowbird" Is Puzzler
TDs Worth $1,000 Each

By C. V BURNS

Johnstown is definitely out of the All-American Professional Basketball League, according to a telegram received by William V. Keegan, coach of the Cumberland Spas.

Harry E. Finley, business manager of Century Enterprises, promoters of the team, wired:

"Regret to advise Johnstown team discontinued balance of season. Decision necessary. Conditions beyond control."

Following the death of its star player, George "Chuck" Karmarkovich, in an automobile mishap while the team was en route home from a game in Wheeling, Johnstown announced its withdrawal from the circuit. The team was in a rut financially at the time.

There was some talk the Clippers would reconsider their decision. The final verdict, however, is contained in the telegram received by Keegan.

Speaking of Western Union messages reminds us that one of the company's most faithful employes—a man who had sent and received thousands of messages here for 30 years—was taken by death at his home late Tuesday night.

We refer to Robert "Bob" Fulton, 55, whom we've known for almost a quarter of a century.

"Bob" has occupied the booth under the grandstand at the Cumberland Fair Grounds for many years and wired messages and stories direct from the track during race meetings. On Getaway Day last June he sent the last item for us from the Fairgo track.

Fulton was a friendly fellow who got a thrill out of horse racing and we'll certainly miss those little chats with him at race meets in the future.

When LaSalle College of Philadelphia lost out in the 4th quarter to N. C. State at Raleigh Saturday night, 76-74, Coach Ken Loeffler, who once played for the Second Story Morrys at Pittsburgh, called it "one of the biggest steals since the Louisiana Purchase."

LaSalle, now ranked 17th nationally, entered the final period with a 14-point lead, lost three men on personals and was the victim of four technical fouls in the second half.

There are many slang expressions in sport. For instance, in baseball we have the Two O'clock Hitter Dick Smith, can of corn, horse collar, cripple, base on stones and Hogan's brickyard.

In boxing there is the Fancy Dan, the tanker, canvas kisser, etc. Football fans are familiar with the coffin corner, Monday Morning Quarterback and so on.

Now, Tony Constantine, Morgantown, W. Va., sports columnist, comes to bat with the question:

"How did the name "snowbird" originate for the scoring chance on which a basketball player finds himself free under the hoop for an easy field goal?

He's asked players, veteran coaches and consulated books but can't find the answer.

Kentucky Grabs Lead In Weekly Basketball Poll

Long Island Is 2nd, Oklahoma A. & M. 3rd

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—After a three-week absence, Coach Adolph Rupp has guided his Kentucky Wildcats back to the top of the national basketball rankings — but the blue grass lads got a stiff argument from Long Island University.

In a tight battle of the ballots, Kentucky drew 64 first-place votes for 1,786 points to replace Oklahoma A & M as the leader in the weekly Associated Press poll.

LIU, sporting the best record in the land, 15-0, attracted 62 first-place votes and 1,643 points to finish only 143 points behind Kentucky. Ten points are given for a first-place vote, nine for a second and so on.

Aggies Slip To Third

Oklahoma A & M, after its upset loss to Oklahoma last Saturday slipped to third place. The Aggies received 20 first-place votes and 1,434 points from the 222 sports writers and sportscasters who participated in the voting.

Bradley, which led for two weeks, also dropped, from third to fourth place. The Braves, who one week received 152 first-place votes, got only four this time. Bradley's point-total was 1,124.

Indiana's Big Ten leaders moved into the No. 5 slot, replacing St. John's of Brooklyn, which dropped to sixth. Indiana pulled in 1,026 points and 14 first-place votes.

The other members of the top ten are, in order, Columbia, North Carolina State, Kansas State and St. Louis.

LSI Goes On Road

LSI embarks on a strenuous five-game road trip which will carry the Blackbirds over 6,000 miles in 11 days. They'll play San Francisco Friday and California Saturday in San Francisco's Cow Palace and then make stops at Arizona, Kansas State and St. Louis on the way home.

But this week's outstanding game will take place in Peoria, Ill., Friday night, when Bradley's bruised Braves take on Oklahoma A & M in a Missouri Valley tilt.

Seventh-ranked Columbia, one of the two unbeaten teams in the country, is idle this week but the rest of the top ten will see action Saturday. Indiana meets Ohio State, St. John's plays St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, NC State tangles with North Carolina, Kansas State gets Colorado and St. Louis plays Drake.

Versify Takes Hialeah Park Feature Race

Sir Walter R Pays $190.40 In Opener

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23 (AP) — Colin MacLeod, Jr's Versify, odds-on favorite at 4 to 5, made it two out of two at Hialeah Park today when she won the featured Tangerine Purse before a crowd of 14,910.

The race, at six furlongs, was reserved for fillies and mares and of the seven entered, all except Versify and Best Trick, an also ran, are candidates for the $15,000 Black Helen Handicap on March 2.

Versify, lightweight of the field under 108 pounds, broke sluggishly but was rushed to the front engaged P. A. Markey's Baby Comet then outfinished that filly by a short length. W. G. Helis' Drifting Maid was third, two lengths farther back, and Siama, Winter Wheat and September completed the field.

Versify ran the sprint in 1:11 2/5 and gave Hedley Woodhouse his eighth winner of the meeting.

Belair Stud's Hyphasis, $5.10, was a six-length winner of the sixth, covering seven furlongs in 1:24 2/5. Ridden by Bobby Bernhardt he led from end to end.

Kinsman, a McLennan candidate was second, Sky Power took third from eight others. Three Widener candidates — Swap Out, Whirling Dough and Why Not Now — were among the also rans.

Four candidates for the $50,000 Flamingo were outrun by Dixiana's Mass O' Gold in the six-furlong fifth. Mass O' Gold, under Darrell Madden, prevailed by a neck from Elixer, paying $23.80.

Count Turf, a Flamingo eligible, was another neck back. The other Flamingo hopefuls in the field were Timely Reward, Blinker Light and Ken.

A couple of outsiders thrilled the longshot players by finishing heads apart on the wire in the fourth race. The winner was J. Levy's Sir Walter R, ridden by Tom Barrow. He paid $190.40, $66.90 and $21.30 across the board.

Palica Passes Test

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (INS)—It is a moot question which is the more objectionable character in sports—the mealy-mouthed mock-modest hypocrite or the loud-mouthed braggart.

We always believed the bird who said he wanted to "lay down his life for Dear Old Rutgers," was a phony spouting pure corn. And Max Baer, before he got some sense, was hard on the nerves when he went around boasting he "would kill Jim Braddock" and advising Mike Jacobs to have a stretcher and ambulance ready to cart away Braddock.

We don't mind a certain amount of cockiness in an athlete, especially a young one. It bespeaks confidence in his own ability. We have no objection to that just so he doesn't overdo it.

We always admired the way Tony Canzoneri, the former world's lightweight champion, spoke and acted. Before a fight he would always admit the other fellow was pretty good and then add that he thought he could lick him.

In his first fight with Jimmy McLarnin, a terrific puncher, Jimmy landed a full right hand flush on Tony's jaw. Somehow Tony weathered that first round wallop and came back to his corner with his legs wobbling like a drunken duck's Tony's handler's working feverishly between rounds, were visibly upset, but Tony said quietly: "Don't worry, if that's the best he has, I'll beat him." And he did.

The inimitable Dizzy Dean has been called a braggart but Diz never promised to do more than he knew he could do. There was the day, for instance, when he walked over to the Boston bench and told the Braves:

"I'm going to beat you fellers today and I'm not going to throw a single curve—nothing but fast ones." The Braves gave him the Bronx cheer but Diz made good on his boast as he threw nothing but fast ones and shut them out with three hits.

And you will recall that disputed incident in the world series when Babe Ruth pointed to the center field bleachers with his bat indicating that he would hit the next ont in there. He did.

We recall one occasion when the Babe promised a bed-ridden little boy in a hospital that he would hit a homer for him that afternoon. And the Babe hit two homers.

The Frenchman, Georges Carpentier, thrilled the fight mob and rocked Jack Dempsey back on his heels with a straight right to the jaw. Dempsey's manager turned white but Jack told him between rounds: "if that's his Sunday punch, I'll flatten him sure." And he did.

Gene Sarazen gave many examples of quiet confidence in his ability to do certain things with a golf ball. Once in Cleveland he needed a 30-foot putt to beat Lawson Little for the National Open.

The gallery swarmed on the green and the officials begged the fans to give Gene a chance. "All I need is elbow room to sink this one," said Gene. His putt hung on the rim to give him a tie.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25. (INS)—I thought when I first heard that Victor Desny was claiming that Billy Wilder had plagiarized "Ace In The Hole" that it was just another one of those threatened suits that happen so often in the picture business.

Then I heard that Desny was being represented by Jerry Giesler, one of Hollywood's top attorneys, and Oliver Schwab, and that the Governor of Kentucky is helping in the fight. So I started to investigate.

Desny claims he wrote "Ace In The Hole," which is about Floyd Collins, who was trapped in a cave in Kentucky and lost his life some years ago, and submitted it to Wilder. Desny states that he had permission from the Collins family to make the picture and had agreed to give them a percentage of the proceeds.

Giesler, who always prefers to settle everything amicably and out of court whenever it is possible, has given Paramount a week to make a decision. At Paramount, Sid Justin, head of the legal department, stated that there are threats made against almost every picture made, but that Paramount is investigating the Desny claim because Jerry Giesler has taken the case.

When Diana Douglas (The ex-Mrs. Kirk Douglas) starts work in "Storm Over Tibet" she will have opposite her a young TV actor named Rex Reason who has never before faced a camera—or even visited a studio. How come?

Well, it seems that Producers Ivan Tors and Laslo Benedec saw young Reason (isn't that name rather confusing) on a TV show and signed him on a four-year deal right after making a camera test.

There was a good deal of excitement a few days ago when Clark Gable and Z. Wayne Griffin were seen on the Universal-International lot. What was Gable doing there?

Well, my Hawkshaw, the detective, traced it down. Gable had just seen "Tomahawk" which George Sherman directed. So, he and Z. Wayne went to Universal City to try to get George to direct their first independent film. But he cannot be spared by U. I.

In the course of conversation it was revealed that Clark has not yet given up the idea of getting Jane Russell to star in this picture.

She and the Duke, who are admirers of his, are reported giving a big party at the St. Regis where he's booked for a midnight stint after the show.

Phil Silvers was shaved by a drunken barber one morning on Hollywood Boulevard, or so he says, discovering the man's condition too late to do anything but submit and pray. The miracle occurred, and he escaped without a nick. "Did I do you okay?" queried the barber, swaying perceptibly. "I don't know how, but you did," agreed Silvers. "In that case," grinned the barber, "I guess it's safe to shave myself."

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25. (INS)—I thought when I first heard that Victor Desny was claiming that Billy Wilder had plagiarized "Ace In The Hole" that it was just another one of those threatened suits that happen so often in the picture business.

Then I heard that Desny was being represented by Jerry Giesler, one of Hollywood's top attorneys, and Oliver Schwab, and that the Governor of Kentucky is helping in the fight. So I started to investigate.

Desny claims he wrote "Ace In The Hole," which is about Floyd Collins, who was trapped in a cave in Kentucky and lost his life some years ago, and submitted it to Wilder. The top picture shows firemen from Potomac Fire Company, Westernport, and Tri-Towns Fire Company, Piedmont, in the lodge clubroom after the flames had been extinguished. The lower picture shows the Piedmont Moose Lodge office, where the worst of the costly fire centered. The blaze was confined to the street floor of the E. J. Fredlock Building, Lyons and Jones Streets. It was discovered about 8:50 a. m. yesterday in a trash room by Charles Hood, janitor. Hood burned his right hand in an unsuccessful effort to curb the flames. Most of the loss was in decorations and furnishings which the lodge had installed two weeks ago, firemen said. Furniture and equipment owned by the Fredlock Manufacturing and Building Company on the second floor was undamaged. The three-story building is 75 years old.

New Idea

JACK CARSON, one of the four comedians who show up like the bill for the rent once a month on NBC's "Four Star Revue," has come up with a fresh idea, of all things. He'd better stop this sort of thing right now or he'll get in trouble with the authorities. Ideas in television are frowned on as upsetting to the general welfare and conceivably subversive.

John Crosby

The idea that struck Mr. Carson, who is a sort of junior edition of Jack Oakie, is to put a story line in the big lavish Wednesday night (8 p. m. EST) musical. As ideas go, this is hardly wildly original but no one else has done it. Dissatisfied with the loose vaudeville format of most of the comedy shows, Carson hired one of Fred Allen's ex-writers, Nat Hiken, and the two of them have developed a show which has a beginning, a middle and an end.

* * *

Carson has eight people under contract who appear on each show; their names change but their characters don't and neither does Carson's. Eventually he hopes to be able to get the same sort of character laughs which were the stock in trade of most radio shows. Carson plays the role of a good-natured overgrown calf who gets pushed around by everyone from stagehands to gangsters. And the other guy always gets the girl. Broad of beam and of face, a sort of Toots Shor who fell in with evil companions and took to acting, Carson fits the role admirably.

The stories in which Mr. Carson and stooges are encased are not anything the Library of Congress couldn't get along without and are sometimes pretty preposterous but they do hold the show together. The last one concerned Mr. Carson's attempts to get three tickets to "Guys and Dolls," a rather slender idea to hang an hour show on. A platoon of ticket speculators, dressed in the most amazing zoot suits, led him a chase through Manhattan which ends in a tunnel underneath the Hudson River ("Don't open any windows.") where he is relieved of all his cash, finds himself $6,000 in debt and in possession not only of the "Guys and Dolls" tickets but also 30 tickets to "Abie's Irish Rose" which, he is informed, are terribly hard to get because the play closed several decades ago.

* * *

Somewhere before the end of the piece, Mr. Carson is bereft of his tickets, his girl and his pants which gives you some idea of the abuse he has to take once a month. Altogether the script was amusing though not exactly uproarious and Mr. Carson, an expert mugger and student of the double-take, did well by it. In a furtive way, the show is a sort of travesty on "Guys and Dolls." The ticket specs strongly resemble most of the Broadway characters in that show; the scene under the river is more than a little reminiscent of the dice game in a sewer in "Guys and Dolls;" and a girl singing "Harbor Lights" in a nasal Brooklyn accent could easily have been suggested by Vivian Blaine's rendition of "Take Back Your Mink."

I have a few reservations. Mr. Hiken sometimes goes to extremes of low comedy—a pants-switching scene in a tailor shop, for example — which leaves me wondering whether television is here to stay. Also, I'm a little exasperated by Mr. Carson's implied characterization of his birthplace, Milwaukee, as strictly a yokel town. I sprang from Milwaukee myself and found it a very agreeable and surprisingly enlightened community.

NBC has always had an alarming weakness for grandiose production numbers in its musicals—all those pretty girls kicking their bare legs at you—and Mr. Carson has happily thrown most of this out and subordinated the songs and dances to the plot. He has also tossed out the guest stars—he's had only one—on their handsome, high-priced behinds, under the theory they smell up the story and upset his regular cast. It's a courageous gesture since guests do attract listeners. Only time will tell whether it'll work.

The stories in which Mr. Carson and stooges are encased are not anything the Library of Congress couldn't get along without and are sometimes pretty preposterous but they do hold the show together. The last one concerned Mr. Carson's attempts to get three tickets to "Guys and Dolls," a rather slender idea to hang an hour show on. A platoon of ticket speculators, dressed in the most amazing zoot suits, led him a chase through Manhattan which ends in a tunnel underneath the Hudson River ("Don't open any windows.") where he is relieved of all his cash, finds himself $6,000 in debt and in possession not only of the "Guys and Dolls" tickets but also 30 tickets to "Abie's Irish Rose" which, he is informed, are terribly hard to get because the play closed several decades ago.

Somewhere before the end of the piece, Mr. Carson is bereft of his tickets, his girl and his pants which gives you some idea of the abuse he has to take once a month. Altogether the script was amusing though not exactly uproarious and Mr. Carson, an expert mugger and student of the double-take, did well by it. In a furtive way, the show is a sort of travesty on "Guys and Dolls." The ticket specs strongly resemble most of the Broadway characters in that show; the scene under the river is more than a little reminiscent of the dice game in a sewer in "Guys and Dolls;" and a girl singing "Harbor Lights" in a nasal Brooklyn accent could easily have been suggested by Vivian Blaine's rendition of "Take Back Your Mink."

I have a few reservations. Mr. Hiken sometimes goes to extremes of low comedy—a pants-switching scene in a tailor shop, for example — which leaves me wondering whether television is here to stay. Also, I'm a little exasperated by Mr. Carson's implied characterization of his birthplace, Milwaukee, as strictly a yokel town. I sprang from Milwaukee myself and found it a very agreeable and surprisingly enlightened community.

NBC has always had an alarming weakness for grandiose production numbers in its musicals—all those pretty girls kicking their bare legs at you—and Mr. Carson has happily thrown most of this out and subordinated the songs and dances to the plot. He has also tossed out the guest stars—he's had only one—on their handsome, high-priced behinds, under the theory they smell up the story and upset his regular cast. It's a courageous gesture since guests do attract listeners. Only time will tell whether it'll work.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

F D W H T X E C H F Y D N K T X I A X F F X X T Q Y D. V N K F H C C A, W T N O W A C E V N K F —P X K E H P X K F D.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: NOTHING CAN SATISFY, BUT WHAT IT CONFOUNDS; NOTHING, BUT WHAT ASTONISHES, IS TRUE—YOUNG.

Firemen Request Pension Aid From County Board

A delegation of firemen from the Cumberland Fire Department appeared before the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday to request the board to contribute towards the city firemens' pension fund.

Members of the county board said they have no power to make contributions to the city firemens' pension fund. The matter was brought up concerning the contributions made to the 18 volunteer fire companies in the county by the board.

It was explained to the city firemen this is done under a law passed many years ago and is money for upkeep and maintenance of buildings and equipment of the fire companies.

The city firemen then asked about the possibility of the county board sponsoring a bill under which the city firemen could be given a contribution.

Members of the board indicated they could not go along with this proposal.

It was stated that the city firemen were interested in a contribution each year for the next 10 years.

Market, In Slow Session, Manages To Swing Higher

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—After struggling through a slow session, the stock market today managed to swing higher.

Most of the impetus for the rise was concentrated in the closing phases of the session.

Closing plus signs were small with few of them going beyond a dollar a share. At the same time there was a liberal sprinkling of losses that ran to a dollar or more.

Phillips Petroleum was the day's most active issue closing off 1½ at 79¾. Directors announced plans to split the common two-for-one, and the president estimated 1950 earnings at $8.50 a share as against $7.36 a share the previous year.

After the market closed directors of Gulf Oil announced their intention of declaring a 100 per cent stock dividend if shareholders approve an increase in capitalization to 50,000,000 shares from the present 20,000,000 shares. Gulf closed up 1 at 88¼.

The volume of trading contracted to 2,080,000 shares, the smallest since Dec. 13 when 2,030,000 changed hands.

There were 1,167 individual issues traded, also the smallest number since Dec. 13. An even 500 issues advanced and 383 declined with 35 new highs for 1950-51 being established and only one new low being reached.

Pepsi-Cola continued a favorite and was second most active closing up ¼ at 12. New York Central took the third spot off ⅝ at 23⅝. The only other stock showing a loss among the 15 most active was Baltimore & Ohio off ⅜ at 23.

Jim Delsing Signs

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 23 (AP)—Outfielder Jim Delsing has signed his 1951 contract with the St. Louis Browns, the club announced today.

Delsing, 25, acquired from the New York Yankees last June, finished the 1950 season with a .269 batting average and a fielding percentage of .994, one of the highest marks in the league. He was the sixth Brownie to come to terms this year.

Bob Neyland Gets Lifetime Contract As Coach Of Vols

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 23 (AP)—Gen. Bob Neyland was handed a lifetime contract today to continue developing precision, power-packed football teams at Tennessee.

Extension of Neyland's coaching contract followed one of his most successful seasons. His 1950 team won 10 games, lost one and upset Texas, 20-14, in the Cotton Bowl. Tennessee was the number 4 team in the country in the final Associated Press poll.

Salary terms were not disclosed, but Chairman N. W. Dougherty of the Tennessee Athletic Council said the new agreement called for a "slight increase" for Neyland and his entire staff.

Neyland's salary has never been announced. Speculation has placed it at $16,500, plus $2,500 annually for "expenses." The new contract is expected to run his pay well above the $20,000 mark, making Neyland one of collegiate football's highest paid coaches.

The 58-year old Tennessee mentor is the second disciple of the single-wing system to receive a "lifetime" coaching contract in recent weeks. Princeton gave Charlie Caldwell a similar contract after he piloted the Tigers through an unbeaten campaign last fall.

Firemen Request Pension Aid From County Board

A delegation of firemen from the Cumberland Fire Department appeared before the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday to request the board to contribute towards the city firemens' pension fund.

Members of the county board said they have no power to make contributions to the city firemens' pension fund. The matter was brought up concerning the contributions made to the 18 volunteer fire companies in the county by the board.

It was explained to the city firemen this is done under a law passed many years ago and is money for upkeep and maintenance of buildings and equipment of the fire companies.

The city firemen then asked about the possibility of the county board sponsoring a bill under which the city firemen could be given a contribution.

Members of the board indicated they could not go along with this proposal.

It was stated that the city firemen were interested in a contribution each year for the next 10 years.

Market, In Slow Session, Manages To Swing Higher

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—After struggling through a slow session, the stock market today managed to swing higher.

Most of the impetus for the rise was concentrated in the closing phases of the session.

Closing plus signs were small with few of them going beyond a dollar a share. At the same time there was a liberal sprinkling of losses that ran to a dollar or more.

Phillips Petroleum was the day's most active issue closing off 1½ at 79¾. Directors announced plans to split the common two-for-one, and the president estimated 1950 earnings at $8.50 a share as against $7.36 a share the previous year.

After the market closed directors of Gulf Oil announced their intention of declaring a 100 per cent stock dividend if shareholders approve an increase in capitalization to 50,000,000 shares from the present 20,000,000 shares. Gulf closed up 1 at 88¼.

The volume of trading contracted to 2,080,000 shares, the smallest since Dec. 13 when 2,030,000 changed hands.

There were 1,167 individual issues traded, also the smallest number since Dec. 13. An even 500 issues advanced and 383 declined with 35 new highs for 1950-51 being established and only one new low being reached.

Pepsi-Cola continued a favorite and was second most active closing up ¼ at 12. New York Central took the third spot off ⅝ at 23⅝. The only other stock showing a loss among the 15 most active was Baltimore & Ohio off ⅜ at 23.

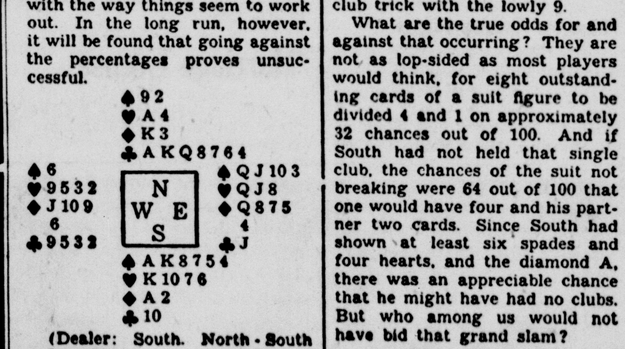
"The Authority on Authorities"

PROBABILITIES VITAL

KNOWLEDGE of the probabilities connected with the game is vital to being a strong player. In many situations there is nothing else to guide us. Every experienced cardsman has some information on the subject. But a certain amount of it is not truly information, but a general feeling engendered by our experiences with the way things seem to work out. In the long run, however, it will be found that going against the percentages proves unsuccessful.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	5 NT	Pass
6 ♥	Pass	7 NT	Dbl
Pass	Pass	Redbl

When the Blackwood 4-No Trumps brought South's response of 5-Hearts showing two aces, and the 5-No Trumps brought the answer of 6-Hearts to show two kings, North thought he could count up thirteen absolutely certain tricks—seven in clubs and two each with the double toppers of the other three suits. So, to obviate danger of a defensive ruff, he put the grand slam into No Trumps. East's double was so welcomed by him that he redoubled without a moment's qualm.

It was painful to see him beaten a trick after East led the diamond 5, which was won by the dummy's A. Naturally he was pleased to see the dummy possessing a club, which he led to the second trick. When the J fell on his A, he was worried, and the laying down of the King disclosed West's holding, certain to take a club trick with the lowly 9.

What are the true odds for and against that occurring? They are not as lop-sided as most players would think, for eight outstanding cards of a suit figure to be divided 4 and 1 on approximately 32 chances out of 100. And if South had not held that single club, the chances of the suit not breaking were 64 out of 100 that one would have four and his partner two cards. Since South had shown at least six spades and four hearts, and the diamond A, there was an appreciable chance that he might have had no clubs. But who among us would not have bid that grand slam?

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

How would you play for all thirteen tricks at No Trump if you were North and East led the spade 9? How if he led the diamond 3?

Jim Delsing Signs

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 23 (AP)—Outfielder Jim Delsing has signed his 1951 contract with the St. Louis Browns, the club announced today.

Delsing, 25, acquired from the New York Yankees last June, finished the 1950 season with a .269 batting average and a fielding percentage of .994, one of the highest marks in the league. He was the sixth Brownie to come to terms this year.

Bob Neyland Gets Lifetime Contract As Coach Of Vols

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 23 (AP)—Gen. Bob Neyland was handed a lifetime contract today to continue developing precision, power-packed football teams at Tennessee.

Extension of Neyland's coaching contract followed one of his most successful seasons. His 1950 team won 10 games, lost one and upset Texas, 20-14, in the Cotton Bowl. Tennessee was the number 4 team in the country in the final Associated Press poll.

Salary terms were not disclosed, but Chairman N. W. Dougherty of the Tennessee Athletic Council said the new agreement called for a "slight increase" for Neyland and his entire staff.

Neyland's salary has never been announced. Speculation has placed it at $16,500, plus $2,500 annually for "expenses." The new contract is expected to run his pay well above the $20,000 mark, making Neyland one of collegiate football's highest paid coaches.

The 58-year old Tennessee mentor is the second disciple of the single-wing system to receive a "lifetime" coaching contract in recent weeks. Princeton gave Charlie Caldwell a similar contract after he piloted the Tigers through an unbeaten campaign last fall.

Cable Break Disrupts 1,600 Telephones In City

Civil Defense Preview Given Cumberland

Police Forced To Alter Setup

Cumberland got a preview of a Civil Defense emergency last night when a cable break on North Centre Street disabled 1,600 of the city's approximately 8,000 telephones and police headquarters and Central fire station were placed on an emergency basis.

Phone service to police headquarters went completely out of order last night about 8:40 p. m. and Central Fire Station's switchboard was rendered useless necessitating the taking of emergency means to combat the disruption of communications when an underground cable was damaged in the vicinity of the Kaldor parking lot on North Centre Street.

Morrisey Handles Calls

Officer Kenneth Morrisey was dispatched to the telephone office on South Centre Street by Desk Sgt. Curtis McA. Kime, to handle all emergency calls which were relayed to police headquarters by radio from a cruiser car just outside the telephone company building.

George H. Norris, central office foreman, in charge of the test center and repairmen for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, said repair crews were dispatched immediately after the first reports began to come in about 1:45 p. m.

Workers last night reported the underground duct which housed the telephone cable had apparently been broken and damaged by water department crews who had been making repairs to water mains on Centre Street yesterday. The telephone men said it appeared that a pipe had been driven into the cable duct breaking the duct and permitting water to leak in on the cable thus shorting it and rendering it useless. Norris explained that as the cable became wet more and more telephones would be put out of order and telephone officials expressed the belief that some 2,000 phones would be rendered useless before the damage was repaired.

Centre Street Blocked

Repair crews had torn up an area of about 15 feet along Centre Street last night blocking off traffic on the west bound thoroughfare.

Central fire station's switchboard was out of commission but was reported using another line to receive calls at the station. Emergency calls were being received at 1481 firemen said.

Telephones on Bedford, Frederick, Centre and Baltimore Streets and North End were out of order Norris said, and telephone company expected to have the damage repaired this morning.

PHONE SERVICE in downtown Cumberland and in part of the North End was disrupted last night by a cable break on North Centre Street. In the top picture, Charles W. Ehrbar, a splicer for the C&P Telephone Company, is shown working in the rain on North Centre Street as he attempts to repair the cable. In the lower picture, Police Officer Kenneth Morrissey is shown at the temporary police communications headquarters set up in the Telephone Building. Morrissey was in civilian clothes because he was called in suddenly for emergency duty. He relayed messages to a police cruiser outside the building where another policeman broadcast the message over the police radio.

Emergency Phone System Set Up By Local Police

Cable Disruption Hits Communications

An emergency communications system set up by the Cumberland Police Department after its phones went out last evening was reported working well late last night.

Shortly after 8:40 p. m. phone service at Police Headquarters failed when a water department worker cut into a phone cable on North Centre Street, throwing some 1,600 lines out of service.

Quick cooperation between the Police Department, with its radio station and radio-equipped cruiser cars, and the C. and P. Telephone Company soon found a solution to the problem.

An emergency police headquarters was set up at the Telephone building, in charge of Officer Kenneth Morrisey.

Officer Morrisey said the system worked like this:

All calls to the police department over lines 1680 were automatically transferred to 9977 and 9978, at the telephone office.

As soon as the officer took the message, he went outside to his cruiser and radioed to Desk Sgt. Curtis M. Kime, who was in charge of desk work last night at police headquarters.

Any messages from Sgt. Kime to the outside were phoned by Officer Morrisey.

Officer Morrisey praised the cooperation of the phone company in the emergency and said the system was working well.

The officer remained at his post until he was relieved by a member of the 1 a. m. platoon.

The Fire Department lines to Central, West and East Side Fire Stations were also affected.

Police said any telephone calls for those stations go to emergency police headquarters, then would be radioed to the stations through two cruisers stationed in the North End, providing quick service to that area.

The crisis did not affect the operation of the department's independent alarm system, police said.

Police said four cruisers would be kept in full operation throughout the emergency.

Volunteers Are Needed For Civil Defense Work

Gibson Appeals For Local Applicants

Arthur B. Gibson, Civil Defense director for the City of Cumberland, yesterday issued an appeal for volunteer Civil Defense officers.

Such officers, he said, will be needed throughout the city to assemble and record essential information on the areas they will protect.

Applications to the Civil Service Director, City Hall, Cumberland, should list the applicants name, address, age, color, occupation, telephones at home or business address and the hours available for service.

Civil Service Officers, Gibson said, will have no police authority since such authority is delegated to the police and auxiliary police departments.

When sufficient applications are received, data will be assembled and turned over to zone, district and precinct chiefs who can then plan how to protect each block in the city.

Gibson said women as well as men will be eligible to become Civil Defense officers, especially those who will not be eligible for military service.

The set up in Cumberland will include civil defense officers in each election zone, precinct and block.

Decree Filed

A divorce decree was signed yesterday by Judge Morgan C. Harris in Allegany County Circuit Court. The decree was given to Elizabeth F. Nixon from Harold F. Nixon.

Police Question Keyser Resident In Shooting

Clarksburg Man Listed In Critical Condition

Ralph Lemons, 42, Clarksburg, W. Va., continued in critical condition in St. Mary's Hospital, Clarksburg, yesterday with a bullet in the stomach reportedly inflicted upon him by a Keyser, W. Va. resident, who is his wife's former husband.

Clarksburg Police Chief E. F. Amsler, Jr., said yesterday he was holding for questioning William H. Riddle, about 35, an employe of the Railway Express Company in Keyser. The chief identified Riddle as the divorced husband of Mrs. Lemons.

The Keyser man was picked up Monday in the Mineral county town and was returned to Clarksburg for questioning. Clarksburg police said the shooting resulted soon after Riddle appeared at the Lemons' home early Sunday.

After the shooting Mrs. Lemons was arrested on a charge of being drunk.

The woman told Clarksburg police that she and her husband were having a few drinks in the kitchen of the home when Riddle arrived. There was no argument, she added, but when Riddle reached the kitchen door as he was leaving, he turned suddenly and fired three shots from a pistol.

Equity Cases Filed

Two equity cases were filed in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday. The bills of complaint were titled Katherine Ottard vs. Emmanuel D. Ottard and Glendon L. Wolford vs. Mary Ellen Wolford.

House Listed As Fire Hazard To Be Rebuilt

Permits Granted For Building Work

A permit to rebuild a house on Anderson and Pine Streets which the city recently ordered demolished as a fire hazard has been issued by City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer.

Joseph A. Ashby, Cherry Lane, secured a permit Friday to rebuild the structure.

The new building is to be 25 by 25 feet, with frame walls and composition roof with a stone foundation. The Engineer's office was told the old foundation was to be used.

Cost of the work was estimated at $2,000. Ashby, the office said, purchased the lot on which the condemned house stands, from its owners in New York City.

Labor Dispute Group Will Be Reactivated

Council Approval Is Slated Monday

Mayor Thomas S. Post announced last night that the city will reactivate the Labor-Management-Citizens Committee today.

He said a list of appointments to the committee designed to foster better labor-management relations in this city will be submitted to the Mayor and Council Monday for formal approval.

Names of those appointed to the committee were not disclosed, pending informal acceptance of appointments.

The committee has generally been inactive since the death of Former Judge William A. Huster, who was named chairman when the group was activated here last May.

Mayor Post said the action to reactivate the committee has been taken upon the recommendation of a number of interested citizens and organizations.

Such labor-management-citizens groups, Mayor Post said, have had an enviable record in many cities in aiding in the settling of labor-management disputes.

Much of the committee's work, he commented, will be aimed at preventing friction between such groups and not waiting until trouble develops.

Mayor Post said city officials feel that the presence of such a committee will be a strong point in the city's contribution to national defense.

Policeman Wins Appeal On 7-Day Suspension

Board Rules On Officer Law's Case

The Civil Service Commission has upheld an appeal by Officer Leo E. P. Law of a seven-day suspension last month and ruled he should be reimbursed for wages lost during the period.

Law was suspended December 27, 1950, by Chief of Police P. Emmett Flynn after Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long ordered disciplinary action on a charge of "sleeping while on duty on or about 7:30 a. m. December 26."

The commission in a statement yesterday said:

"After careful consideration of the testimony in this case, the Civil Service Commission finds that the evidence submitted was not sufficient to warrant the suspension of Officer Leo E. P. Law, and, therefore, it is the unanimous opinion of the commission that the action taken by the chief of police and later affirmed by the commissioner of police and fire in this case be reversed, and that Officer Law be reimbursed for wages lost during said suspension."

The decision was reached Monday night after the commission had weighed testimony taken during a hearing on January 12. The alleged violation of duty occurred, the charges read, while Officer Law was assisting W. A. Buley, meter collector, on his rounds of the meters to collect nickels.

Buley, Flynn and Long testified during the hearing as did Officer Law. The officer was represented by Attorney Thomas B. Finan and the Commission by City Attorney W. Earle Cobey.

State Civilian Defense Chief Outlines Plans

Says Allegany County Has Made Good Start

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP)—If war is declared or a bomb falls on this continent:

The Maryland director of civilian defense will recommend that infants, the aged and the infirm be removed from potential target areas of the state.

But the ablebodied will be asked to stay put.

"We must stay and fight it out where we are," Lt. Col. David G. McIntosh, 3d, head of Maryland's civilian defense setup, told the House of Delegates today.

He appeared before the House in compliance with a resolution requesting that he give a full report on what has been accomplished so far and what further is planned to assure adequate civilian defense measures in event of an emergency.

Up To Subdivisions

McIntosh stressed that much of the work must be done on a local and county level—that it is up to the subdivisions to recruit their own volunteers and get programs started.

He signaled out Allegany, Baltimore, Harford, Howard, Anne Arundel, Cecil and Frederick Counties, as well as Baltimore City, for getting particularly good starts.

Most of the last year, McIntosh explained, has been devoted to setting up the organizational plan and developing the program.

That is why the state has not as yet called for large groups of volunteers for the various civil defense services, he explained.

"The plans and training programs to be used by volunteers must be virtually completed before volunteers are recruited, otherwise they would be disgusted by not having an immediate task to perform," the director told the delegates.

"From a long-term standpoint, this would be extremely bad for the morale of our citizens."

Program Is "Sound"

Maryland's civilian defense program is "sound and workable," and well ahead of those of many other states, he said.

He recommended:

That the city of Baltimore purchase "at least a minimum number" of air raid sirens immediately, and not wait for the federal government to set up its projected nationwide warning system.

That every Marylander take a first aid course. Disappointingly few residents have volunteered for the course so far, he said.

That existing buildings be reinforced and designated as emergency shelters, and that the state not attempt to build bomb shelters.

Col. McIntosh disclosed the state is printing thousands of pamphlets outlining what to do in event of an atom bomb attack. It hopes to assure that every family has at least one.

These pamphlets are a reprint of the central portion of the federal booklet, "Survival Under Atomic Attack."

Court Frees Mother Of Six Children

Aid Arranged For Abandoned Youngsters

No charges were placed against the mother of six destitute children who had been turned over to Juvenile Court authorities after being found living in a foundation of a house in Frostburg apparently deserted by their parents. The mother was given a hearing yesterday afternoon in Juvenile Court.

The mother, Mrs. Harold Bendix, told court authorities she had left their home to seek aid with relatives and friends in Cumberland while her husband was seeking work in Baltimore. She explained she and her husband were trying to build a house and had been living in the foundation.

The children, ranging in ages from 2 to 10, were brought to the Allegany County Infirmary Monday night, fed and bedded down for the night, after authorities had received a complaint from neighbors that they had been deserted.

Homer S. Higgins, director of pupil personnel of the Allegany County Board of Education, attended the hearing relative to his interest in children of school age in the county and said after the hearing that aid had been arranged for the children on an emergency basis by the Salvation Army and the Allegany County Welfare Board until such time as the father could get work and support his family.

The mother was located in Cumberland and appeared before Judge Thomas E. Stakem in Juvenile Court yesterday. Judge Stakem dropped all charges against the mother after hearing her testimony.

HB108—by Nowakowski—to allow a taxpayer, in computing his state income tax, without regard to the amount or source of his income, to elect either to itemize his allowable deductions or deduct 10 per cent of this income, not exceeding in any event $1,000. (Ways and Means).

HB111—by Lofstrand—to make it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of up to $100, to display any other flag or pennant above the flag of the United States, except as permitted by federal statutes and Army and Navy regulations (Veterans, Militia and State Police).

Firemen Get Good Rating In Inspection

Members of the Cumberland Fire Department received a "good" rating on appearance and conduct at a recent inspection of all of the city's four fire companies by Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long.

Commissioner Long gave the rating report in a letter to Fire Chief William L. Lindner on his personal inspection of the fire houses Friday night.

The commissioner also gave several suggestions on improvement needed in upkeep and repair of the houses.

Foreman Lacks Power To Recall His Grand Jury

Will Await Action By Court In Matter

Kenneth R. Malcolm, Westernport foreman of the January Allegany county grand jury, said last night that he would take no action to recall the grand jury to investigate a recent wave of burglaries in downtown Cumberland and complaints of the operation of race horse bookmaking establishments in the city.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long yesterday disclosed that he had called the matter to Malcolm's attention in a letter. Copies of the letter went to Associate Judge George Henderson and State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher.

Malcolm said last night that he has written a reply to Commissioner Long but would not divulge the details contained in the letter. He observed that any recall of the grand jury would have to come from the court as he has no recall authority. The grand jury was recessed January 5.

"I do not feel that it would be proper at this time for me to comment upon the letter sent to Mr. Malcolm by Commissioner of Police and Fire John J. Long. It was addressed personally to Mr. Malcolm in his capacity as foreman of the January Grand Jury, and a carbon copy was mailed to the State's Attorney's office and received this (Tuesday) morning."

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris said yesterday that he was not sent a copy of Commissioner Long's letter and considers it inappropriate for him to offer any comment for that reason.

Judge Harris did observe that the recalling of the grand jury would have to be done either by Judge Henderson or himself. The grand jury foreman has no authority to recall the grand jury although he may make such a request to the court.

The practice in Allegany county has been not to recall a grand jury after its release by the court. Once, some eight or nine years ago, a grand jury was recalled before the end of the court term to investigate an alleged murder.

Judge Henderson was enroute from Hagerstown to Cumberland last night and could not be reached for comment.

Commissioner Long's letter sets forth in detail the unsuccessful efforts of the police department to secure sufficient evidence against bookmaking establishments to get convictions in court.

In the concluding paragraph of his letter Commissioner Long states, "If you and the grand jury would be interested in names or any other information we have, the police department will cooperate to the fullest extent with you."

Cable Break Disrupts 1,600 Telephones In City

Civil Defense Preview Given Cumberland

Police Forced To Alter Setup

Cumberland got a preview of a Civil Defense emergency last night when a cable break on North Centre Street disabled 1,600 of the city's approximately 8,000 telephones and police headquarters and Central fire station were placed on an emergency basis.

Phone service to police headquarters went completely out of order last night about 8:40 p. m. and Central Fire Station's switchboard was rendered useless necessitating the taking of emergency means to combat the disruption of communications when an underground cable was damaged in the vicinity of the Kaldor parking lot on North Centre Street.

Morrisey Handles Calls

Officer Kenneth Morrisey was dispatched to the telephone office on South Centre Street by Desk Sgt. Curtis McA. Kime, to handle all emergency calls which were relayed to police headquarters by radio from a cruiser car just outside the telephone company building.

George H. Norris, central office foreman, in charge of the test center and repairmen for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, said repair crews were dispatched immediately after the first reports began to come in about 1:45 p. m.

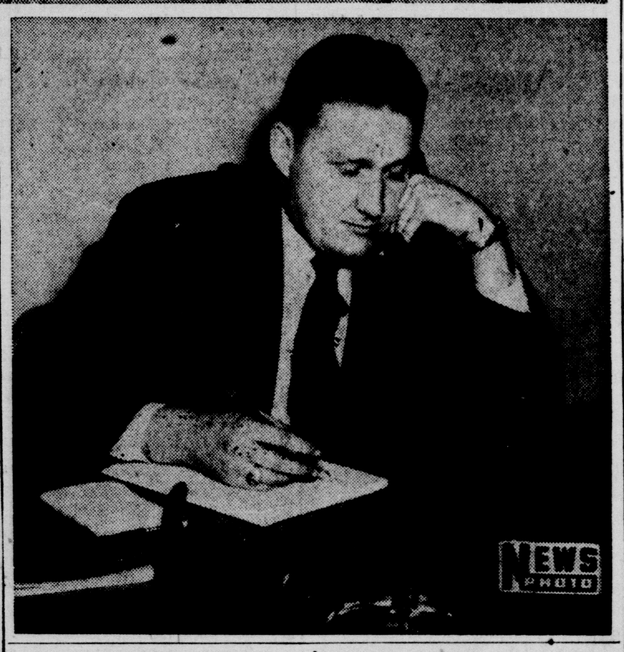
Workers last night reported the underground duct which housed the telephone cable had apparently been broken and damaged by water department crews who had been making repairs to water mains on Centre Street yesterday. The telephone men said it appeared that a pipe had been driven into the cable duct breaking the duct and permitting water to leak in on the cable thus shorting it and rendering it useless. Norris explained that as the cable became wet more and more telephones would be put out of order and telephone officials expressed the belief that some 2,000 phones would be rendered useless before the damage was repaired.

Centre Street Blocked

Repair crews had torn up an area of about 15 feet along Centre Street last night blocking off traffic on the west bound thoroughfare.

Central fire station's switchboard was out of commission but was reported using another line to receive calls at the station. Emergency calls were being received at 1481 firemen said.

Telephones on Bedford, Frederick, Centre and Baltimore Streets and North End were out of order Norris said, and telephone company expected to have the damage repaired this morning.



PHONE SERVICE in downtown Cumberland and in part of the North End was disrupted last night by a cable break on North Centre Street. In the top picture, Charles W. Ehrbar, a splicer for the C&P Telephone Company, is shown working in the rain on North Centre Street as he attempts to repair the cable. In the lower picture, Police Officer Kenneth Morrissey is shown at the temporary police communications headquarters set up in the Telephone Building. Morrissey was in civilian clothes because he was called in suddenly for emergency duty. He relayed messages to a police cruiser outside the building where another policeman broadcast the message over the police radio.

House Listed As Fire Hazard To Be Rebuilt

Permits Granted For Building Work

A permit to rebuild a house on Anderson and Pine Streets which the city recently ordered demolished as a fire hazard has been issued by City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer.

Joseph A. Ashby, Cherry Lane, secured a permit Friday to rebuild the structure.

The new building is to be 25 by 25 feet, with frame walls and composition roof with a stone foundation. The Engineer's office was told the old foundation was to be used.

Cost of the work was estimated at $2,000. Ashby, the office said, purchased the lot on which the condemned house stands, from its owners in New York City.

Clyde S. Slider, 811 Louisiana Avenue, secured a permit to build a three-room apartment in a building at 807 Cecil Street.

The cost of the addition, to be constructed of concrete block, was estimated at $1,000.

Charles S. Sullivan, 304 Magruder Street, was issued a permit to build a two story block building on Ford Avenue to be used as a gas station and for car parts storage.

The building, 20 by 20 feet, is to be constructed of concrete block with composition shingle roof at an estimated cost of $1,500.

J. E. Dyche, 221 Humbird Street, secured a permit to build a 16 by 18 foot addition to the present building at 221 Humbird Street Cost was estimated at $1,200.

News In Brief

South End Fire Company was called to the home of George B. Steele, 152 Thomas Street, yesterday a 1:29 a. m. Firemen said a cracked furnace casing allowed the house to fill with gas and smoke. They said there was no damage.

Movies of the 1950 World Series will be shown at the meeting of the Optimist Club at 6:15 p. m. today in Central Y.M.C.A.

Emergency Phone System Set Up By Local Police

Cable Disruption Hits Communications

An emergency communications system set up by the Cumberland Police Department after its phones went out last evening was reported working well late last night.

Shortly after 8:40 p. m. phone service at Police Headquarters failed when a water department worker cut into a phone cable on North Centre Street, throwing some 1,600 lines out of service.

Quick cooperation between the Police Department, with its radio station and radio-equipped cruiser cars, and the C. and P. Telephone Company soon found a solution to the problem.

An emergency police headquarters was set up at the Telephone building, in charge of Officer Kenneth Morrisey.

Officer Morrisey said the system worked like this:

All calls to the police department over lines 1680 were automatically transferred to 9977 and 9978, at the telephone office.

As soon as the officer took the message, he went outside to his cruiser and radioed to Desk Sgt. Curtis M. Kime, who was in charge of desk work last night at police headquarters.

Any messages from Sgt. Kime to the outside were phoned by Officer Morrisey.

Officer Morrisey praised the cooperation of the phone company in the emergency and said the system was working well.

The officer remained at his post until he was relieved by a member of the 1 a. m. platoon.

The Fire Department lines to Central, West and East Side Fire Stations were also affected.

Police said any telephone calls for those stations go to emergency police headquarters, then would be radioed to the stations through two cruisers stationed in the North End, providing quick service to that area.

The crisis did not affect the operation of the department's independent alarm system, police said.

Police said four cruisers would be kept in full operation throughout the emergency.

Volunteers Are Needed For Civil Defense Work

Gibson Appeals For Local Applicants

Arthur B. Gibson, Civil Defense director for the City of Cumberland, yesterday issued an appeal for volunteer Civil Defense officers.

Such officers, he said, will be needed throughout the city to assemble and record essential information on the areas they will protect.

Applications to the Civil Service Director, City Hall, Cumberland, should list the applicants name, address, age, color, occupation, telephones at home or business address and the hours available for service.

Civil Service Officers, Gibson said, will have no police authority since such authority is delegated to the police and auxiliary police departments.

When sufficient applications are received, data will be assembled and turned over to zone, district and precinct chiefs who can then plan how to protect each block in the city.

Gibson said women as well as men will be eligible to become Civil Defense officers, especially those who will not be eligible for military service.

The set up in Cumberland will include civil defense officers in each election zone, precinct and block.

Police Question Keyser Resident In Shooting

Clarksburg Man Listed In Critical Condition

Ralph Lemons, 42, Clarksburg, W. Va., continued in critical condition in St. Mary's Hospital, Clarksburg, yesterday with a bullet in the stomach reportedly inflicted upon him by a Keyser, W. Va. resident, who is his wife's former husband.

Clarksburg Police Chief E. F. Amsler, Jr., said yesterday he was holding for questioning William H. Riddle, about 35, an employe of the Railway Express Company in Keyser. The chief identified Riddle as the divorced husband of Mrs. Lemons.

The Keyser man was picked up Monday in the Mineral county town and was returned to Clarksburg for questioning. Clarksburg police said the shooting resulted soon after Riddle appeared at the Lemons' home early Sunday.

After the shooting Mrs. Lemons was arrested on a charge of being drunk.

The woman told Clarksburg police that she and her husband were having a few drinks in the kitchen of the home when Riddle arrived. There was no argument, she added, but when Riddle reached the kitchen door as he was leaving, he turned suddenly and fired three shots from a pistol.

HB111—by Lofstrand—to make it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of up to $100, to display any other flag or pennant above the flag of the United States, except as permitted by federal statutes and Army and Navy regulations (Veterans, Militia and State Police).

SB76—by McLaughlin—to authorize the transfer of a half-mile race meeting to another half-mile track (Judiciary).

Resolutions introduced:

SR5—by Goldstein—to request that the state supply free to every student from the ninth grade a copy of the state constitution (Judiciary).

Firemen Get Good Rating In Inspection

Members of the Cumberland Fire Department received a "good" rating on appearance and conduct at a recent inspection of all of the city's four fire companies by Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long.

Commissioner Long gave the rating report in a letter to Fire Chief William L. Lindner on his personal inspection of the fire houses Friday night.

The commissioner also gave several suggestions on improvement needed in upkeep and repair of the houses.

Foreman Lacks Power To Recall His Grand Jury

Will Await Action By Court In Matter

Kenneth R. Malcolm, Westernport foreman of the January Allegany county grand jury, said last night that he would take no action to recall the grand jury to investigate a recent wave of burglaries in downtown Cumberland and complaints of the operation of race horse bookmaking establishments in the city.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long yesterday disclosed that he had called the matter to Malcolm's attention in a letter. Copies of the letter went to Associate Judge George Henderson and State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher.

Malcolm said last night that he has written a reply to Commissioner Long but would not divulge the details contained in the letter. He observed that any recall of the grand jury would have to come from the court as he has no recall authority. The grand jury was recessed January 5.

"I do not feel that it would be proper at this time for me to comment upon the letter sent to Mr. Malcolm by Commissioner of Police and Fire John J. Long. It was addressed personally to Mr. Malcolm in his capacity as foreman of the January Grand Jury, and a carbon copy was mailed to the State's Attorney's office and received this (Tuesday) morning."

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris said yesterday that he was not sent a copy of Commissioner Long's letter and considers it inappropriate for him to offer any comment for that reason.

Judge Harris did observe that the recalling of the grand jury would have to be done either by Judge Henderson or himself. The grand jury foreman has no authority to recall the grand jury although he may make such a request to the court.

The practice in Allegany county has been not to recall a grand jury after its release by the court. Once, some eight or nine years ago, a grand jury was recalled before the end of the court term to investigate an alleged murder.

Judge Henderson was enroute from Hagerstown to Cumberland last night and could not be reached for comment.

Commissioner Long's letter sets forth in detail the unsuccessful efforts of the police department to secure sufficient evidence against bookmaking establishments to get convictions in court.

In the concluding paragraph of his letter Commissioner Long states, "If you and the grand jury would be interested in names or any other information we have, the police department will cooperate to the fullest extent with you."

ALLIES BATTLE REDS IN YONGWOL

Senate Calls On U. N. To Pin Aggressor Tag On Red China And Reject Membership Bid

Demands Of "Stop Stalling" Are Voiced As Upper Chamber Follows House's Lead

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — An aroused U.S. Senate called on the United Nations today, without a dissenting vote, to brand Communist China an aggressor.

Senators likewise asked the U.N., by a 91 to 0 vote, to turn down Red China's determined bid for United Nations membership.

Both actions came on the eve of a scheduled vote in the U.N. Political Committee on an American resolution formally declaring the Chinese Communists aggressors in Korea and opening the way for action against them.

Demands that the U. N. "stop stalling" and "show some backdone" were voiced on the Senate floor.

Follows House's Lead

The House last week adopted a unanimous resolution declaring the U. N. should condemn Red China as an aggressor.

Thus today's Senate vote put Congress solidly behind the stand taken by the U. S. delegation to the United Nations.

But among this country's allies in the anti-communist front, there was no such solid support.

In London, Prime Minister Attlee told a cheering House of Commons his government doesn't favor at this time "taking a new and important decision" embodied in the U. S. resolution to name China an outright aggressor.

He said, however, that the facts warrant "condemning Chinese intervention in support of an aggressor"—that is, North Korea.

Attlee spoke in the face of a warning from Winston Churchill that "grave dangers" will result from "any serious divergency" between U. S. and British policies.

Western Nations Split

The Prime Minister said he puts the greatest importance on Anglo-American unity, but added:

"We should never abandon recklessly or thoughtlessly any hope there may be of a peaceful settlement x x x."

Britain, France and a number of other western nations split with the U. S. yesterday in agreeing to put off for 48 hours a vote on the U. N. aggressor resolution.

The decision followed the Chinese Communists' statement that a limited cease-fire could be arranged in Korea while a seven-power conference explored the whole Far Eastern problem.

U. S. Delegate Warren Austin strongly opposed the postponement and called the Communist statement a transparent attempt to split the free world.

Arab-Asian Bloc Plans New Move

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 23 (AP)—Sir Benegal N. Rau, India's delegate to the United Nations, said tonight a 12-nation Asia-Arab group is trying to frame another Korea cease-fire plan acceptable to Communist China and the U. N.

He declined to say what form the new move—three have failed before—will take until delegates of the bloc talk with other U. N. delegations.

Rau said he did not know yet whether a formal program will be ready by the time the 60-nation U. N. Political Committee meets tomorrow (3 p. m. EST).

The group met tonight at Rau's home in New York. He said afterward that the group's ranks are still unbroken in an attempt to find a Korean-Far East peace formula. Other members are Pakistan, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Afghanistan, Egypt, Yemen, Saudi, Arabia, Burma and Syria.

They oppose the United States move to brand Communist China now as an aggressor in Korea but Rau said it was not decided tonight whether to demand priority for the new peace plan in the committee meeting tomorrow.

U. N. delegates, meanwhile, studied with great interest the speech in the House of Commons today by Prime Minister Attlee of Britain. Attlee advocated a go-slow policy on further action against Red China. The American delegation here was pushing for a fast vote on its resolution branding Red China the aggressor in Korea and leaving up to the U. N. the next steps to take as a means of punishment.

Third Diamond Smuggler Seized

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23 (AP)—A transatlantic traveller carrying diamonds in his shoe heel was nabbed today in another strike by customs agents at what they tabbed $1,500,000-plus smuggling operations.

James R. Offutt, acting supervisor of customs agents, said the man is Eli Stern, 29, Brooklyn, N. Y., and he had $119,346 in industrial diamonds, wholesale value. Stern was seized as he landed on a plane from Havana, Cuba, and was charged with smuggling.

Two other travelers, one a pleasant-appearing young woman, were seized earlier in New York on charges of smuggling in industrial diamonds in the heels of their shoes.

Plump auburn-haired Eta Hoffmann, 26-year-old Belgian emigree, was jailed under high bail on charges of smuggling a million-dollar booty in the hollow heels of her shoes.

A 31-year-old Austrian, Leiser Weitman, was arrested Sunday when he arrived at the airport, also from Belgium. He allegedly had $500,000 worth of industrial diamonds hidden in his shoeheels.

Renegotiation Bill OK'd

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Legislation to recapture any unduly large war profits through contract renegotiation was passed today by the House and sent to the Senate.

Starting The Long Road Back

Marshall Takes Responsibility For UMST Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall took personal responsibility today for tying together the proposals to draft 18-year-olds now and to make universal military service and training a fixture for the future.

"My thinking is going beyond next June," the General told the House Armed Services Committee, referring to the current goal of 3,462,000 men under arms by that time.

Calls For 18-Year Draft

Marshall renewed the Defense Department contention that the alternative to the 18-year draft is induction of veterans, men with dependents, or both, to meet present needs. Asking that no legal limitation be put on use of 18-year-olds, he repeated his assurance that no draftee taken in at the start of the program will be sent to a combat area before his 19th birthday except in "dire emergency."

And in support of the longer range UMST proposal the World War II Army Chief of Staff and former Secretary of State gravely told the committee:

This country does not now have the kind of time—a year to 22 months—that it took to raise and train a division in the last war.

Situation "Dangerous"

Unless there is a system for raising troops quickly out of a reservoir of trained men, "I feel we are in a very dangerous situation."

If we had UMT in 1947 "we would not be threatened with war today."

Marshall was leadoff witness before the House committee for a bill to (A) lower the draft age to 18 from the present 19 (B) raise the service term from 21 to 27 months (C) hold the men in reserve or National Guard units for a period of years after their terms of active duty and (D) carry that program into permanent UMST as fast as the current world emergency permits.

Negro Agent Traps Dope Wholesalers

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—A negro federal agent, disguised in a French beret and a trench coat with a fur collar, risked his life to trap a dozen "big shots" accused today of supplying dope to New York's carriage trade.

The overnight roundup of 12 alleged major narcotics wholesalers was described as a "paralyzing body blow" to the illegal drug traffic when the men were arraigned today in federal court. A hearing was set for Friday.

The unidentified agent smoked big cigars and posed as an interstate narcotics distributor, several times risking his life, District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said. Hogan said he wore the unusual apparel to establish himself as a "character" and perhaps lessen any suspicion.

Baltimore Transit Offers 5-Cent Boost

World's Largest Helicopter Tested

CULVER CITY, Calif., Jan. 23 (AP)—The world's largest helicopter, a mammoth jet-propelled eggbeater built for the U. S. Air Force by the Hughes Aircraft Co., was given ground tests today.

The helicopter, the XH-17, was damaged during tests last June 22 when it tore loose from its moorings. The Air Force announced that after complete ground tests the craft will be made ready to fly by the addition of a flight control system, tail boom, tail rotor and horizontal stabilizer.

The craft, which has a rotor about 120 feet in length, is designed for short range moving of military equipment such as trucks, tanks and bridge sections.

U. S. Aid Funds Aid Red Bloc

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Sen. Herbert R. O'Conor said today that American aid funds have been used by some Western European nations to send materials useful in war to nations behind the iron curtain.

A couple of hours earlier, an American aluminum manufacturer testified to a House committee that Canada has been shipping aluminum "almost continuously" to Poland, Czechoslovakia and other Soviet-dominated nations.

O'Conor, a Maryland Democrat, heads a Senate subcommittee which repeatedly has expressed concern over the export and train shipment of strategic goods to potential enemies of the western world.

After a meeting of his committee with Assistant Secretary of State Willard L. Thorp, O'Conor said some Western European countries have used U. S. recovery funds to build factories that sent "war potential goods" to areas dominated by Moscow.

Catholic Bishop Dies

BRENTWOOD, Eng., Jan. 23 (AP)—The Most Rev. Dr. Arthur Doubleday, Roman Catholic bishop of Brentwood, died today.

Air Defense Chiefs Can Call Out Guard

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Commanders of the eastern and western U. S. air defense forces were given authority today to call up Air National Guard units in a national emergency.

Secretary of the Air Force Finletter announced the action and said it is intended to prevent any loss of time "when an enemy air attack is imminent."

Before last July, the President had the sole right to order any National Guard units into active service. Shortly after the Korean war started, this power was delegated to the secretaries of the military services.

San Diego Asks Help

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 23 (AP)—San Diego is bulging at the seams again. The City Council says it needs 20,000 additional homes within 90 days.

Senate Gives Its O.K. To Johnston As ESA Director

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Senate gave its o.k. to Eric Johnston as economic stabilization administrator and to William H. Harrison as defense production administrator today, opening the way for a series of fast economic actions that will affect the humblest citizen.

Some officials said they hoped the expected nationwide freeze of prices can be issued by Friday, but they added there is no certainty of this.

Rubber Cuts Loom

Meantime, the government moved to conserve an article vital in the defense effort—natural rubber. The National Production Authority announced that rubber manufacturers will meet with officials tomorrow to begin drafting recommendations for saving the natural product.

This indicated further cuts in the natural rubber content of auto tires, and perhaps elimination of its use in some other products. At present 65 per cent of the rubber used in a passenger car tide may be natural rubber.

No Roll Call On Johnston

The Senate acted without a roll call in confirming Johnston and Harrison. They will serve under Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson in the government's revamped setup to mobilize the nation's economic resources in the world emergency.

Johnston, as head of the Economic Stabilization Agency, is expected to issue promptly an order turning over to the price and wage offices of the ESA the power to proceed with the sweeping price-wage controls that members of Congress have been demanding.

Train, Truck Crash; 18 Die

TORTOSA, Spain, Jan. 23 (AP)—A collision of a passenger train and truck killed 18 persons and injured 28 others near here today. The locomotive and six coaches on the Valencia train rolled down a steep embankment.

"Jim Crow" Repealer Tentatively Approved By House Of Delegates

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP) — The latest in a long history of bills to repeal Maryland's "Jim Crow" law slipped unobtrusively to tentative approval in the House today.

The proposed repealer, introduced by the Fourth District delegation from Baltimore, passed without notice through a series of committee reports. It was adopted without dissent.

Some delegates said later they were not aware the measure was up for consideration.

It still faces a final vote in the House. If accepted, it would go to the Senate for a decisive vote.

Senators have called for repeal in the last two sessions of the General Assembly. But delegates have voted to retain the ancient law, which requires segregation of whites and negroes on intrastate railroads and steamboats.

The statute actually is ineffective, except on Chesapeake Bay ferries. Opponents have attacked it as an outworn "Jim Crow" symbol.

Chairman Dempsey of the House Judiciary Committee predicted delegates would pass the repealer when it returns for a final vote.

The House passed and sent to the Senate four measures, including one to permit reckless driving prosecutions of street car motormen.

Senators cleared three bills. One was a recommendation by the Tax Survey Commission to scrap the State Board of Examiners of horseshoers.

U. S. War Hero's Daughters Given Gifts From Scotland

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Two little girls—daughter of a hero who died in Korea—today were given a piece of tartan cloth and a brooch by the wife of a Scottish coal miner.

Rose Marie, 6, and Joan, 3, daughters of the late Pfc. John J. McCormick, Collingdale, Pa., were handed the gifts in a ceremony at the British Embassy.

And thus ended a strange international story.

It started with Mrs. Rita Robertson of Fifeshire, Scotland, who had small means but a large heart. She wanted to do something to show her appreciation of the American boys fighting in Korea.

So she wrote a letter to the U. S. Consul General in Glascow, saying she'd like to give the tartan cloth to some little girl, or, as she put it, to "some wee girl in America whose daddy she has lost in the war in Korea."

It was about this time that Pfc. McCormick was much in the news. He had written a letter to Rose Marie and Joannie which got a lot of publicity.

In the letter he said:

"So I have to help fight these men and keep them from coming where you and mummie live. It might take a long while, and maybe daddy will have to go and help God in heaven, and if I do, I always want you both to be good for mummie, because she is the best mummie in the whole wide world."

Shortly after writing this letter, McCormick was killed.

Gls-To-Europe Skirmish Won By Trumanites

Wherry Resolution Sent To Committees

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The administration won an important skirmish on the troops-for-Europe issue today when the Senate sent the Wherry resolution to committees for study.

The resolution, offered by Republican Floor Leader Wherry of Nebraska, would put the Senate on record as disapproving sending U. S. soldiers to join an international defense force until Congress has laid down a policy on the subject.

By sending it to committees, administration men figured that they were in position to rewrite it or scrap it entirely and substitute language approving the dispatch of troops to help build defenses against Communism.

"Ike's" Report Awaited

Today's action, taken by unanimous consent of the Senate, sidetracked a showdown at least until Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the proposed defense army, reports to Congress next week.

Eisenhower is scheduled to address an informal session of Senate and House members—possibly next Tuesday or Wednesday—on his survey of Europe's readiness to fight together, if necessary, against Soviet aggression.

The Wherry resolution was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee and the Armed Forces Committee. Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex), quarterbacking the opposition to the resolution, suggested blandly that it may die there.

In a sharp exchange, Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told Wherry he could not promise to return the measure to the Senate floor at any time.

Wherry Revised Resolution

Wherry had originally framed his resignation to declare it was "the sense of the Senate" that no American ground forces should be sent to bolster the projected 1,000,000-man international army until Congress has adopted a policy on such action.

President Truman has said he will consult with congressional leaders before sending U. S. troops to Europe, but has insisted that as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces he has full authority, on his own, to dispatch American soldiers anywhere in the world.

Wherry revised his resolution so that it would require the Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees to study his proposal and report back to the Senate by Feb. 2.

French Police Will Block Red Anti-"Ike" Rally

PARIS, Jan. 23 (AP)—France tonight alerted 6,500 police and thousands more bayonet-carrying soldiers to prevent a Communist demonstration scheduled for late tomorrow against Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The French government has outlawed the demonstration. The Communists, however, announced their determination to go ahead. Reliable sources said Moscow had rapped French party members across the knuckles for fizzling of anti-Eisenhower manifestations here when the General flew to Europe two weeks ago and ordered them to try again.

Interior Ministry officials ordered mobilization of all available police and militia in the Paris area.

Units of the tough, riot-seasoned Republican Security Guard were ordered to duty tomorrow night in the area of the Arc De Triomphe, near which stands the General's temporary offices as Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe (SHAPE). The offices are in the Hotel Astoria.

Gen. Eisenhower, who returned to Paris today from Frankfurt, appeared unconcerned about the Communist threats. He held a series of staff conferences, visited Versailles and received British Field Marshal Lord Montgomery.

French authorities, however, were frankly worried about the possibility of a riot. Two streets in the immediate area are under repair, with huge piles of bricks and paving blocks lying about.

"That's their ammunition," an official said.

"Glimmer Of Hope"

New Guinea Volcano Toll Over 3,000

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 23 (AP)—Government authorities said tonight 35 Europeans and more than 3,000 Papuan natives probably died in the volcanic flames and convulsions of New Guinea's "spirit" mountain.

The mountain is Mt. Lamington, 80 miles northeast of Port Moresby. It continued to gush smoke and flame today after six explosions, from Thursday to Sunday, blew off its entire north face and seared the jungle for 10 miles about.

Australian officials gave this summary of possible the greatest natural disaster in this part of the world this century:

The native death toll probably will exceed 3,000, and casualties may reach 4,000.

No hope held for the survival of 35 Europeans.

Nimitz To Head Security Board Truman-Created

Will Study Operation Of Loyalty Program

Chester Nimitz

Among other things, the board will have power to sift Sen. McCarthy's Communists-in-government charges, though Mr. Truman emphasized its scope is far broader than the activities of the federal government. He defined the board's task as finding "the wisest balance that can be struck between security and freedom."

The President named Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz to head the group which he called "a commission on internal security and individual rights." He said eight other "distinguished citizens" will be chosen on "a nonpartisan basis."

While the Chief Executive, in a 1,200-word statement announcing his action, never made reference to the charges by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) which set off a heated controversy in Congress and over the nation, the move has at least the effect of a response to the McCarthy drive.

For instance Mr. Truman specified that in its investigation the new board may go as far as it wishes into individual case files in the government's loyalty and security program. McCarthy has demanded that secret government files be examined. He has charged there was a "whitewash" of his charges of Red infiltration into the administration and especially into the State Department.

A Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee under former Sen. Tydings (D-Md) held, after weeks of hearings filled with fireworks, that McCarthy had failed to prove his case.

McCarthy contended he had proved his charges and urged that if there were any gaps in the proof it was because he and the committee had been denied access to the "raw" files on FBI and other investigations of individals.

The "whitewash" charges were aired in the Maryland election in which Tydings lost his Senate seat in November to Republican John Butler.

Enemy Tries To Turn End Of U. N. Line

U. S. Patrol Drives North Of Wonju

TOKYO, Wednesday, Jan. 24 (AP)—The emboldened Communist air force sent 16 to 20 Russian-made jets against 32 U. S. Thunderjets today over North Korea. One enemy jet probably was destroyed and three damaged.

TOKYO, Wednesday, Jan. 24 (AP)—Allied forces fought in the streets of Yongwol Tuesday with Korean Communists who are trying to turn the east end of the United Nations defense line in barren Central Korea.

While ground action along the rest of the front dropped off to its lowest point in several weeks, 33 U. S. Thunderjets tangled with 18 to 28 Russian-made jets in what the Air Force labeled history's greatest jet air battle.

Without being touched by an enemy bullet, the Thunderjets shot down at least four Red MIG-15s in a 30-minute melee over Northwest Korea's Yalu River boundary. One more MIG was probably destroyed and four others were damaged.

Quiet In Wonju Sector

While the fighting raged in Yongwol, the enemy showed no willingness to fight in the Wonju sector, 31 air miles to the northwest.

For the sixth time in seven days an Allied task force paced by tanks Tuesday overran Wonju airfield and secured its frozen rice-paddy runways. They went on and seized battered Wonju itself.

Then a U. S. tank patrol stabbed five miles north of Central Korea's key highway hub without finding a Communist concentration willing to fight.

Last night the Allied forces withdrew to defense positions southeast of Wonju.

Wonju—a battered no-man's-land—has been the scene of vicious seesaw fighting for the last two weeks.

The persistent Allied pokes into Wonju plainly were discouraging a Communist buildup for an offensive through that key gateway to the road-rail network to the south.

Infiltrations Stamped Out

Southeast of Wonju, however, the U. S. Seventh Division and other Allied units were kept busy stamping out groups of Korean Reds filtering southward into the valleys.

The tungsten mining town of Yongwol was the key to this southward flanking movement by the Reds.

Details were lacking on the street fighting there.

Rosie O'Donnell Gets 'Reminder'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Air Force today reminded Maj. Gen. Emmett (Rosie) O'Donnell, whose remarks about the atom bomb and China stirred a furor last week, that he "must use care" in what he says publicly.

Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, wrote O'Donnell he was confident, however, tht O'Donnell did not urge in a news conference the immediate use of a-bombs against Red China.

Vandenberg's letter to the commander of the 15th Air Force, who returned last week from his post as chief of the bomber command in the Far East, apparently was intended to close the incident.

In making it public, the Air Force gave no details as to what investigation Vandenberg had made.

Apparently it involved some very close calculations as to the meaning of the words O'Donnell used; that is whether he had actually urged use of the bomb.

U. N. Anti-Red Bloc May Be Even Weaker Than It Looks

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — There is a growing feeling among responsible officials here that the Whole United Nations coalition against Communist aggression in Korea—and perhaps elsewhere—may be even weaker than it looks.

The immediate cause for this feeling is the readiness with which Britain and France among other western nations snapped up yesterday Red China's latest Korean peace maneuver.

Around the State Department this maneuver was considered simply a ruse to delay and divide the U. N. majority which was about to condemn Red China as an aggressor in Korea. But the diplomats of other western nations claimed to see in it a genuine modification of China's previous rejection of a U. N. cease-fire proposal.

What the Chinese reportedly suggested, using India as an intermediary, was that instead of insisting that any negotiations on the Far East precede a cease-fire they would agree to a truce in the fighting while negotiations were underway.

State Department officials said that to confer under such a condition would be negotiating "with a gun at our heads." In private conversation they accused Britain and France of "clutching at straws" to find an easy way out of the Korean crisis even though in the long run it might prove the most costly way.

Church Merger Plan Hits Snags

CINCINNATI, Jan. 23 (AP)—A plan for merging seven Protestant church groups with upwards of 14,000,000 members into a United Church of Christ quickly hit two snags today.

The plan, drafted by a conference on church union, was made public at the opening of a two-day meeting of representatives of the seven affected denominations and "observers" from several other groups.

The first difficulty encounted was a New York Supreme Court decision of a year ago which enjoins the General Council of the Congregational Christian Church from "merging or uniting itself with x x x any body or organization whatsoever."

Also causing trouble at the end of the first day's session of the conference was a sentence in the plan itself which say, "No fundamental changes in the structure or procedure of local churches are required as a condition of entrance into the United Church."

Further consideration of that sentence was deferred until tomorrow."

Alleged Band Robber Vanishes From Cell

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Jan. 23 (AP)—Kenneth Kitts, 33, wanted in at least four states on bank robbery and burglary charges, vanished today from his cell in the Linn County jail here.

No bars had been sawed. No holes dug.

Medicine Chest Tour Kills Child

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 23 (AP)—A tour of the medicine chest was fatal to one child and almost killed two others.

Palmer Bradner III, 2, died. His two sisters, Pamella, 4, and Cherry, 3, are expected to recover.

The Public Information Office at Madigan Army Hospital announced the tragedy today.

Their father, Capt. Palmer Bradner, is attached to the Troop Carrier Command on the airlift at McChord Air Force base. He was overseas when the three children went through the medicine chest, sampling a mixture of notions, shampoos and aspirin.

Mrs. Bradner was washing clothes in the washroom of their trailer camp home.

Air Force Recruiting Will Resume Feb. 1

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Air Force today announced the resumption of volunteer enlistments Feb. 1.

Recruiting was halted last week to ease crowded conditions at Lackland, Tex., Air Force base.

Present schdules call for the admission of 1,200 recruits daily at Lackland, and 300 daily at the recently opened Sampson, N. Y., air training base. The Air Force said more trainees will be channeled to Sampson as soon as more buildings are completed there.

He was first missed noon today, but was last definitely seen about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Kitts, a federal prisoner, had been brought into U. S. District Court here just yesterday in connection with the $38,000 Laurens, Ia., bank robbery last fall. He was to have been tried Feb. 12 for participating in it.

Contractor Says He Had Precedent For Starting Md. College Building

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP)—When he started an agricultural engineering building without written authorization, it wasn't the first time he did so at the Maryland State College for Negroes, a Cambridge contractor said today.

Charles Brohawn told a Senate investigating committee there were "eight jobs down there our records will show all started before we had signed contracts."

He was backed up by Dr. H. C. Byrd, University of Maryland president, in a contention that contractors usually don't wait for signed approval to begin work on state projects.

The stand that there was precedent for starting the agricultural building was emphasized in statements made to the committee by Brohawn and Byrd.

Brohawn claimed he's followed the custom on state projects other than at Princess Anne. He said, for example, his firm now was working on the Eastern Shore state hospital at Salisbury without a signed contract.

But John B. Funk, former state engineer, promptly submitted to the committee a copy of a written directive to start the work on Dec. 18. Funk added reports by field representatives of the State Department of Public Improvements show actual work started nine days later.

Brohawn, Byrd and Funk all were staging repeat appearances before the committee to find out why the contractor started the building which the Board of Public Works rejected on Jan. 8. They submitted statements to the committee at a closed session last night and returned today to answer questions submitted by the committee, press, and delegates.

Funk To Succeed Man Who's Succeeding Him

TOWSON, Md., Jan. 23 (AP)—John B. Funk, former chief engineer of Maryland, was named to a new job today and will succeed the man who's succeeding him.

Funk's new post is chief engineer of Baltimore County.

Last month, as the windup of Gov. Lane's administration approached, Funk resigned as chief state engineer. Named to replace him was Nathan L. Smith, chief engineer of Baltimore County.

Now Funk will move in to replace Smith as county engineer.

China Licks Famine

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23 (AP)—Red China claimed today to have licked the famine problem, reporting a grain output ten million tons above the 1949 harvest.

The Peiping radio announced a yield of 120,000,000 tons this year, "enough for every man, woman and child in the country."

George Washington knew why we needed a Stock Exchange

Under a buttonwood tree . . . in 1792, the third year of George Washington's first term as President . . . was the beginning of what is now the New York Stock Exchange.

To pay for the Revolutionary War, "stocks" had to be sold by the Government.

But people were naturally unwilling to invest in securities unless they could be easily resold. A market place was needed.

So a few businessmen who traded in securities decided to meet every day under the branches of an old buttonwood tree—only a few blocks from where the New York Stock Exchange now stands.

Today, the New York Stock Exchange is basically the same in purpose as in the days when George Washington knew it. It is a place where the securities of our largest and best-known businesses are bought and sold at auction.

What many people do not know is that the Stock Exchange does not buy or sell securities, or in any way set the prices. The Exchange's function is to provide a national market place. Handling investors' orders for a few shares, or hundreds, is the day-to-day business of its members and member firms.

Information on America's leading businesses, their financial picture, their earnings and dividend records can be had from member firms of the New York Stock Exchange. Their offices are located in 388 cities. Their facts and experience are yours without obligation.

Marine Reserves In High School To Leave Next Month

Twenty young Marine Reserves, seniors in two local high schools, are nearing the end of the school year under an accelerated program aimed at completing their courses before induction next month.

Nine of the Reserves are at Fort Hill High School and 11 at Allegany. All have received notices to report.

While completing work toward their high school diplomas, none of the "sheepskins" is to be presented until June. At that time, parents of the youths will probably receive them in their son's names at regular graduation exercises of the two institutions.

At Fort Hill, a brief ceremony is planned during a regular assembly in tribute to the Reserves and home rooms are sponsoring social gatherings in their honor, Victor D. Heisey principal, said. The boys' Hi-Y Club of the school is honoring the nine future Marines at a dance at the Shrine Club next Wednesday. Parents of the boys are invited and Tommy Smithem's Orchestra will play. The dance will be semi-formal.

The Fort Hill group will leave February 4, 5 and 7.

Leaving February 4 will be Edward Harris Malone, son of Mrs. Anna Malone, 15 Oak Street; and James Allan Shaffer, son of Allan J. Shaffer, 6 Elder Street.

Leaving February 5 are Leo L. Reynolds, son of L. L. Reynolds, Route 4; Robert Mullanex, son of Lester Mullanex, Route 4, Oldtown Road; Leonard Franklin Glenn, son of George F. Knisley, 117 Blaul Avenue; Charles Scott Mellon, son of Mrs. Catherine Mellon, 122 Thomas Street; Melvin Lester Durst son of Lester Durst, 322 Crawford Street; and Clyde Eugene Mackereth, son of L. W. Mackereth, Route 4, Oldtown Road.

The ninth Fort Hill Reservist, James Don Ridenbaugh, son of Mrs. Sophia Ridenbaugh, 307 Harrison Street, will leave February 7.

At Allegany High School, Principal Ralph R. Webster said the Reserves have practically taken the farewell party into their own hands.

The youths have asked and received permission to hold an assembly January 31 at which they will present their impressions of a Marine "boot camp." Webster said the boys have written the script themselves.

Dates when they are to report were not available.

Included in the Allegany group are: Sterl Edward Armentrout, son of F. E. Armentrout, 659 Greene Street; Kenneth William (Mike) Birmingham, son of Eugene B. Birmingham, 217 Paca Street; Robert Eugene Anderson, son of W. B. Harshaberger, LaVale; Lloyd Robert Diehl, son of L. W. Diehl, 241 Columbia Street; Arthur William Gardner, son of Mrs. J. C. Gardner, 505 Magruder Street; Carl Lawrence Jenkins, son of F. Jenkins, 531 O'Neil Street; Donald Nevin Shrader, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Shrader, Corriganville; Bernard Junior Spencer, son of Mrs. Martha Nazelrod, 111 Lennox Place; Alexander Swede, son of Alex Swede, 83 Henderson Avenue; and John Henry Sweitzer, son of J. H. Sweitzer, 7 Pear Street.

Whetzel Draws 30-Day Sentence

Accused of fleecing several housewives here, Alvie O. Whetzel, about 30, of Keyser, W. Va., drew a 30-day jail sentence yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court after he pleaded guilty to a larceny charge.

Whetzel was taken to the State's Attorney's office and identified as the "fake huckster" by Mrs. Virginia Sweitzer, 101 Pioneer Plate.

The prosecuting witness said Whetzel appeared at her home January 6 and offered to sell country sausage, ham and other produce. Mrs. Sweitzer reported she gave him $5 and he left to get change and her purchase.

Detective Thomas J. See, who investigated, said Whetzel "kept on going." Descriptions furnished by at least two victims led to his arrest yesterday afternoon by local police.

Whetzel admitted he fleeced $2.75 from another woman identified by authorities as a "Mrs. Martin." Magistrate Peter J. Carpenti imposed the jail term after the prisoner said he was unable to make restitution.

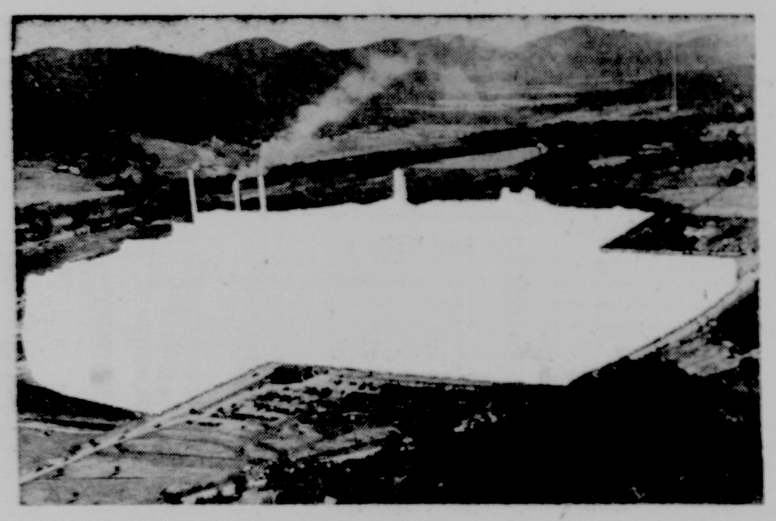
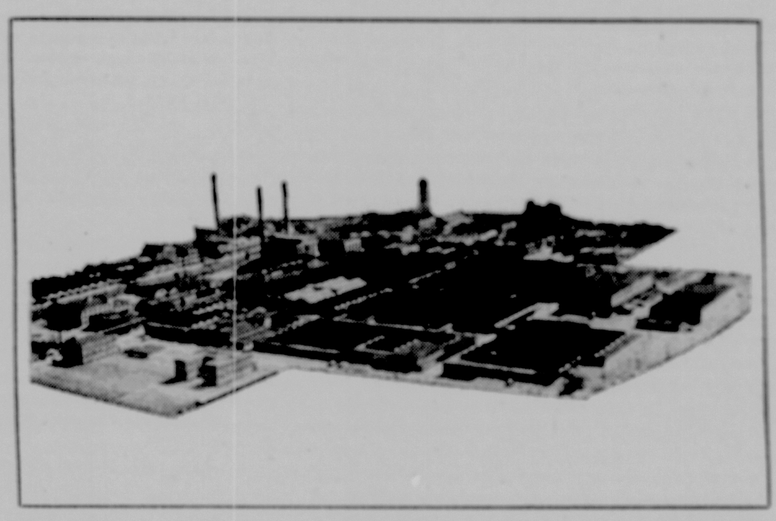
LET'S LOOK AT THE WAY AMCELLE EMPLOYEES USE CAPITAL

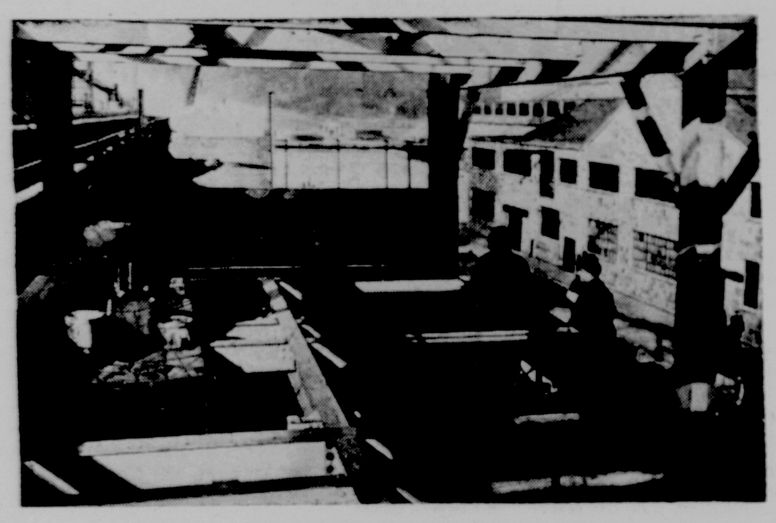
A lot of people have got into the habit of thinking that "Capital" employs "Labor." Actually, this is only half the story. In the United States "Labor" also employs "Capital." To take one example: a big tractor-truck requires the outlay of several thousand dollars of Capital, but it needs an operator to make it worth anything. On the other hand, the operator now using the truck couldn't make much of a living transporting goods on his back. Let's turn the picture of Capital employing Labor around, and see how Labor employs Capital.



Let's suppose that some day the men and women of Amcelle would come to work and find that the buildings and machines and equipment they were accustomed to use had vanished from the earth. There's one thing, however, that would not have been lost. These Amcelle people would not have forgotten how to make acetate yarn. So let's also suppose they decide to create jobs for themselves by starting the operation up again on their own.



They don't even consider trying to make yarn by hand methods, for yarn made this way would cost far more than the fabled "cloth of gold" of the Middle Ages. You need highly specialized equipment to make cellulose acetate, and to perform all the spinning, twisting, coning and other operations if the price of the yarn is to be kept at a figure customers are able and willing to pay.



Now some tools are simple and a man can furnish his own, but when these Amcelle people estimate the replacement cost of buildings and equipment they find they need about $75,000,000, an average of $14,000 per job. Not everybody has this kind of money, so they go out and find folks from whom they can "hire" or "rent" the necessary capital. They offer these investors a "share" in the business.

Naturally these investors expect a return on their money, otherwise they'd spend it on things for themselves, rather than on "tools" needed to produce acetate yarn. They get their return, however, only after wages, raw materials, maintenance, depreciation, taxes and all other costs have been paid and a sum set aside which can be used for emergencies and to provide for future development.

THE WAY WE AMERICANS GET OUR PRODUCTION EQUIPMENT IS IMPORTANT

Here in America we get equipment and machines necessary to start a business by pooling the savings of a lot of people; then we continue to get better "tools" by plowing back part of the earnings into the business.

Our American system isn't perfect yet, but with it Americans have been able to earn more and have more than any other people in history. More freedom, too. Most Americans think this is pretty important.

Resisting The Flood

"You men have made such a mess of the world that you ought to let the women see what they can do." This cry, heard from men as well as women, has not as yet been translated into action. In the field of economics more and more readers are coming to look for Barbara Ward's latest book, as her advice sounds more practical and more encouraging than what the male economists are offering. Miss Ward, only 36, is assistant editor of The Economist, a noted British weekly, and is read with great attention by the experts in the field. She has lectured in this country and written for our magazines. She is distinctly someone to keep track of.

Her recent book, "Policy for the West," does not discount the seriousness of the Communist menace. She thinks that the way to meet it is the way in which a wise business man meets a dangerous competitor: he improves the quality of his own goods and services. Give the rest of the world something better than what the Communists offer, and the victory can be won.

This will require constant effort. She puts this need in memorable words:

"No Dutchman expects the sea miraculously to abandon its ceaseless attack upon the shores of Holland. He mans the dykes instead. So it is with communism. Like a force of nature it will continue, for some time at least, to pour through the world, lapping at the free world's defenses and seeking by every tactic of infiltration to trickle through the barriers, to crumble the earth that is soft and suck down the wood that has grown rotten. But where the dykes are strong and the banks well built, the pressure will be made in vain. The floods can be controlled and deflected, the menace contained."

Here are both strength and wisdom.

75 Years Of Baseball

Connie Mack is just an infant after all. The 88-year-old retired former manager of the Philadelphia Athletics was not scheduled to be the oldest guest present at the National League's celebration of its 75th birthday. All living player members of the Baseball Hall of Fame were on the invitation list, and many old-time players. The dean of the former players is the 91-year-old Arlie Latham, a star third baseman for Cincinnati and St. Louis in the nineties, famous also for his antics.

The next oldest former player is younger than Mack. He is the 81-year-old Kid Nichols, the unquestioned king of all pitchers when he worked for Boston in the nineties.

Baseball, like taxes, seems to have been with us always. It is odd to think that the first professional organization dates back only to 1876. There were teams for at least thirty years earlier, notably the Cincinnati Reds of 1869, who did not lose a game until some time in 1870. These teams were soon disbanded, however, and scheduled games at irregular intervals. The formation of a regular league ensured that every member team would meet every other team an equal number of times and provided disciplinary machinery for expelling crooked players. Three such were thrown out only a year or two after the game started, and the example proved salutary.

Nowadays a major league believes it necessary to have its members located in the nation's largest cities. The National League did not always feel that way, or perhaps could not arrange it. At any rate its membership at times has included such smaller cities as Albany and Troy, New York, Worcester, Massachusetts, Providence, Rhode Island, and Hartford, Connecticut.

Too Close For Comfort

The final figures of the the 1950 election, jut now made public, show that 91 members of the House of Representatives won their seats by a margin of less than five per cent of the total vote. In eight cases the winners did not even receive an actual majority of the ballots cast but owe their success to the fact that there were more than two candidates in the contest.

This report of results not only indicates the closeness of the last election but points to the principal battle ground of 1952. Both parties will now proceed to do the spadework for special campaign efforts in the districts of the 54 Republicans and 37 Democrats who barely made the grade last November. The representatives, if they contemplate running for re-election, will watch their steps and keep their political fences in good repair.

An awareness of 91 representatives that they were not overwhelming favorites in the last election is not conducive to a statesmanlike attitude toward public questions. The temptation to play at least a certain amount of personal politics is always present.

That is the unfortunate but inevitable aftermath of a close election. But the same could be said, with equal truth, of an election that isn't close.

Safeguarding Museums

Museums in the large cities of the country are studying the question of protecting their collections from a possible enemy attack. The New York Museum of Art has begun crating valuable objects in preparation for hiding them.

The committee of trustees of the Chicago Art Institute has been working on a defense project for some months but the institute's collection remains intact. A committee of the American Association of Museums is working on the problem of safeguarding art and other treasures.

Since the destruction of the museum in Hamburg, Germany, in the late war, the Natural History Museum of Chicago has No. 1 collections in a number of fields, according to Col. Clifford C. Gregg, director. Plans are being made to protect many irreplaceable objects in an emergency.

Bouncing Boxes

Parachute troops of the recent war gave the world the spectacle of men tumbling out of the doors of planes to float earthward beneath a sea of billowing white parachutes. Now there is something new. The Air Force is testing a big container which can be dumped from an airplane and lowered to the ground by parachutes without damage, and which will land so easily and safely that it can be used to carry both men and their equipment. It is supposed to drop a complete squad, with guns and ammunition, in a single package, more quickly and safely than with individual parachutes.

This development really sounds like something, and should be useful to the commercial world as well as to the military.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Keep The Blood Moving In Frostbite

IN THE FUTURE it may be possible to prevent frostbite by taking a pill. This capsule would contain an anti-clotting drug to keep the blood from congealing in the frozen capillaries, thereby averting gangrene. This is even simpler than the old and discarded remedy of rubbing the icy parts with snow.

The idea of using anti-coagulants is not as far fetched as it may seem. For several years heparin, for example, has been administered hypodermically to discourage clotting of the blood in conditions in which the formation of clots in the blood vessels proved troublesome. If the drug is successful in these disorders, why wouldn't it have the same effect in frostbite? Well, it does, and in some instances the results have been amazing. One victim was saved by injections of heparin even tho he had been lying in the street at least 14 hours. His legs were extremely vulnerable because he wore low shoes and thin socks.

To be effective, heparin must be injected. It acts fast but dissipates within a few hours. Dicumarol, another anti-clotting drug, can be employed orally but two days pass before it starts to work. Once in the system, it may last for days. These are the chief differences between the two products. It has been predicted that a satisfactory preparation is on its way which can be taken by mouth and will act within an hour.

In simple frostbite the fingers, toes, nose, or ears generally are affected. The parts that are nipped become painful, blanched, and numb but the damage is slight and the end result is comparable to a first degree burn. Recovery is the rule and the less done to the affected tissues, the better. Blood returns to the frozen parts when the victim enters a comfortably warm room. Gentle massage and warm drinks (not necessarily alcoholic) are of value.

Most serious frostbite needs more expert care. Too rapid thawing is not preferred altho this is a debatable point in view of recent experimental work. At any rate, the benumbered parts are on the spot. Cold has left the muscles, tendons, nerves, and other structures bloodless and unless nourishment is forthcoming, they are likely to starve to death. This means gangrene. As a result, the exposed areas must be handled gingerly to avoid further injury or any changes that might alter the delecate balance between life and death.

• — • — •

The best plan is to lie down and elevate the overexposed parts on a pillow; careful cleansing with soap and water forestalls the possibility of infection at a later date. Then the involved areas are wrapped in several layers of soft wool or bandage to protect them from further injury. Warm coffee, tea, cocoa, or even alcohol may be used to stimulate and dilate the chilled blood vessels. The physician should be called because it may be essential to administer drugs that improve the circulation, particularly since we now know that the anti-clotting drug, heparin, will work. There are more don'ts than do's in the treatment of frostbite. Don't rub the parts with snow or place them in hot water. Don't take a hot shower or use a hot water bottle or heating pad. Don't apply ointments or salves because the damage is inside and not outside.

TOMORROW: Hidden amebic infection.

IT'S COMMON

B. K. writes: Is it natural to feel weak for three or four days after an attack of diarrhea?

REPLY

And how.

ABDOMINAL ENLARGEMENT

Mrs. J. writes: Why do so many women develop an enlarged abdomen after an operation in which several organs were removed? I should think a flat tummy would result from taking out these structures.

REPLY

Enlargement may occur if the operation has left the abdominal wall weakened or a hernia has developed. These are the exceptions, however, because in most instances there is no bulging subsequent to surgery. It is not the abdominal contents that cause a bay window; this is caused by layers of blubber in the abdominal wall. Even if one kidney, one-half the stomach and intestine, the gall bladder, the appendix, and the pelvic organs were removed, this would not make a fat woman thin.

DIABETIC COMA

M. R. writes: Why do diabetics go into coma? My nephew does it all the time.

REPLY

Comas occur because the diabetic does not take care of himself. Either he does not adhere to a diet or does not take enough insulin. The amount of sugar in the blood increases to such an extent that acidosis and finally coma ensue. This is a serious condition and in the days before insulin, 50 per cent of all victims died from this complication. Today, it is rare, indicating that your nephew is the exception to the rule.

BI-PARTISANSHIP STARTS LOOKING UP

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—One of the big things bothering Congress about drafting 18-year-olds is the problem which Winston Churchill pounded home on President Roosevelt when he opposed a second front across the English Channel.

"I do not," said the Prime Minister in typical Churchillian language, "propose to lose the seed of the British Empire."

What he had in mind was the fact that in 1914, the cream of Britain's young men had been shipped across the English Channel and mowed down in Flanders. Those first waves of troops that went to Belgium included the best-trained men in the nation.

Today it is a recognized fact in both England and France that national leadership is more difficult because of those 1914-15 casualties. Men who were 18 and 19 during the Battle of Flanders would be 54 and 55 today, and in their prime for leadership. But their ranks were seriously decimated.

In the United States today the question of drafting 18-year-olds is serious for another reason. They are what are known as depression babies—born during the nadir of the depression in 1932.

In those depression years babies were fewer. People couldn't afford them. And many congressmen now feel we cannot afford to lose too much of the "seed" of the nation.

This also applies to 19-year-olds, and will apply to the youngsters who become 18 next year and the year after. All are depression babies. That's why more thought is being given to some system whereby education can be continued along with military training.

Prayer—Not Pressure

A group of lobbyists who specialize in prayer—instead of pressure—called on GOP Congressman George Bender of Ohio the other day.

The delegation included Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Mennonites and members of other faiths from Wooster, Ohio. After talking over domestic and world problems with Bender, one of the visitors suggested:

"Let us kneel and pray that Congress will get the Divine guidance it needs in the days ahead."

Bender knelt with his callers.

"Those kind of lobbyists don't have to register with the clerk in the House," remarked the hefty Ohioan, who won back his congressional seat in November. "They are registered up yonder."

27-Cent Dollar

The housewives probably won't be surprised at this, though the figures look pretty bad on paper. However, the inescapable fact is that the 1939 dollar is now worth only 27 cents, when it comes to buying such everyday items as butter, coffee, cocoa, sugar, silk and print cloth.

This is shown in the price increases of 28 commodities, compiled daily by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

In other words, what a dollar would buy in 1939 now costs approximately $3.65. This is a measure of how the dollar's purchasing power has dwindled for the following commodities: Barley, burlap, butter, cocoa bean, coffee, copper, corn, cotton, cottonseed oil, flaxseed, hides, hogs, lard, lead, print cloth, rosin, rubber, shellac, silk, steel scrap, steers, sugar, tallow, tin, wheat, wool tops and zinc.

Who Killed Price Control

Members of the Administration will admit in their off-moments that blame for the present zooming cost of living goes straight up to the White House itself.

In the first place, the Republicans were smart enough to give the President all the power to control prices he wanted—and then some. And he has failed to use them. Congress extended these powers late last summer but they have lain dormant ever since.

Second, the President has failed to pick experienced men to handle price-wage control, though he had a handful of experts around the corner whom he could have called in overnight.

However, Harry Truman has a strange quirk—psychiatrists might call it an inferiority complex — about using Roosevelt personnel. He wants to stand on his own feet. Probably this was the reason why he did not call in the men who grew up with price control and on the whole did an amazingly good job—Leon Henderson, Chester Bowles and Paul Porter.

Leon Henderson, who set up OPA offices all over the country in record time, is still in Washington as a consultant for private business. Chester Bowles has just finished a term as Governor of Connecticut. Paul Porter is practicing law. None are looking for trouble, much prefer to stick to their own knitting, but they would have helped out nonetheless—if asked. But they weren't even asked to help as consultants.

Instead, complete greenhorns were selected for the toughest job in the entire U. S. A.—controlling prices and wages and making people like it.

NOTE—Another wise counselor on the domestic economic front is Bernard M. Baruch, who also was left on the sidelines. The reason: Mr. Truman's yearning for newspaper writing. He wrote Baruch one of his hottest.

Acheson and Seward

North Dakota's big, humorous Congressman Usher L. Burdick, a Republican, compares the current attacks on Secretary of State Dean Acheson with the Civil War attacks on William Henry Seward, also secretary of state.

"Let us turn over the musty pages of the War between the States," says Burdick. "We got licked twice at Bull Run and our army beat it back across the Potomac in a panic. Lincoln and his secretary of state, Seward, found themselves in a sea of criticism. Newspapers demanded the ouster of Seward and said Lincoln was not to be trusted. Lincoln stood firm, cool and collected. He kept his secretary of state and went about the job of winning the war."

The congressman, a writer of many historical books, continues: "Remember what happened in this country before. Remember that cool heads lead the way to victory."

Deference To Farm Crops Reflects On Price Control

By MARK SULLIVAN

WE HAVE SEEN during the past seven months the evolution of the country's economy thrown out of gear by the emergency of war. In fact the process has been far from an orderly evolution, it has been an awkward pulling and hauling by forces and men.

Landmark dates are easy to identify. On June 26 came Korea. Some three weeks later President Truman sent Congress a message calling for controls over the country's economy. Congress enacted the controls Sept. 27. During ensuing weeks President Truman appointed administrators to exercise the controls, and tentative steps were taken toward controls over a few individual industries. By the third week in January the control administrators, hard-pressed by mounting inflation, were under necessity of embarking upon comprehensive controls. This is little more than to say they are ready to begin. The work of fully organizing the Economic Stabilization Agency will take some 18 months.

To recite all this is not to carp unnecessarily about delay, the job is enormous and complex. Yet it is a fact that while control and mobilization have been slow, inflation and rising prices have been fast. Between Dec. 15 and Jan. 2, retail prices of food reached a record high. Cost of living and inflation were out-pacing controls.

Given Special Deference

Some things that took place during the several months of motion toward stabilization were significant and disturbing. One was an immunity conferred on agriculture. In the writing of the Defense Production Act embracing controls over all industries and of aspects of the country's economy, the control agencies were given authority to put ceilings over prices. But the ceiling that could be put over prices of farm crops was strictly limited and defined. The definition was, like all aspects of government support of crop prices, extremely intricate.

Speaking loosely and subject to many variations the new Economic Stabilization Agency cannot put a ceiling over the price of a farm crop unless the ceiling is at least as high as either of two standards. One standard is the price in the open market during a period of last May and June. The other standard is parity price as determined by the Department of Agriculture.

In sum the new Economic Stabilization Agency cannot "freeze" the prices of farm crops unless Congress changes the law it passed last September. The immunity given agriculture is clearly a special deference paid to a single industry, and it is tenable to suppose that the deference given agriculture had a political motive in part at least. Because of the large part played by government support of crop prices in the spiral of rising cost of living, the picking out of agriculture for discriminatory favor is not promising for really effective check of rising prices generally.

Policy Contributed To Inflation

During the seven months between Korea in June and the inauguration of economic controls in January, there went on wage raises in industry after industry. In most cases they were followed by increases in prices of goods, and the sum of these was a large contribution to rising cost of living and increasing inflation. The defense Production Act gives the new control agencies power to "freeze" wages. It goes without saying that this will be done, otherwise inflation would go on into a higher and more dangerous stage.

The inflation that has been under way during seven months has been, of course, a war inflation. Yet to call it by that name would be misleading. What the country has been experiencing is a new stage of inflation piled on top of one that had been under way before Korea. The earlier inflation was caused in large part by a policy of the Truman administration.

After the ending of the second world war and of the immense government borrowing to finance it, the country entered a condition which made it possible not only to cease borrowing but to begin reducing the government debt. For a brief period this was done. But in early 1949 Mr. Truman sent to Congress proposals calling for new and enlarged appropriations, the government debt began to rise again. Above that increase must now be piled an unforeseen increase due to war. The management of the government's fiscal operations calls for the utmost wisdom.

Moral Force Still Can Be Used In Behalf Of Peace

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Senator Brien McMahon's proposal of a resolution to be adopted by the Senate expressing friendship for the Russian people is the first sign of common sense that has come in a long while from officialdom here on the subject of moral force as a preventive of war.

The assumption that, because armament has to be increased substantially to meet outbreaks of aggression, all other forms of peaceful effort to prevent war need not be pressed is erroneous. Yet whenever military measures take the limelight these other methods of avoiding war seem to be sidetracked.

With two world wars to remind mankind that military conquest does not really bring peace, there have been equally erroneous assumptions current that military strength has become futile or unnecessary. The truth is that defense armament is indispensable, and so is an armament of reason and genuine friendship expressed by one set of peoples to the other.

People Don't Want War

The Russian people are not bellicose by nature. They do not want war any more than do the people of the allied countries. Inasmuch as all people would prefer the ways of peace to armed hostilities, the real question always is why there should be any wars. Generally they result from the acts of a dictator or of a small group of men—"oligarchies," they used to call them in ancient days — who exploit whole nations and force the young to go to war by inflaming public opinion against other countries.

There is no reason to believe that, if the minds of 200,000,000 people of Soviet Russia could be reached with genuine evidence of friendship, the rulers of the Communist regime would have the power to take the steps of aggression which have now brought the world to the brink of war.

Like all other moves of this kind—and they are by no means novel—the question of methods and means arises. The United States has brought forth what is known as the "Voice of America" program. This project was for a long time in need of funds, but now has the money from Congress. What is lacking is the ideas that must go into such an undertaking to make it successful. Those ideas cannot begin and end on the bureaucratic level. They must come from the very top level of our policy makers. They must be part of national and international policy.

Today the "Voice of America" is just one of a number of bureaus in the Department of State. It ought to be an important agency independent of any department and reporting directly to the President. It should have enough prestige to command the sympathetic support of members of both houses of Congress. It should be the "public relations" instrument of the government itself in international relations. Few men who have been at the head of the Department of State have ever been qualified to do this type of planning even if they had the time to devote to it.

Will Penetrate Curtain

But to occupy so important a role, the project must have Cabinet-level ranking and must be composed of advisers who are able to suggest major policies that will appeal to other nations, especially those behind the "iron curtain." Strange, indeed, that nobody has put any official momentum behind the idea of a formal expression of friendship by the Congress addressed to the people of Soviet Russia or that other moves which can appeal to peoples behind the "iron curtain" should not have come before now from authoritative quarters.

The "Voice of America" can relay messages and broadcast interesting scripts and carry on a polemic technique to counteract Communist propaganda, but that's not enough. There must be ways to capture the imagination of the Russian people. That's why the suggestion by Senator McMahon is likely to prove more penetrating than all the high-sounding speeches of diplomatic phraseology that come forth so regularly as the only expression of American idealism.

But will such policies of friendship and other proposals get through to the people behind the "iron curtain"? The answer is that any event of sensational importance percolates through any man-made barrier. The persons who go and come across the border from the satellite states to the free world are constantly discussing these same issues. Word-of-mouth distribution of ideas still remains the most effective single instrument of communication the world has ever known.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Red-Baiters

I saw an advertisement in which a magazine puts itself on the back for its anti-Communist record since 1940. It is pleasing to know that the times have so changed that many who once loved Stalin now wish to be known as Stalin-haters. Others who went along with the Communists now insist that we forget their past performances on the ground that they have now changed their minds. They do not, however, express any regrets for their former conduct. That is all to the good, but does arouse the query as to why it took them from 1917 to 1940 to discover the truth.

Pondering a bit on this subject, I tried to compile spontaneously and from memory a list of active fighters against communism, before 1940. Perhaps it means nothing to anybody nor can such a list be complete. But what interested me was to discover how many Americans I could remember who were willing to risk being known as Red-haters, among whom I include myself since 1917, whose work attracted attention.

After I had compiled my list, I submitted it to two of the most balanced authorities on the subject, Dr. J. B. Matthews and Benjamin Stolberg, for their consideration and this is the result, which I think will stand any test. To be on this list, the following qualifications were stipulated:

1. The person must be an avowed anti-Stalinist;

2. He must have devoted his talents to battling communism and influence of Soviet Russia in the United States;

3. He must not have sought a compromise with Stalinism in any form;

4. He must not have been influenced by temporary situations such as the Stalin-Hitler alliance.

Ruth Alexander, Karl Baarslag, Constantine Brown, Sevellon Brown, Oliver Carlson, John Chamberlain, William Henry Chamberlin, Whittaker Chambers, John B. Chapple, Upton Close, Frederic R. Coudert, Jr., Eugene Cox, Frank Crosswaith, David J. Dallin, Martin Dies, Emmett E. Dorsey, David Dubinsky, Max Eastman, James W. Fifield, Jr., Hamilton Fish, Ruth Fischer, John T. Flynn, Nelson Frank, Miller Freeman, John F. Frey, Hugh Gibson, Father James M. Gillis, Benjamin Gitlow, William H. Grimes, Frank C. Hanighan, Merwin K. Hart, Henry Hazlitt, William Randolph Hearst, Clare Hoffman, Herbert Hoover, J. Edward Hoover, Roy Howard, Harry A. Jung, Joseph P. Kamp, Father James Keller, Marquis Kerr, H. R. Knickerbocker, Alfred Kohlberg, Joseph Kornfeder (Zack), Irene Kuhn, Suzanne Labadie, Isaac Don Levine, Fulton Lewis, Jr., Charles A. Lindbergh, Clayton R. Lusk, Eugene Lyons, Benjamin Mandel, J. B. Matthews, Robert R. McCormick, James McGuinness, Adolphe Menjou, Robert Montgomery, Robert Morris, John F. Neylan, Fred Nitle, Jr., Fred Nordhoff, Norman Vincent Peale, Westbrook Pegler, Roscoe Pound, Burton Rascoe, Victor Riesel, Howard Rushmore, Lela Rogers, James Rorty, Howard Rushmore, Morris Ryskind, Glenn Saxon, Frederick J. Schlink, George Schuyler, James P. Selvage, George E. Sokolsky, Jacob Spivak, Joe Starnes, Walter E. Steele, Archibald E. Stevenson, Benjamin Stolberg, Wesley Stout, Robert E. Stripling, Jack B. Tenney, J. Parnell Thomas, Norman Thomas, Elvis F. Tompkins, John B. Trevor, Walter Trohan, Louis Waldman, Frank Waldrop, Father Edmund A. Walsh, Matthew Woll, Frederick Woltman, General Robert E. Wood.

If I had taken 1940 as my date, I should have had another list which would have included several ex-Russia spies, many anti-Communists who had confessed and established their conviction. Also, such a list would include some who hated Hitler so bitterly that for a time they took Stalin as the less offensive of the two. It might also include some to whom Roosevelt could do no wrong and who therefore placed the Communist front gone up to the death of the principal author of Teheran and Yalta.

But I preferred to play with 1940 as a more suitable date, because many of these men and women made sacrifices in career and peace of mind to continue the battle against the enemies of our country. They stood by their principles without regard to the atmosphere of the moment.

Some of the names on this list are unpopular for reasons other than their anti-Stalinism, and some are antagonistic to each other, but each did his or her share to alert our people. Had they been taken seriously, we should today not be in our present troubles.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)—

DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, the youngest elderly man in the world, will be 71 this Friday. But it will be just another day in the life of a vigorous and brilliant American whose services to his country for more than half a century have no parallel.

If he goes to Korea that day, he will rise about 4 a. m., after perhaps five or six hours sleep at the end of another 18-hour day, and arrive on the grim field of battle some time later that morning. He'll go up as close to the several fronts as the restraining arms of his friends permit, hold countless conferences, attend briefings, and get back home about 20 hours after leaving Japan.

If he spends the day in Tokyo, he'll rise at 7 o'clock, study the overnight reports and news while he strides his bedroom in his tattered old West Point robe, down a light breakfast, dress and go to the Dai Ichi building to work until just before 2 o'clock.

Then there will be lunch back at home (he usually lunches alone with Mrs. MacArthur, now that Arthur is in school), then a brief period of reading, and back to the office to work until eight or nine. Then dinner, after which, perhaps, there may be a movie for him to show in the living room of the old U. S. embassy which is his quarters.

• — • — •

MacArthur is a first rate movie fan, but the pressure of his endless work keeps him from seeing as many as he'd like. He likes all types of films, with an understandable exception or two. The Russians, for instance, once had the audacity to send to Japan a film called "Defeat Of Japan," which attributed that nation's downfall to the Red army. There was no sight or mention of the American, Australian and New Zealand forces, no A-bomb, and MacArthur, Adms. Nimitz and Halsey, Gen. Wainwright and others at the surrender scene on the deck of the Missouri had been blacked out of the film and replaced by a dubbed-in Russian general.

MacArthur's birthday, if spent in Tokyo, will see him involved not only in the complexities of the undeclared war in Korea but the tremendous and heartening burden of administering Japan's 84,000,000 humans.

It will be a day in which he may see a few high-ranking Japanese government officials; Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, chief of the government section of SCAP; Adm. Charles Turner Joy, Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, and other assistants, advisers and friends.

He will be in contact with representatives of such United Nations as have sent aid to Korea, and with his own Defense Department in Washington. There will be a blizzard of reports to digest, orders to sign, mail to answer. (MacArthur attempts to answer each personal letter sent to him.)

• — • — •

At some period during the day he will want to see at least a digest of editorial, radio and columnar comment from the United States, Britain, Australia, Russia, China and several European countries.

His headquarters people no longer attempt to keep from him even the bitterest comments of his attackers in this country and abroad. He wants to see it all, and one is saddened at the picture of this utterly devoted man reading personal blasts on such an occasion.

At dinner, Mrs. MacArthur will have a cake for him or maybe an extra ration of his favorite candy. That will be the only concession to the date. Eventually, after more work at home and a study of the last-minute reports, he'll have to sleep — for tomorrow is another day, and the next and the next. He has not had a day off since 1937.

Why not drop him a birthday wire or card? The legend has grown that he's stiff and aloof, but the reverse is true and he'd probably like to know that a lot of people believe there's just nobody like him. His address is:

The shepherd represents one of oldest occupations known to man, notes the National Geographic Society. Archeologists have unearthed evidence that domesticated sheep shared the huts of Swiss Lake Dwellers, a race that lived about 3,250 B. C. Even then the shepherd's trade was an ancient one—the Old Testament identifies Abel, one of Adam's two sons, as a "keeper of sheep."

NEW SWISS COTTONS TAKE ON LOOK OF BEING ANYTHING BUT COTTON--THEY REALLY ARE GLAMORIZED NOW

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

New cottons from Switzerland are so glamorized this season that they don't look like cottons at all.

Some have a satiny surface like rich silk, others are printed in gold or silver so they shine like the Milky Way. There are crisp new finishes for some of the gauzy sheer fabrics, iridescent weaves which give a satiny shimmer and brocade designs printed in gold or silver on sheer organdie.

A double-woven cotton satin in checks and small jacquard designs is another novelty of the season, as is another new fabric with the tucks woven right into it. The tucks come in any color, or in multicolor on white, or in white on a colored ground. Typical of this group is a pink organdie with tiny white woven tucks, used in the current collection of Christian Dior.

The first official American flag was the Continental or Grand Union Flag in 1776.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

ARE you a designing woman—not of the ulterior-motive variety (she is her own worst enemy, but of the type who makes a beautiful design of her figure every time she seats herself? That's the type of designing woman I'd like to teach you how to be today.

Together, let's design a seated picture of you that any artist would be proud to exhibit. We will actually use some art principles to gain our graceful ends, the same ones Powers Girls use.

Self-Portrait

You'll need a chair drawn up to a good-sized mirror, a fair-sized pad, and a pencil. With this equipment, sit down in front of your mirror. Draw an outline of the mirror, approximating its shape. (Don't worry about your drawing ability. The art in this picture will depend on your grace in sitting!)

Now, following the general style of the stick figures illustrated, sketch in your present pose. Done? Would you say the result has artistic value, that it is pleasing to the eye? If not, why not?

Maybe your line portrait of yourself looks like a school kid on good behavior, stiff as a rod and all angles. Hardly a picture of your most gracious self!

How would the professional artist change the awkward composition? Just the way you are going to do it. First, consider the line of the seat of your chair. Because that line is horizontal, it cuts sharply across your body. When seated at right angles to the horizontal, you will always appear as static as any geometric figure in the book.

You, the Artist

What you must do is get some curves into the pose, of course. Turn your hips sidewise to the chair. Swing your legs back, square your shoulders, tilt your head, and let your arms curve diagonally across your body. Hmmm! What a difference.

Now try all the other poses you can think of that avoid sharp angles. Sketch each arrangement to impress it on your memory. Pretty soon you'll get an idea that you won't soon forget—that you make a picture, good or bad, every time you sit down!

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

MANY a successful politician has at some time in his life taken a "Memory Course" so he would not forget which name goes with which face . . . And when ruddy Russell Mack from Washington State met portly Harold Patten from Arizona for the first time (though each is starting his second term in the House of Representatives they'd never been introduced) they chewed the fat for a while and then Patten said to Mack, "Good-bye, Mr. White, I'm glad to have met you.'

"My name is Mack, not White," Mack corrected. . .Patten apologized and explained that he had once taken a memory-by-association course . . . Learned to associate names with objects . . . Got mixed up because he used to drive a white Mack truck.

Overhearing this whacky dialogue, tall, rough-and-ready Representative Mendel Rivers couldn't help chiming in . . . He too, had once subscribed to one of those cursed courses . . . Until one day a fellow named Goldstein came into his office and upon leaving, said "Good-by Mr. Brooks."

Then Mr. Goldstein apologized for calling him Mr. Brooks by mistake, and Mr. Rivers said, "Oh, think nothing of it, Mr. Goldfish."

AUSTINE

Christian Dior, Bess Truman and Elizabeth Fairall can all work together on one project . . . Each contributed something yesterday to help the children of the Capital . . . For that day Mr. Dior sent clothes to Miss Fairall of Garfinkel's, and Mrs. Truman went in person to see them at the Fashion Show Luncheon that helped the Nursery Fund of Washington's oldest hospital . . . For 90 years, since 1861, the Sisters of Charity have served D. C. without receiveing a penny of pay for their work! . . . Now the good sisters, through this luncheon, hope to raise money for nursing care at Providence Hospital.

While the first Battle of Bull Run raged and the wounded were carted back, the War Department frantically appealed to the Sisters of Charity to rush aid, help nurse the wounded . . . A group of sisters, some of whom went out to the battlefields themselves, set up a hospital in an old frame structure that was one of the outbuildings on an estate . . . Remember in those days there was no Red Cross, no corps of trained nurses . . . Around that frame building a city of tents arose and the tent city stayed until the war closed . . . The old building was abandoned but the sisters stayed on and built for themselves, in the shadow of the Capitol, what was for its day a fine hospital . . . Among the many "firsts" to its credit:

It opened the first collegiate School of Nursing in the United States. . . One of the first Day Nurseries for children of working mothers. . . One of the first Psychiatric Clinics.

"You'll be back in the old humancage," says Sylvester the White House Squirrel, "if we go back to rationing and controls. Why not just erect a fancy marble government building and make it the headquarters for the black market. Fly a flag on it, get some big names to run it. Make the whole thing easier for everybody."

When some limber Senate ladies kick up the dust on the stage Thursday night in a sizzling Charleston they'll get plenty of applause. . . The gals who'll shake a foot back to the Roaring Twenties aren't professional dancers and are otherwise decorbus. . . Such distinguished ladies as Mrs. Estes Kefauver, red-haired wife of Tennessee's crime-buster senator. . . Nevada's Mrs. George Malone, Florida's Mrs. Claude Pepper, Missouri's Mrs. James Ken and Arkansas' Mrs. John McClennan, one of the Capital's best dressed women.

These "Dancing Daughters of D. C." will only be part of the glittering extravaganza staged by the Women's National Press Club at Constitution Hall.

Such a cast of famous amateurs has never before been assembled! . . The audience will hear Generals and Admirals harmonizing! See the Vice President and Mrs. Barkley, Secretaries of Treasury, Labor, Interior and Agriculture and other Cabinet, Senate and House members, all singing, dancing, playing, yodelling and yelling. . . Grandmothers and grand dames like Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and Mrs. Joe Davies prancing through a square dance . . . In fact, 150 or more international figures, all strutting their stuff and parading their talents, great or meager, to raise funds to contribute to recreation for U. S. service men everywhere.

The forests of the United States include more than 800 different kinds of trees.

Second National Bank Re-elects Entire Board

Directors were re-elected at the annual meeting of shareholders of The Second National Bank yesterday with 13,138 shares or 82.1 per cent present either in person or by proxy.

Re-elected directors were Tasker G. Lowndes, John Schwarzenbach, Fulcher P. Smith, J. Glenn Beall, Joseph M. Naughton, Charles Z. Heskett, Harry J. Barton, Henry W. Miller, Jr., G. William Bibby, Hitchens and John H. Mosner.

Reports on operations for 1950 were submitted and accepted.

Reporting to the stockholders, President J. M. Naughton said at the end of 1950, total deposits were $162,000 greater than a year earlier. were $58,205 or $3.64 per share of outstanding stock. In 1949, the comparable figures were $44,269 and $4.02 per share then outstanding. In December, 1950, a stock dividend of five new shares for every 11 held was paid, raising the bank's capital stock to 16,000 shares and $400,000. Dividends of $2 a share annually are being continued, Naughton said.

The bank's statement continues to reflect growth and greater usefulness, the president said, adding, that during 1950 there was a total of 811 new deposit accounts opened for $614,069; the bank made 4,188 new loans aggregating $2,854.22; and total lonas showed an increase of $272,640 or 9.3 per cent over the close of 1949.

The bank's liquidity or ability to meet instantly depositor's claims remains high, Naughton said, adding that 82.6 per cent of the total assets are cash or readily marketable securities.

It is estimated that the Soviet Union had 22,000,000 men under arms in World War II.

Allegany County Infirmary Workers Ask Pay Increase

A request for salary increases was made to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday by 35 employes of the County Infirmary here.

The request was in the form of a petition signed by the workers.

According to the petition the workers, including practical nurses and orderlies, want an increase to meet the rising cost of living. They also said they wish to be placed on a par with salaries paid those with similar work.

Also included in the petition was the reference to the lack of public transportation to and from the infirmary. The workers said they must either use their private cars or taxicabs to get to work.

The petition also stated that they are required to have their uniforms laundered at their own expense, although they allege that their laundry work was promised.

Members of the board said they would give the matter careful consideration prior to making a decision.

It was pointed out that when the new infirmary was opened during the summer of 1948 the workers were paid at a higher scale than similar workers at local hospitals. They also received a five per cent wage increase about a month or so afterwards.

Meanwhile, the wages of workers at local hospitals have been increased, but members of the board said they do not know how they compare with the infirmary rates at present.

Chester Dietrick Heads Bricklayers

Other officers are George Griffith, Frostburg, financial secretary; Melvin R. Ward, Frostburg, recording secretary; Vernon Loy, Cumberland, business agent; John Dennison, Frostburg, deputy; Edward Dressman, LaVale, alternate deputy, and Frank Boor, Cumberland, sergeant-at-arms

County Board To Attend Meet

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners will be represented at a joint meeting of the Eastern and Western Shore County Commissioners Associations in Annapolis tomorrow. A bill providing for changes in the state assessment law will be discussed.

U. Grant Hooper, president of the Western Shore group, called the meeting for 11 a. m. tomorrow at Carvel Hall in order to obtain the reaction to county boards of all 23 counties on the proposed changes which are embodied in Senate Bill No. 28.

Representing Allegany county will be Commissioners William H. Lemmert and James Orr and Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board. Commissioner James Holmes will be unable to attend as he only recently recovered from an illness and hospitalization.

Lemmert and Holmes said that at the last joint meeting of the two county commissioners' groups in the fall retention of the present five-year rotating plan of assessments was favored by 20 of the 23 county boards.

Farmers Dairy Plant Included In Contract

The new contract between Local No. 924, Dairy Workers Union, AFL, and Cumberland dairies includes the Farmers Dairy, 219 Walnut Street, it was announced.

Earlier newspaper stories, covering the 15 cents per hour wage increase for 110 employes of six dairies, through an error omitted the name of the Farmers Dairy.

Go See It . . For an Inspiration!

You ought to go see the new Cadillac. You ought to walk all around it and look at it from every angle—and you ought to open the door and get in and sit down.

You ought to slide over behind the wheel and look out over that jewel-like dash into the exciting beyond.

And you ought to do this, whatever the car you own today—and whatever the car you expect to own.

You look at those beautiful, flowing lines—and you can't escape the conviction that America's industrial artistry in metals is unsurpassed in all the world.

You look at the fabrics that tailor the seats and cushions—and you realize that America's manufacturing genius is unapproached for bringing luxury into everyday life.

You look at the flawless execution of every structural detail—and you have the comforting feeling that America's industrial craftsmanship is in a class by itself.

But your greatest inspiration is yet to come.

You ask the price of the lowest-priced Cadillac model—and you find that it's easily within the means of hundreds of thousands of American families.

Where else, in all the world—you ask yourself—could there be such a blending of luxury and practicality?

And the answer, of course, is—"nowhere." It's strictly an American "monopoly."

Yes, here is the new standard for the automotive world. It is new in beauty, in comfort, in luxury and in performance.

So come see it soon—and come with your hopes high.

SHOP THE MARKET!

You'll find YOUR BEST BUY IN COOKING is an AUTOMATIC GAS RANGE

Feature for feature—dollar for dollar—you simply can't beat a new automatic GAS range. That's why we say, "Make the rounds—see all the others"—because an automatic GAS range invites comparison. It has features—basic features—you won't find in any other range!

WIDE VARIETY OF TOP BURNER HEATS

Imagine how much easier it is cooking with GAS "pin-point" control—than with only 5 or 7 different heats! On an automatic GAS range, you choose the heat—any heat—that suits the food.

If you've ever used a pressure cooker, you'll know what we're talking about. You know how the pressure goes up or down when the heat varies even a tiny bit. That shows how important just the exact degree of heat is, with any kind of cooking!

WHEN YOU START TO COOK —COOK!

You needn't remember to turn on the gas beforehand. You set your pan on a top burner, turn on the gas, and it starts to cook right then. Even slow cooking takes less time on your gas range, because it starts to cook sooner.

YOURS— FOR LIFE!

The burners on your automatic GAS range are yours for life. No periodical replacement. They can't burn out. They're non-clog. Good for as long as your range is.

See these cooking wonders at your Dealer's or Gas Company Office—tomorrow!

DREAM STUFF FROM YOUR OVEN!

Cakes golden-brown all over, baked anywhere in the oven, on any rack! Constant, even heat that never varies. That's what you get with an air-circulated oven—exclusive with an automatic GAS range!

JUICY, SIZZLING BROILED MEATS— WITHOUT SMOKE!

Smokeless broiling—with the door closed! Gas flame consumes fatty vapors before they can turn into smoke. Flameless broiling can't do that. So in the range you're considering, make sure you can broil meats smokelessly with the door closed.

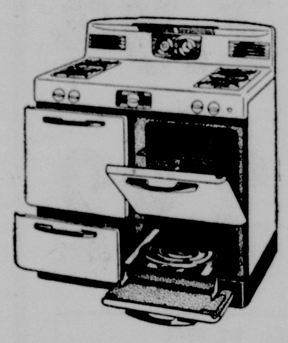
These are only a few of the important features. Naturally, automatic GAS ranges have all the other modern features too, such as automatic oven cooking, clean cooking, beautiful modern styling, burner arrangement, other conveniences.



AND WHAT DOES THIS WONDERFUL KIND OF RANGE COST?

Why, you'll SAVE MONEY!—up to $100 on a modern, automatic type GAS range. You'll save on installation costs. You'll save forever after, too. Gas is so economical . . . and you'll have practically no maintenance compared with other types.

Fort Hill High School took the measure of Barton High School's Braves here, 48-36, to register its fourth straight victory in the W.M.I. League. Beall High practically eliminated Central of Lonaconing from the running by handing the Tigers their third loss, 51-47, and Allegany High dealt Bruce of Westernport its fourth successive league defeat, 55-23, in contests staged last night.

Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Sentinels stretched their winning streak to 10 games in defeating a scrappy Barton team which blew 18 shots in 30 tries at the foul line.

Fort Hill's "big gun" was Glenn "Creeper" Wilson who fired 19 points in seven field goals and 5-7 fouls. Garland Tichnell was Barton's best bet with 19 points, including seven fielders, but he missed eight of 12 free throws.

Lynn Beightol of Fort Hill and Clark and Bean of Barton made their exit via five personal fouls.

The quarter scores were 12-8, 21-19 and 33-26 with the Sentinels on top.

Beall SPills Central

Field goals by Don Blank and Richard McClintock after Bill Hawkins' two foul goals had given Beall the lead in the final quarter, featured the Frostburg team's victory over the Orange and Black of Central in the Mountain City.

Beall lost Arnone and Workman on personal fouls.

Blank with 15 points and Hawkins and McClintock with 12 each were the chief point geters for Coach Ed Finzel's team. Don McKenzie and Kenny Burt with 16 and 12 led Coney's scoring. Central led at intermission, 25-22, and at the end of the third period, 39-38.

AHS Gets 25 Baskets

Allegany High's Campers poured in 25 field goals in crushing Bruce High at Campobello. Coach Walter Bowers used nine players and each contributed two points or more. AHS held the long end of a 22-6 score at the halfway mark.

Phares and ESisk with 14 and 12 tallies topped Allegany's attack. Bruce was limited to eight field goals.

Sandy Saddler Defeats Shade

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 23 (AP)—Sandy Saddler of New York City, the world's featherweight champ, took a unanimous 10-round decision tonight from Sunny Dave Shade of Detroit before about 4,000 fight fans, but he had a fight on his hands most of the way.

Saddler escaped with little worse than a lump over his left eye. He spent a large part of the evening working on a bleeding nose that he handed Shade in the first round. There were no knock-downs.

The champ weighed in for the non-title go at 130. Shade, who also fights under his own name, Jesse Underwood, weighed 133¾.

Clippers Are Through
"Bob" Fulton, 55, Dies
"Snowbird" Is Puzzler
TDs Worth $1,000 Each

By C. V. BURNS

Johnstown is definitely out of the All-American Professional Basketball League, according to a telegram received by William V. Keegan, coach of the Cumberland Spas.

Harry E. Finley, business manager of Century Enterprises, promoters of the team, wired:

"Regret to advise Johnstown team discontinued balance of season. Decision necessary. Conditions beyond control."

Following the death of its star player, George "Chuck" Karmarkovich, in an automobile mishap while the team was en route home from a game in Wheeling, Johnstown announced its withdrawal from the circuit. The team was in a rut financially at the time.

There was some talk the Clippers would reconsider their decision. The final verdict, however, is contained in the telegram received by Keegan.

Speaking of Western Union messages reminds us that one of the company's most faithful employes—a man who had sent and received thousands of messages here for 30 years—was taken by death at his home late Tuesday night.

We refer to Robert "Bob" Fulton, 55, whom we've known for almost a quarter of a century.

"Bob" has occupied the booth under the grandstand at the Cumberland Fair Grounds for many years and wired messages and stories direct from the track during race meetings. On Getaway Day last June he sent the last item for us from the Fairgo track.

Fulton was a friendly fellow who got a thrill out of horse racing and we'll certainly miss those little chats with him at race meets in the future.

Harry Davis of Keyser participated in 15 of the first 16 games played by Virginia Tech's quint and scored 72 points on 30 field goals and 12 fouls. The Gobblers won 11 and lost 5. Davis scored 100 points for VPI last season.

When LaSalle College of Philadelphia lost out in the 4th quarter to N. C. State at Raleigh Saturday night, 76-74, Coach Ken Loeffler, who once played for the Second Story Morrys at Pittsburgh, called it "one of the biggest steals since the Louisiana Purchase."

LaSalle, now ranked 17th nationally, entered the final period with a 14-point lead, lost three men on personals and was the victim of four technical fouls in the second half.

There are many slang expressions in sport. For instance, in baseball we have the Two O'clock Hitter. Dick Smith, can of corn, horse collar, cripple, base on stones and Hogan's brickyard.

In boxing there is the Fancy Dan, the tanker, canvas kisser, etc. Football fans are familiar with the coffin corner, Monday Morning Quarterback and so on.

Now, Tony Constantine, Morgantown, W. Va., sports columnist, comes to bat with the question:

"How did the name "snowbird" originate for the scoring chance on which a basketball player finds himself free under the hoop for an easy field goal?

He's asked players, veteran coaches and consulated books but can't find the answer.

Washington's Redskins didn't do so bad in the player draft. They acquired Leon Heath, All-America from Oklahoma; Johnny Papit, of Virginia, and Bobby Cox of Duke, as their backfield nominees.

When Wheeling won two road games Saturday and Sunday it marked the first time in four years that Mike Valan's club made a sweep on the Altoona-Cumberland jaunt.

Scheduling of a Penn-Notre Dame game in 1952 revives memories when Knute Rockne brought one of his greatest teams to Philadelphia in 1930 and it whipped Penn 60-20 before 80,000 persons.

Marty Brill's father offered his son $1,000 for each touchdown he scored. Marty collected $3,000 from his pop scoring on runs of 67, 38 and 25 yards.

Kentucky Grabs Lead In Weekly Basketball Poll

Long Island Is 2nd, Oklahoma A. & M. 3rd

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—After a three-week absence, Coach Adolph Rupp has guided his Kentucky Wildcats back to the top of the national basketball rankings — but the blue grass lads got a stiff argument from Long Island University.

In a tight battle of the ballots, Kentucky drew 64 first-place votes for 1,786 points to replace Oklahoma A & M as the leader in the weekly Associated Press poll.

LIU, sporting the best record in the land, 15-0, attracted 62 first-place votes and 1,643 points to finish only 143 points behind Kentucky. Ten points are given for a first-place vote, nine for a second and so on.

Aggies Slip To Third

Oklahoma A & M, after its upset loss to Oklahoma last Saturday slipped to third place. The Aggies received 20 first-place votes and 1,434 points from the 222 sports writers and sportscasters who participated in the voting.

Bradley, which led for two weeks, also dropped, from third to fourth place. The Braves, who one week received 152 first-place votes, got only four this time. Bradley's point-total was 1,124.

Indiana's Big Ten leaders moved into the No. 5 slot, replacing St. John's of Brooklyn, which dropped to sixth. Indiana pulled in 1,026 points and 14 first-place votes.

The other members of the top ten are, in order, Columbia, North Carolina State, Kansas State and St. Louis.

LSI Goes On Road

LSI embarks on a strenuous five-game road trip which will carry the Blackbirds over 6,000 miles in 11 days. They'll play San Francisco Friday and California Saturday in San Francisco's Cow Palace and then make stops at Arizona, Kansas State and St. Louis on the way home.

But this week's outstanding game will take place in Peoria, Ill., Friday night, when Bradley's bruised Braves take on Oklahoma A & M in a Missouri Valley tilt.

Seventh-ranked Columbia, one of the two unbeaten teams in the country, is idle this week but the rest of the top ten will see action Saturday. Indiana meets Ohio State, St. John's plays St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, NC State tangles with North Carolina, Kansas State gets Colorado and St. Louis plays Drake.

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (INS)—It is a moot question which is the more objectionable character in sports—the mealy-mouthed mock-modest hypocrite or the loud-mouthed braggart.

We always believed the bird who said he wanted to "lay down his life for Dear Old Rutgers," was a phony spouting pure corn. And Max Baer, before he got some sense, was hard on the nerves when he went around boasting he "would kill Jim Braddock" and advising Mike Jacobs to have a stretcher and ambulance ready to cart away Braddock.

We don't mind a certain amount of cockiness in an athlete, especially a young one. It bespeaks confidence in his own ability. We have no objection to that just so he doesn't overdo it.

We always admired the way Tony Canzoneri, the former world's lightweight champion, spoke and acted. Before a fight he would always admit the other fellow was pretty good and then add that he thought he could lick him.

In his first fight with Jimmy McLarnin, a terrific puncher, Jimmy landed a full right hand flush on Tony's jaw. Somehow Tony weathered that first round wallop and came back to his corner with his legs wobbling like a drunken duck's Tony's handler's working feverishly between rounds, were visibly upset, but Tony said quietly: "Don't worry, if that's the best he has, I'll beat him." And he did.

The inimitable Dizzy Dean has been called a braggart but Diz never promised to do more than he knew he could do. There was the day, for instance, when he walked over to the Boston bench and told the Braves:

"I'm going to beat you fellers today and I'm not going to throw a single curve—nothing but fast ones." The Braves gave him the Bronx cheer but Diz made good on his boast as he threw nothing but fast ones and shut them out with three hits.

And you will recall that disputed incident in the world series when Babe Ruth pointed to the center field bleachers with his bat indicating that he would hit the next ont in there. He did.

We recall one occasion when the Babe promised a bed-ridden little boy in a hospital that he would hit a homer for him that afternoon. And the Babe hit two homers.

The Frenchman, Georges Carpentier, thrilled the fight mob and rocked Jack Dempsey back on his heels with a straight right to the jaw. Dempsey's manager turned white but Jack told him between rounds: "if that's his Sunday punch, I'll flatten him sure." And he did.

Gene Sarazen gave many examples of quiet confidence in his ability to do certain things with a golf ball. Once in Cleveland he needed a 30-foot putt to beat Lawson Little for the National Open.

The gallery swarmed on the green and the officials begged the fans to give Gene a chance. "All I need is elbow room to sink this one," said Gene. His putt hung on the rim to give him a tie.

Freshmen Favored For Varsity Games

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 23 (AP)—Athletic officials at eight of the Southern Conference's 17 schools are in favor of making freshmen eligible for varsity competition as early as this spring.

This came to light here today at the annual schedule-making conference of Virginia's "Big Six" institutions. Also present were representatives from George Washington, Maryland and West Virginia University.

All eight conference schools at the session went on record in an unofficial poll as being in favor of freshman participation in spring sports. Official sanction would have to come from the Southern Conference as a whole.

KEEPING UP WITH

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25. (INS)—I thought when I first heard that Victor Desny was claiming that Billy Wilder had plagiarized "Ace In The Hole" that it was just another one of those threatened suits that happen so often in the picture business.

Then I heard that Desny was being represented by Jerry Giesler, one of Hollywood's top attorneys, and Oliver Schwab, and that the Governor of Kentucky is helping in the fight. So I started to investigate.

Desny claims he wrote "Ace In The Hole," which is about Floyd Collins, who was trapped in a cave in Kentucky and lost his life some years ago, and submitted it to Wilder. Desny states that he had permission from the Collins family to make the picture and had agreed to give them a percentage of the proceeds.

Giesler, who always prefers to settle everything amicably and out of court whenever it is possible, has given Paramount a week to make a decision. At Paramount, Sid Justin, head of the legal department, stated that there are threats made against almost every picture made, but that Paramount is investigating the Desny claim because Jerry Giesler has taken the case.

When Diana Douglas (The ex-Mrs. Kirk Douglas) starts work in "Storm Over Tibet" she will have opposite her a young TV actor named Rex Reason who has never before faced a camera—or even visited a studio. How come?

Well, it seems that Producers Ivan Tors and Laslo Benedec saw young Reason (isn't that name rather confusing) on a TV show and signed him on a four-year deal right after making a camera test.

There was a good deal of excitement a few days ago when Clark Gable and Z. Wayne Griffin were seen on the Universal-International lot. What was Gable doing there?

Well, my Hawkshaw, the detective, traced it down. Gable had just seen "Tomahawk" which George Sherman directed. So, he and Z. Wayne went to Universal City to try to get George to direct their first independent film. But he cannot be spared by U. I.

In the course of conversation it was revealed that Clark has not yet given up the idea of getting Jane Russell to star in this picture.

Are Jean Parker and Bob Lowery planning to have the knot tied in Florida? That's what I hear.

Again there are whispers that a deal for the purchase of United Artists is hot. This time it's Arthur Krim. Mary Pickford says, however, that there is nothing definite.

Selene Walters and Gillette Razor Heir Jack Coleman are a steady duo in Manhattan. Selene went there as soon as the Los Angeles judge gave her permission to take her little daughter, Scarlet, with her.

When the telephone call came to me at Larue from Jeanne Cagney that her brother, William, had married Nadine Parker, sitting not far from the telephone were Herbert Marshall and Boots Mallory Marshall, Bill's former wife. I told them the news but neither she nor Bart seemed very interested.

At Larue also were Doris and Ezio Pinza. He had just been chosen "the best classical singer" on the annual poll of radio editors, columnists and critics.

Dancing to the music of Freddie Martin's band at Ciro's were Linda Darnell with Polan Banks, Barbara Peyton and Franchot Tone, and Mickey Rooney with a brunette actress named Jackie Parks.

From New York comes word that Russell Nype, Manhattan's new rave—he's with Ethel Merman in "Call Me Madam"—is the Duchess of Windsor's favorite dancing partner. She and the Duke, who are admirers of his, are reported giving a big party at the St. Regis where he's booked for a midnight stint after the show.

Try And Stop Me

In Washington, a government survey was ordered to study the migratory habits of birds. Thousands of all species were released with metal strips attached reading, "Notify Fish and Wild Life Division. Wash. Biol. Surv." Hugh Newton writes, "The abbreviation was changed abruptly following receipt of this pencilled note from a vexed Alberta agriculturist:

"Gents: I shot one of your crows last week and followed instructions attached to it. I washed, biled it, and surveyed it. It was awful. You should stop trying to fool the public with things like this!"

Phil Silvers was shaved by a drunken barber one morning on Hollywood Boulevard, or so he says, discovering the man's condition too late to do anything but submit and pray. The miracle occurred, and he escaped without a nick. "Did I do you okay?" queried the barber, swaying perceptibly. "I don't know how, but you did," agreed Silvers. "In that case," grinned the barber, "I guess it's safe to shave myself."

PIEDMONT FIRE—Between $8,000 and $10,000 damage was caused to the first-floor quarters of Piedmont Lodge No. 1120, Loyal Order of Moose, in the Fredlock Building, Piedmont, W. Va., when the quarters were gutted by fire yesterday morning. The top picture shows firemen from Potomac Fire Company, Westernport, and Tri-Towns Fire Company, Piedmont, in the lodge clubroom after the flames had been extinguished. The lower picture shows the Piedmont Moose Lodge office, where the worst of the costly fire centered. The blaze was confined to the street floor of the E. J. Fredlock Building, Lyons and Jones Streets. It was discovered about 8:50 a. m. yesterday in a trash room by Charles Hood, janitor. Hood burned his right hand in an unsuccessful effort to curb the flames. Most of the loss was in decorations and furnishings which the lodge had installed two weeks ago, firemen said. Furniture and equipment owned by the Fredlock Manufacturing and Building Company on the second floor was undamaged. The three-story building is 75 years old.

New Idea

JACK CARSON, one of the four comedians who show up like the bill for the rent once a month on NBC's "Four Star Revue," has come up with a fresh idea, of all things. He'd better stop this sort of thing right now or he'll get in trouble with the authorities. Ideas in television are frowned on as upsetting to the general welfare and conceivably subversive.

John Crosby

The idea that struck Mr. Carson, who is a sort of junior edition of Jack Oakie, is to put a story line in the big lavish Wednesday night (8 p. m. EST) musical. As ideas go, this is hardly wildly original but no one else has done it. Dissatisfied with the loose vaudeville format of most of the comedy shows, Carson hired one of Fred Allen's ex-writers, Nat Hiken, and the two of them have developed a show which has a beginning, a middle and an end.

* * *

Carson has eight people under contract who appear on each show; their names change but their characters don't and neither does Carson's. Eventually he hopes to be able to get the same sort of character laughs which were the stock in trade of most radio shows. Carson plays the role of a good-natured overgrown calf who gets pushed around by everyone from stagehands to gangsters. And the other guy always gets the girl. Broad of beam and of face, a sort of Toots Shor who fell in with evil companions and took to acting, Carson fits the role admirably.

The stories in which Mr. Carson and stooges are encased are not anything the Library of Congress couldn't get along without and are sometimes pretty preposterous but they do hold the show together. The last one concerned Mr. Carson's attempts to get three tickets to "Guys and Dolls," a rather slender idea to hang an hour show on. A platoon of ticket speculators, dressed in the most amazing zoot suits, led him a chase through Manhattan which ends in a tunnel underneath the Hudson River ("Don't open any windows.") where he is relieved of all his cash, finds himself $6,000 in debt and in possession not only of the "Guys and Dolls" tickets but also 30 tickets to "Abie's Irish Rose" which, he is informed, are terribly hard to get because the play closed several decades ago.

* * *

Somewhere before the end of the piece, Mr. Carson is bereft of his tickets, his girl and his pants which gives you some idea of the abuse he has to take once a month. Altogether the script was amusing though not exactly uproarious and Mr. Carson, an expert mugger and student of the double-take, did well by it. In a furtive way, the show is a sort of travesty on "Guys and Dolls." The ticket specs strongly resemble most of the Broadway characters in that show; the scene under the river is more than a little reminiscent of the dice game in a sewer in "Guys and Dolls;" and a girl singing "Harbor Lights" in a nasal Brooklyn accent could easily have been suggested by Vivian Blaine's rendition of "Take Back Your Mink."

I have a few reservations. Mr. Hiken sometimes goes to extremes of low comedy—a pants-switching scene in a tailor shop, for example — which leaves me wondering whether television is here to stay. Also, I'm a little exasperated by Mr. Carson's implied characterization of his birthplace, Milwaukee, as strictly a yokel town. I sprang from Milwaukee myself and found it a very agreeable and surprisingly enlightened community.

NBC has always had an alarming weakness for grandiose production numbers in its musicals—all those pretty girls kicking their bare legs at you—and Mr. Carson has happily thrown most of this out and subordinated the songs and dances to the plot. He has also tossed out the guest stars—he's had only one —on their handsome, high-priced behinds, under the theory they smell up the story and upset his regular cast. It's a courageous gesture since guests do attract listeners. Only time will tell whether it'll work.

Firemen Request Pension Aid From County Board

A delegation of firemen from the Cumberland Fire Department appeared before the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday to request the board to contribute towards the city firemens' pension fund.

Members of the county board said they have no power to make contributions to the city firemens' pension fund. The matter was brought up concerning the contributions made to the 18 volunteer fire companies in the county by the board.

It was explained to the city firemen this is done under a law passed many years ago and is money for upkeep and maintenance of buildings and equipment of the fire companies.

The city firemen then asked about the possibility of the county board sponsoring a bill under which the city firemen could be given a contribution.

Members of the board indicated they could not go along with this proposal.

It was stated that the city firemen were interested in a contribution each year for the next 10 years.

Market, In Slow Session, Manages To Swing Higher

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—After struggling through a slow session, the stock market today managed to swing higher.

Most of the impetus for the rise was concentrated in the closing phases of the session.

Closing plus signs were small with few of them going beyond a dollar a share. At the same time there was a liberal sprinkling of losses that ran to a dollar or more.

Phillips Petroleum was the day's most active issue closing off 1½ at 79¾. Directors announced plans to split the common two-for-one, and the president estimated 1950 earnings at $8.50 a share as against $7.36 a share the previous year.

After the market closed directors of Gulf Oil announced their intention of declaring a 100 per cent stock dividend if shareholders approve an increase in capitalization to 50,000,000 shares from the present 20,000,000 shares. Gulf closed up 1 at 88¼.

The volume of trading contracted to 2,080,000 shares, the smallest since Dec. 13 when 2,030,000 changed hands.

There were 1,167 individual issues traded, also the smallest number since Dec. 13. An even 500 issues advanced and 383 declined with 35 new highs for 1950-51 being established and only one new low being reached.

Pepsi-Cola continued a favorite and was second most active closing up ¼ at 12. New York Central took the third spot off ⅝ at 23⅝. The only other stock showing a loss among the 15 most active was Baltimore & Ohio off ⅜ at 23.

"The Authority on Authorities"

PROBABILITIES VITAL

KNOWLEDGE of the probabilities connected with the game is vital to being a strong player. In many situations there is nothing else to guide us. Every experienced cardsman has some information on the subject. But a certain amount of it is not truly information, but a general feeling engendered by our experiences with the way things seem to work out. In the long run, however, it will be found that going against the percentages proves unsuccessful.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	5 NT	Pass
6 ♥	Pass	7 NT	Dbl
Pass	Pass	Redbl

When the Blackwood 4-No Trumps brought South's response of 5-Hearts showing two aces, and the 5-No Trumps brought the answer of 6-Hearts to show two kings, North thought he could count up thirteen absolutely certain tricks—seven in clubs and two each with the double toppers of the other three suits. So, to obviate danger of a defensive ruff, he put the grand slam into No Trumps. East's double was so welcomed by him that he redoubled without a moment's qualm.

It was painful to see him beaten a trick after East led the diamond 5, which was won by the dummy's A. Naturally he was pleased to see the dummy possessing a club, which he led to the second trick. When the J fell on his A, he was worried, and the laying down of the King disclosed West's holding, certain to take a club trick with the lowly 9.

What are the true odds for and against that occurring? They are not as lop-sided as most players would think, for eight outstanding cards of a suit figure to be divided 4 and 1 on approximately 32 chances out of 100. And if South had not held that single club, the chances of the suit not breaking were 64 out of 100 that one would have four and his partner two cards. Since South had shown at least six spades and four hearts, and the diamond A, there was an appreciable chance that he might have had no clubs. But who among us would not have bid that grand slam?

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

How would you play for all thirteen tricks at No Trump if you were North and East led the spade 9? How if he led the diamond 3?

U. S. To Send 21 To Buenos Aires

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Four new members of the track team that will represent the United States in the Pan-American Games at Buenos Aires Feb. 25—March 8 were announced today by Pincus Sober, chairman of the Pan-American track committee.

They are: Arthur Bragg, Morgan State, sprints; Bill Brown, formerly of Morgan State, 400 and 800 meters; Don Halderman, Ventura, Calif., Junior College, 400 meter hurdles; and Jim Holland, formerly of Northwestern, broad jump.

The United States will be represented at Buenos Aires by a 21 man track team. Fifteen have now been selected. A budget of $200,000 is needed to send the entire American team—comprising 125 athletes—to the South American capital. Only about half of this has been raised.

Jim Delsing Signs

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 23 (AP)—Outfielder Jim Delsing has signed his 1951 contract with the St. Louis Browns, the club announced today.

Delsing, 25, acquired from the New York Yankees last June, finished the 1950 season with a .269 batting average and a fielding percentage of .994, one of the highest marks in the league. He was the sixth Brownie to come to terms this year.

Bob Neyland Gets Lifetime Contract As Coach Of Vols

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 23 (AP)—Gen. Bob Neyland was handed a lifetime contract today to continue developing precision, power-packed football teams at Tennessee.

Extension of Neyland's coaching contract followed one of his most successful seasons. His 1950 team won 10 games, lost one and upset Texas, 20-14, in the Cotton Bowl. Tennessee was the number 4 team in the country in the final Associated Press poll.

Salary terms were not disclosed, but Chairman N. W. Dougherty of the Tennessee Athletic Council said the new agreement called for a "slight increase" for Neyland and his entire staff.

Neyland's salary has never been announced. Speculation has placed it at $16,500, plus $2,500 annually for "expenses." The new contract is expected to run his pay well above the $20,000 mark, making Neyland one of collegiate football's highest paid coaches.

The 58-year old Tennessee mentor is the second disciple of the single-wing system to receive a "lifetime" coaching contract in recent weeks. Princeton gave Charlie Caldwell a similar contract after he piloted the Tigers through an unbeaten campaign last fall.

Cable Break Disrupts 1,600 Telephones In City

Civil Defense Preview Given Cumberland

Police Forced To Alter Setup

Cumberland got a preview of a Civil Defense emergency last night when a cable break on North Centre Street disabled 1,600 of the city's approximately 8,000 telephones and police headquarters and Central fire station were placed on an emergency basis.

Phone service to police headquarters went completely out of order last night about 8:40 p. m. and Central Fire Station's switchboard was rendered useless necessitating the taking of emergency means to combat the disruption of communications when an underground cable was damaged in the vicinity of the Kaldor parking lot on North Centre Street.

Morrisey Handles Calls

Officer Kenneth Morrisey was dispatched to the telephone office on South Centre Street by Desk Sgt. Curtis McA. Kime, to handle all emergency calls which were relayed to police headquarters by radio from a cruiser car just outside the telephone company building.

George H. Norris, central office foreman, in charge of the test center and repairmen for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, said repair crews were dispatched immediately after the first reports began to come in about 1:45 p. m.

Workers last night reported the underground duct which housed the telephone cable had apparently been broken and damaged by water department crews who had been making repairs to water mains on Centre Street yesterday. The telephone men said it appeared that a pipe had been driven into the cable duct breaking the duct and permitting water to leak in on the cable thus shorting it and rendering it useless. Norris explained that as the cable became wet more and more telephones would be put out of order and telephone officials expressed the belief that some 2,000 phones would be rendered useless before the damage was repaired.

Centre Street Blocked

Repair crews had torn up an area of about 15 feet along Centre Street last night blocking off traffic on the west bound thoroughfare.

Central fire station's switchboard was out of commission but was reported using another line to receive calls at the station. Emergency calls were being received at 1481 firemen said.

Telephones on Bedford, Frederick, Centre and Baltimore Streets and North End were out of order Norris said, and telephone company expected to have the damage repaired this morning.

PHONE SERVICE in downtown Cumberland and in part of the North End was disrupted last night by a cable break on North Centre Street. In the top picture, Charles W. Ehrbar, a splicer for the C&P Telephone Company, is shown working in the rain on North Centre Street as he attempts to repair the cable. In the lower picture, Police Officer Kenneth Morrissey is shown at the temporary police communications headquarters set up in the Telephone Building. Morrissey was in civilian clothes because he was called in suddenly for emergency duty. He relayed messages to a police cruiser outside the building where another policeman broadcast the message over the police radio.

Emergency Phone System Set Up By Local Police

Cable Disruption Hits Communications

An emergency communications system set up by the Cumberland Police Department after its phones went out last evening was reported working well late last night.

Shortly after 8:40 p. m. phone service at Police Headquarters failed when a water department worker cut into a phone cable on North Centre Street, throwing some 1,600 lines out of service.

Quick cooperation between the Police Department, with its radio station and radio-equipped cruiser cars, and the C. and P. Telephone Company soon found a solution to the problem.

An emergency police headquarters was set up at the Telephone building, in charge of Officer Kenneth Morrisey.

Officer Morrisey said the system worked like this:

All calls to the police department over lines 1680 were automatically transferred to 9977 and 9978, at the telephone office.

As soon as the officer took the message, he went outside to his cruiser and radioed to Desk Sgt. Curtis M. Kime, who was in charge of desk work last night at police headquarters.

Any messages from Sgt. Kime to the outside were phoned by Officer Morrisey.

Officer Morrisey praised the cooperation of the phone company in the emergency and said the system was working well.

The Fire Department lines to Central, West and East Side Fire Stations were also affected.

Police said any telephone calls for those stations go to emergency police headquarters, then would be radioed to the stations through two cruisers stationed in the North End, providing quick service to that area.

The crisis did not affect the operation of the department's independent alarm system, police said.

Police said four cruisers would be kept in full operation throughout the emergency.

House Listed As Fire Hazard To Be Rebuilt

Permits Granted For Building Work

A permit to rebuild a house on Anderson and Pine Streets which the city recently ordered demolished as a fire hazard has been issued by City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer.

Joseph A. Ashby, Cherry Lane, secured a permit Friday to rebuild the structure.

The new building is to be 25 by 25 feet, with frame walls and composition roof with a stone foundation. The Engineer's office was told the old foundation was to be used.

Cost of the work was estimated at $2,000. Ashby, the office said, purchased the lot on which the condemned house stands, from its owners in New York City.

Clyde S. Slider, 811 Louisiana Avenue, secured a permit to build a three-room apartment in a building at 807 Cecil Street.

The cost of the addition, to be constructed of concrete block, was estimated at $1,000.

Charles S. Sullivan, 304 Magruder Street, was issued a permit to build a two story block building on Ford Avenue to be used as a gas station and for car parts storage.

The building, 20 by 20 feet, is to be constructed of concrete block with composition shingle roof at an estimated cost of $1,500.

J. E. Dyche, 221 Humbird Street, secured a permit to build a 16 by 18 foot addition to the present building at 221 Humbird Street Cost was estimated at $1,200.

News In Brief

South End Fire Company was called to the home of George B. Steele, 152 Thomas Street, yesterday a 1:29 a. m. Firemen said a cracked furnace casing allowed the house to fill with gas and smoke. They said there was no damage.

Movies of the 1950 World Series will be shown at the meeting of the Optimist Club at 6:15 p. m. today in Central Y.M.C.A.

Volunteers Are Needed For Civil Defense Work

Gibson Appeals For Local Applicants

Arthur B. Gibson, Civil Defense director for the City of Cumberland, yesterday issued an appeal for volunteer Civil Defense officers.

Such officers, he said, will be needed throughout the city to assemble and record essential information on the areas they will protect.

Applications to the Civil Service Director, City Hall, Cumberland, should list the applicants name, address, age, color, occupation, telephones at home or business address and the hours available for service.

Civil Service Officers, Gibson said, will have no police authority since such authority is delegated to the police and auxiliary police departments.

When sufficient applications are received, data will be assembled and turned over to zone, district and precinct chiefs who can then plan how to protect each block in the city.

Gibson said women as well as men will be eligible to become Civil Defense officers, especially those who will not be eligible for military service.

The set up in Cumberland will include civil defense officers in each election zone, precinct and block.

Decree Filed

A divorce decree was signed yesterday by Judge Morgan C. Harris in Allegany County Circuit Court. The decree was given to Elizabeth F. Nixon from Harold F. Nixon.

Police Question Keyser Resident In Shooting

Clarksburg Man Listed In Critical Condition

Ralph Lemons, 42, Clarksburg, W. Va., continued in critical condition in St. Mary's Hospital, Clarksburg, yesterday with a bullet in the stomach reportedly inflicted upon him by a Keyser, W. Va. resident, who is his wife's former husband.

Clarksburg Police Chief E. F. Amsler, Jr., said yesterday he was holding for questioning William H. Riddle, about 35, an employe of the Railway Express Company in Keyser. The chief identified Riddle as the divorced husband of Mrs. Lemons.

The Keyser man was picked up Monday in the Mineral county town and was returned to Clarksburg for questioning. Clarksburg police said the shooting resulted soon after Riddle appeared at the Lemons' home early Sunday.

After the shooting Mrs. Lemons was arrested on a charge of being drunk.

The woman told Clarksburg police that she and her husband were having a few drinks in the kitchen of the home when Riddle arrived. There was no argument, she added, but when Riddle reached the kitchen door as he was leaving, he turned suddenly and fired three shots from a pistol.

Equity Cases Filed

Two equity cases were filed in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday. The bills of complaint were titled Katherine Ottard vs. Emmanuel D. Ottard and Glendon L. Wolford vs. Mary Ellen Wolford.

Labor Dispute Group Will Be Reactivated

Council Approval Is Slated Monday

Mayor Thomas S. Post announced last night that the city will reactivate the Labor-Management-Citizens Committee today.

He said a list of appointments to the committee designed to foster better labor-management relations in this city will be submitted to the Mayor and Council Monday for formal approval.

Names of those appointed to the committee were not disclosed, pending informal acceptance of appointments.

The committee has generally been inactive since the death of Former Judge William A. Huster, who was named chairman when the group was activated here last May.

Mayor Post said the action to reactivate the committee has been taken upon the recommendation of a number of interested citizens and organizations.

Such labor-management-citizens groups, Mayor Post said, have had an enviable record in many cities in aiding in the settling of labor-management disputes.

Much of the committee's work, he commented, will be aimed at preventing friction between such groups and not waiting until trouble develops.

Mayor Post said city officials feel that the presence of such a committee will be a strong point in the city's contribution to national defense.

Policeman Wins Appeal On 7-Day Suspension

Board Rules On Officer Law's Case

The Civil Service Commission has upheld an appeal by Officer Leo E. P. Law of a seven-day suspension last month and ruled he should be reimbursed for wages lost during the period.

Law was suspended December 27, 1950, by Chief of Police P. Emmett Flynn after Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long ordered disciplinary action on a charge of "sleeping while on duty on or about 7:30 a. m. December 26."

The commission in a statement yesterday said:

"After careful consideration of the testimony in this case, the Civil Service Commission finds that the evidence submitted was not sufficient to warrant the suspension of Officer Leo E. P. Law, and, therefore, it is the unanimous opinion of the commission that the action taken by the chief of police and later affirmed by the commissioner of police and fire in this case be reversed, and that Officer Law be reimbursed for wages lost during said suspension."

The decision was reached Monday night after the commission had weighed testimony taken during a hearing on January 12. The alleged violation of duty occurred, the charges read, while Officer Law was assisting W. A. Buley, meter collector, on his rounds of the meters to collect nickels.

Buley, Flynn and Long testified during the hearing as did Officer Law. The officer was represented by Attorney Thomas B. Finan and the Commission by City Attorney W. Earle Cobey.

The Chicagoan headed an ambulance unit in China and administered to civilians on both the Communist and Nationalist sides of the battle line.

State Civilian Defense Chief Outlines Plans

Says Allegany County Has Made Good Start

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP)—If war is declared or a bomb falls on this continent:

The Maryland director of civilian defense will recommend that infants, the aged and the infirm be removed from potential target areas of the state.

But the ablebodied will be asked to stay put.

"We must stay and fight it out where we are," Lt. Col. David G. McIntosh, 3d, head of Maryland's civilian defense setup, told the House of Delegates today.

He appeared before the House in compliance with a resolution requesting that he give a full report on what has been accomplished so far and what further is planned to assure adequate civilian defense measures in event of an emergency.

Up To Subdivisions

McIntosh stressed that much of the work must be done on a local and county level—that it is up to the subdivisions to recruit their own volunteers and get programs started.

He signaled out Allegany, Baltimore, Harford, Howard, Anne Arundel, Cecil and Frederick Counties, as well as Baltimore City, for getting particularly good starts.

Most of the last year, McIntosh explained, has been devoted to setting up the organizational plan and developing the program.

That is why the state has not as yet called for large groups of volunteers for the various civil defense services, he explained.

"The plans and training programs to be used by volunteers must be virtually completed before volunteers are recruited, otherwise they would be disgusted by not having an immediate task to perform," the director told the delegates.

"From a long-term standpoint, this would be extremely bad for the morale of our citizens."

Program Is "Sound"

Maryland's civilian defense program is "sound and workable," and well ahead of those of many other states, he said.

He recommended:

That the city of Baltimore purchase "at least a minimum number" of air raid sirens immediately, and not wait for the federal government to set up its projected nationwide warning system.

That every Marylander take a first aid course. Disappointingly few residents have volunteered for the course so far, he said.

That existing buildings be reinforced and designated as emergency shelters, and that the state not attempt to build bomb shelters.

Col. McIntosh disclosed the state is printing thousands of pamphlets outlining what to do in event of an atom bomb attack. It hopes to assure that every family has at least one.

These pamphlets are a reprint of the central portion of the federal booklet, "Survival Under Atomic Attack."

Court Frees Mother Of Six Children

Aid Arranged For Abandoned Youngsters

No charges were placed against the mother of six destitute children who had been turned over to Juvenile Court authorities after being found living in a foundation of a house in Frostburg apparently deserted by their parents. The mother was given a hearing yesterday afternoon in Juvenile Court.

The mother, Mrs. Harold Bendix, told court authorities she had left their home to seek aid with relatives and friends in Cumberland while her husband was seeking work in Baltimore. She explained she and her husband were trying to build a house and had been living in the foundation.

The children, ranging in ages from 2 to 10, were brought to the Allegany County Infirmary Monday night, fed and bedded down for the night, after authorities had received a complaint from neighbors that they had been deserted.

Homer S. Higgins, director of pupil personnel of the Allegany County Board of Education, attended the hearing relative to his interest in children of school age in the county and said after the hearing that aid had been arranged for the children on an emergency basis by the Salvation Army and the Allegany County Welfare Board until such time as the father could get work and support his family.

The mother was located in Cumberland and appeared before Judge Thomas E. Stakem in Juvenile Court yesterday. Judge Stakem dropped all charges against the mother after hearing her testimony.

Delegation Asks Early Action On Local Legislation

Cite Increasing Committee Duties

Charles M. See, chairman of the Allegany County Delegation, announced yesterday that all planned local legislation should be entered as soon as possible in the Maryland General Assembly.

Early action in introducing such local bills is vital, he said, if a log jam is to be avoided toward the end of the session.

All members of the Allegany Delegation have been named to major committees in the house and pending statewide legislation is taking more and more of their time as the session continues.

House Bill 33, which would set up a Poetry Day in Maryland, has passed the House of Delegates and has been sent to the Senate.

House Bills

House bills introduced yesterday included:

HB108—by Nowakowski—to allow a taxpayer, in computing his state income tax, without regard to the amount or source of his income, to elect either to itemize his allowable deductions or deduct 10 per cent of his income, not exceeding in any event $1,000. (Ways and Means).

HB111—by Lofstrand—to make it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of up to $100, to display any other flag or pennant above the flag of the United States, except as permitted by federal statutes and Army and Navy regulations (Veterans, Militia and State Police).

Senate Bills

Firemen Get Good Rating In Inspection

Members of the Cumberland Fire Department received a "good" rating on appearance and conduct at a recent inspection of all of the city's four fire companies by Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long.

Commissioner Long gave the rating report in a letter to Fire Chief William L. Lindner on his personal inspection of the fire houses Friday night.

The commissioner also gave several suggestions on improvement needed in upkeep and repair of the houses.

Foreman Lacks Power To Recall His Grand Jury

Will Await Action By Court In Matter

Kenneth R. Malcolm, Westernport, foreman of the January Allegany county grand jury, said last night that he would take no action to recall the grand jury to investigate a recent wave of burglaries in downtown Cumberland and complaints of the operation of race horse bookmaking establishments in the city.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long yesterday disclosed that he had called the matter to Malcolm's attention in a letter. Copies of the letter went to Associate Judge George Henderson and State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher.

Malcolm said last night that he has written a reply to Commissioner Long but would not divulge the details contained in the letter. He observed that any recall of the grand jury would have to come from the court as he has no recall authority. The grand jury was recessed January 5.

"I do not feel that it would be proper at this time for me to comment upon the letter sent to Mr. Malcolm by Commissioner of Police and Fire John J. Long. It was addressed personally to Mr. Malcolm in his capacity as foreman of the January Grand Jury, and a carbon copy was mailed to the State's Attorney's office and received this (Tuesday) morning."

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris said yesterday that he was not sent a copy of Commissioner Long's letter and considers it inappropriate for him to offer any comment for that reason.

Judge Harris did observe that the recalling of the grand jury would have to be done either by Judge Henderson or himself. The grand jury foreman has no authority to recall the grand jury although he may make such a request to the court.

The practice in Allegany county has been not to recall a grand jury after its release by the court. Once, some eight or nine years ago, a grand jury was recalled before the end of the court term to investigate an alleged murder.

Judge Henderson was enroute from Hagerstown to Cumberland last night and could not be reached for comment.

Commissioner Long's letter sets forth in detail the unsuccessful efforts of the police department to secure sufficient evidence against bookmaking establishments to get convictions in court.

In the concluding paragraph of his letter Commissioner Long states, "If you and the grand jury would be interested in names or any other information we have, the police department will cooperate to the fullest extent with you."
